

GOOD FOR CAUSE OF OREGON

Testimony Before Boundary Commission Is Against Contentions of Washington.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL OF WASHINGTON ARRIVES

Comes in Attempt to Save Case for His State—Present Meeting of Commission Does Not Resemble Love Feast.

So damaging to the cause of Washington in the boundary dispute with Oregon was the testimony of witnesses introduced by Attorney-General A. M. Crawford at the hearing conducted in the parlors of the Portland hotel yesterday afternoon that Attorney-General J. D. Atkinson of Olympia hurried to Portland this morning and entered into the case at this morning's session.

The testimony yesterday was decidedly in favor of Oregon. Despite all the ingenuity Attorney Macdonald used in cross-examining the testimony adduced showed that the contentions raised by Oregon are upheld by the pilots and navigators of the Columbia. With the exception of Captain Archie L. Pease, Columbia river pilot, Mr. Macdonald was unable to shake the witnesses in their direct testimony. Captain Pease became confused at the rapid-fire methods used by the counsel for Washington and said that the jetty constructed across the Cordell channel had no influence upon the direction of the channel. Captain Pease was again caught unawares by Mr. Macdonald when he made the statement that the north channel was the best one in point of depth and width.

Upon cross-examination Captain Pease stated that his actual knowledge of learning the depth was by piloting ocean going vessels down the river. These were the main points scored by Washington yesterday afternoon.

Astoria Pilot on Stand.

At today's session, Pilot John W. Welch of Astoria was placed upon the stand and testified as to the direction of the water in Woody Island channel and in the Cordell channel. His testimony is considered of value to Oregon in that it relates to the dates in which the different channels were used, thus establishing the claims of Oregon in a way that the statement of Washington as to the "definitions of the boundary as set forth in the charter issued at the time of Oregon's admittance in the union.

George Kaboth, who owns part of Snag Island, gave important testimony this morning, showing that the channel used by the large ships is exactly identical with the one claimed by Oregon at the time of the charter grant.

Attorneys in Clash.

Instead of the semblance of a love feast that has marked the previous hearings of the commission, points have been raised that have caused spirited arguments between the attorneys. Both sides remain confident of winning the controversy, and Assistant Attorney-General Macdonald, counsel for Washington, stated this morning that never since the hearings commenced was he so sure of winning as at present. On the other hand, Attorney-General Crawford and Harrison Allen, appearing for Oregon, both state that victory will result with Oregon.

Colonel C. C. Dalton, commissioner for Washington, was ill this morning and unable to appear at the hearing, but was present at the meeting this afternoon. Witness Kaboth resumed his testimony this afternoon and occupied the full time until adjournment at 3:30 o'clock.

Garbage Man Arrested.

D. Le Grand, a garbage man, was arrested yesterday evening by Harbor-master Ben Biglin for dumping garbage on the bank of the river at the foot of Hill street. Le Grand was given until tomorrow to cart the stuff away again.

Governor James O. Davidson of Wisconsin, who has just won the Republican nomination for governor of Wisconsin by 40,000 majority. He was elected lieutenant-governor and when Governor La Follette resigned Mr. Davidson was elected to serve La Follette's unexpired term. He was bitterly opposed by La Follette during the present campaign for reelection.

MABELLE GILLMAN LIVING IN BEAUTIFUL VILLA

Actress Declines to Receive Visitors and Is Living Alone in Seclusion.

Paris, Sept. 14.—Miss Gillman, the actress, whose early marriage to W. E. Corey of the steel trust is predicted, declines to receive visitors and telegrams addressed, she remains unresponsive. Access to interviewers who called at the beautiful villa where she is living in strict retirement on the most secluded spot on the heights of St. Cloud, near Paris, is denied. The villa was rented and furnished last May when Miss Gillman was in Italy. It is in marked contrast to the modest apartment formerly occupied by the actress in Rue Spontini. The villa is furnished in the most luxurious fashion and there is a small army of servants in attendance. They have strict orders to see that Miss Gillman is not disturbed by ordinary callers. Miss Gillman has a splendid 25-horsepower auto in which she takes daily drives, generally unaccompanied. Except for servants, she has been in the villa alone all summer, her mother having been at that time in the United States. She is not seen in the restaurants of Paris and has few callers.

New York, Sept. 14.—Men of millions, clerks, messengers, boys and truckmen today went to old Trinity to say farewell to the 'rector of Wall street,' who is to close there one of the most remarkable missions ever known in New York. He is William Wilkinson, a street preacher. Five days a week he has stood at noon hour in front of the custom-house and those of every station of life have stopped in the middle of the temples of mammon to listen to him. He has made a great record. Hundreds of prominent men in the financial world count themselves as his parishioners and they represent various creeds—Protestant, Catholic and Hebrew.

Wilkinson is a general missionary of the Protestant Episcopal church, his headquarters being at Grace church, where the expense of maintaining the evangelist in this city.

He is well known in the west and represented Minneapolis when supplies were sent to San Francisco.

TELEPHONE AND CHARCOAL TO IMPERSONATE SPIRITS TO GET HER HUSBAND

Clever Scheme Worked in So-Called Occult Performances That Bewitches Othman.

(Journal Special Service.)

New York, Sept. 14.—That a telephone and charcoal paper are the simple means used by "The Marvellous Fairy" to give their so-called occult performance that has been bewildering New Yorkers all summer at Hammerstein's was alleged in the supreme court today. Two former employees of the Fairy gull, and at a rival playhouse started to expose the Fairy's performance. An injunction suit by the Fairy brought all concerned into court.

Herbert Lambourne and Louis Granak, the defendant ex-employees and exposers told the court all about how Eva Fay, assisted by John Fay, was enabled to answer questions written by the audience. The defendants declared, notes were distributed for the audience to use in writing queries. When the sheet was written on it was torn off by the questioner and the pad handed back to the attendant.

The paper was of such a sort that by rubbing charcoal on the next sheet the lines of writing would appear. These slips were sent down to a confederate in the basement. He telephoned them to Mrs. Fay, who sat upon the stage. The woman was shrouded with a heavy veil, under which she was able to receive telephone messages undetected.

ACTION TAKEN

believed. President Palma handed in his resignation. This move is supposed to have been made by Palma in the interests of peace. The reports have it that the former president is greatly discouraged by the many defeats met by his men at the hands of the insurgents and is disturbed by the report, which came to him direct, that he was marked for assassination.

Colwell as Referee.

Two rebel commissioners went aboard the Deseret today, and in a conference with Admiral Colwell asked him to act as referee to restore peace. The admiral informed them that he could not accept the post without official orders to that effect from Washington. The loyalists are also urging that Admiral Colwell act as referee in the settlement of the Cuban war, and the matter has been taken up with Washington.

General Castillo, commander of the insurgents at Havana, has asked Admiral Colwell to resign, and offer to surrender their entire forces if the Americans will guarantee them a fair trial. Admiral Colwell has declined the suggestion that the Washington government be notified.

Order Brought to Order.

Zayas, according to the statement of intelligence here, had cut telegrams to all insurgent leaders this morning, ordering them to cease fighting, as he was negotiating with the American commander for their surrender to the American authorities. These messages are expected to reach the rebel leaders within a short time and put an end to the small battles which are occurring throughout the island.

Insurgents in command of the forces in the interior have sent messages to Admiral Colwell asking if they will be protected if they come into Havana to discuss the situation and terms upon which they will be willing to accept a truce. In their messages they officially deny the reports that their men are destroying sugar plantations.

PREPARE FOR WAR

(Journal Special Service.)

President holds Cabinet Meeting and Troops are Ordered to Cuba.

Oyster Bay, Sept. 14.—Cutting short his vacation in Canada, Secretary Taft in answer to a summons from President Roosevelt, arrived in Oyster Bay this afternoon and immediately went into conference with the president. Secretary Taft is expected to return to Washington tomorrow for a discussion of the Cuban situation. As a result warships were ordered to Cuba and troops concentrated for shipment in emergencies.

The government is securing options on transports in New York, and it is probable, which indicates that if they are needed troops will be sent from these points. The eastern division has just completed a hard school of instruction and it is probable that all available marines will be used before any troops are dispatched to the island.

There is a question whether or not Mr. Steyer, American minister at Cuba, may be asked to reprimand for causing the landing of the marines on the island. It is pointed out that a naval commander has no recourse when an American diplomatic agent asks for a landing force, but must send them as requested. This is held, clearly, Admiral Colwell of any blame in the matter and places the entire matter on Steyer's shoulders.

Secretary Bonaparte this morning stated that the present war in Cuba is of interest to the United States as the interests of many Americans are placed in jeopardy. He said: "American interests in Cuba are jeopardized. Cuba at the present time offers a poor place as could be found for the investment of money. Every American interest will be protected at any cost and I do not believe that will be at all difficult."

He refused to discuss the probability of American intervention, but denied that Admiral Colwell had been ordered by the government to withdraw his sailors from the island.

HIBERNIA BANK RUN IS BEING CHECKED

(Journal Special Service.)

San Francisco, Sept. 14.—When the Hibernia bank opened its doors this morning a long line of depositors was again on hand waiting to withdraw their money. The number, however, was not so great as on the previous days and caused the run on the bank to cease. It will meet all demands. Many of those in line brought funds for deposit and active steps are being taken by the bank officials to run down the persons responsible for the rumors that caused the run.

The Hibernia bank officials state that while the run continues the amounts withdrawn are only 75 per cent of those yesterday. The depositors taking out only a portion of their accounts. The deposits are normal and the bank can stand an indefinite run.

NIECE OF TREPPOFF IS RABID ANARCHIST

St. Petersburg, Sept. 14.—The woman who in Switzerland killed a Frenchman, striking him for Dr. Durovov, has been identified as a niece of General Trepooff, who tried to kill the general a year ago and was banished at that time.

WOMAN ENTER SALOON TO GET HER HUSBAND

And Bartender Cannot Throw Her Out, Decides Judge Cameron in Municipal Court.

There is no law to prevent a wife from going into a saloon after her drunken husband. And while there the law will protect her against brutal bartenders. Wives, take notice.

This fact was established in the municipal court this morning, at which time a goodly share of the population of Fulton was present to testify in the case of the city against Chris Goss for an assault committed upon Mrs. Louisa Jaeger.

Goss runs a saloon at Fulton and Jaeger is the head of a family at which her man Thomas, a second second fiddle, Thomas loves beer and a few evenings ago he entered the Goss saloon in an intoxicated condition.

But the head of the house was on the trail of the erring Thomas. She came up to him as he was in the midst of a mug of beer, grabbed him by the arm and called upon him to come home.

At that moment Goss was struck with the extreme dignity of the law and felt himself called upon to enforce the ordinance against women entering saloons. Running around the bar, he seized Mrs. Jaeger and threw her bodily out of the door, allowing Thomas to remain.

Goss' plea was that he wanted to enforce the law. Deputy City Attorney Fitzgerald declared that there is no law to prevent a decent woman from going anywhere she pleased. Judge Cameron concurred and Goss was fined $10.

MONUMENT UNVEILED

He spoke in his usual earnest and emphatic way and frequently was applauded. Justice Day was followed by Senator Dennis, who spoke at considerable length and extolled President McKinley. Both addresses were sincere eulogies of the character, devoted fealty to country and home and the courageous qualities of the martyr whose status served to inspire the sentiment.

The monument unveiled today takes first rank for artistic beauty among the many that have been erected to the memory of President McKinley. The memorial consists of three central figures, two groups and the statue of the president in the middle. On one side is "Peace" and on the other "Prosperity," representing in bronze two cardinal principles for which the dead president stood. When he received the wounds which resulted in his death he was talking prosperity and peace. The statue represents him as he appeared standing before the people at Buffalo, and a large part of the text of his last address is in relief. The statue is warmly commended by those who were most closely acquainted with Mr. McKinley. It was with some difficulty and only after months of study that the sculptor felt satisfied that he had truly reproduced the president in the pose that was characteristic of him and one so well known to the people of the entire country.

Conspicuous Location.

The group of bronzes portrays a child and its mother in an early pose apparently listening to what the speaker is saying. It is a bronze statue of a typical American woman. The figure of Prosperity shows a father and an apprentice, both listening to the remarks of the president. The statue of the president and the two groups are of bronze and the entire memorial stands upon a handsome granite base, the sides of which bear suitable inscriptions. The location of the monument is a conspicuous one, being directly in front of the main entrance to the state capitol.

GOVERNOR HOT

In conclusion the governor informed the secretary of state that inasmuch as the secretary of state had declined to call on the railways to file statements, although such was his apparent duty under the law, the governor would do it himself.

Governor Talks of Aduis.

When asked this morning about his intentions, Governor Chamberlain said: "Of course I cannot tell what the railways will do. Some of them may file statements. As for those that refuse, the law authorizes me to direct the prosecuting attorneys of the various districts to enforce payment of the penalty. This will be done. Prosecutions shall be instituted against every company that refuses to comply and the suits will be vigorously pressed in order to determine the status of the law as soon as possible."

The compilers of the code of 1902 referred to by the governor in his letter to Secretary Dunbar are Judge Charles E. Bellinger, now deceased, and W. W. Cotton, then and now attorney of R. O. & N. Co. It is considered significant that Bellinger and Cotton retained sections 5122 and 5123 in their code four years after the passage of the act of October 10, 1902. Further than this there has been no legislation since 1888 directly specifying sections 5122 and 5123, and the code of 1902, referring to the act of 1888, as set forth in Hill's code, says in a footnote: "The entire chapter is not repealed, notwithstanding the recital to that effect in the repealing act of October 10, 1898."

The outcome of the demand on the railways for statements may be a pretty lean battle, but the governor stands by the code and believes that the courts will sustain him.

yesterday with his ax lopped off the political heads of William C. Wager, superintendent of police in Bronx, and Michael Mangin, general foreman in the same department, and Dr. Gerard Shell, superintendent of health in Bronx.

The bitterness continues to increase in the fight in the Bronx district and there is every indication that there will be serious clashes before primary day.

MILLARD MAURY IS LOST NEAR MEDFORD

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Medford, O., Sept. 14.—A searching party is looking for the body of Millard Maury, supposed to have come to his death while attempting to cross the field between Medford and his home farm Wednesday night. While driving home alone in the darkness he was struck by the buggy by striking a power line pole and evidently had turned the horse loose and started to walk home. The horse returned home yesterday. The most direct route home is across the field and it is feared he has perished, having a weak heart.
