Public May Be Given a Chance to Show Whether His Policy Is Sustained

Non-Exclusive Charter, Lawyers lay, Does Not Allow Roads to inter City on Hill Tracks, and Other Cuts Across Peninsula May Be Expected.

Mayor Lane's overruled vete of the Fortland & Seattle Railroad company's franching granting exclusive rights of way fet the proposed cut through the streets across the peninsula is being witchy discussed as the time limit of the referendum on the question draws near. It is haid that if the mayor's vete, which was overridden by the council, in not austained by the people the result some day will be another mash through the peninsula and another mash through the peninsula and another program to admit a desired railway line—possibly the Chicago, Milwankee & St. Paul—from the morth or cast.

"I read the mayor's vete with minch interest and I think it should have been sustained." said Richard W. Montague. The matter is of such large importance that I believe it should be put up to a vote of the respit, on the question of sustaining the mayor's vete. His position is the right thing, for the utility and hould be supported. The matter the should be supported. The business interests of Portland did not want another bridge across the Williamste, river within the city limits, but they had to accept it in order to get the Hill railroad lines into the city. They do not want still another bridge in the future, nor another gash across the peninsula, and there will be no necessity for it unless the Hill lines are permitted to rest in the enjoyment of exclusive rights to the trackage that is to carry their trains across the peninsula and into the new Williamette river bridge."

What Lawyers day,
In some quarters it has been believed that the government grant of a non-exclusive charter for the new railway bridge carried with it the implied way bridge carried with it the implied right for any other railroad company to use not only the bridge but the trackage forming the approach to the bridge. Lawyers say this is not a correct assumption and that the next railroad the desires to cross the Willamette er into West Portland will have to make another gash or a tunnel through the peninsula to reach the bridge that is being built by the Hill lines at this point.

Decision Favors Government in Its Case Against Port of Portland Commission

Judge Wolverton Hands Down Opinion That Establishes Precedent in Rulings of Admiralty Cases in This Judicial Dis-

an opinion this morning in the famous libel suit of the United States against the Port of Portland. The decision es-tablishes a precedent in the rulings in admiralty cases in this district, in that admiralty cases in this district, in that the sovereignty of the government is established over what has heretofore been popularly supposed to be the right of the state's public corporations to be immune from recovery of damage.

The direct result of the decision of the court is that the government can proceed with its suit and obtain damages from the Port of Portland if it can be shown that the latter's employes were negligent in regard to the federal rulings which govern the carrying of lights upon the tug John McCraken and the dredge Columbia, at the time they ran into and sank the lighthouse tender Mansanita in the Columbia river October E, 1905.

tender Manzanita in the Columbia river October 5, 1905.

The suit has attracted national attention and has been clonely followed in its course by lawyers and juriats as well as by officials of the navy and treasury departments. Many suits of similar nature have been tried in the admiralty courts, but this is the first one in which a decision has been granted in this district in which the effect of the decision has been to set aside the state's rights where the lines of contention have been so closely drawn between the federal government and the state.
