MARRIAGE KEPT SECRET NINE YEARS

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Chicago, Oct. 11.—Evened up again, each with two games to their credit, the Cubs and White Sox battled today for the fifth game, and if the winners today do not also carry away tomorrow's contest the seventh game will be necessary. Many expect that the seventh will have to be played, for so far the two teams have fought it out on even terms.

The weather man saw fit to dish up for the teams a nice warm, balmy, sunny afternoon, in fact it was ideal ball weather and the best the champions have had since their last holiday. The fact that the kids had no school today caused an increased attendance.

The gates closed at 1:30 o'clock, after 23,000 persons had been admitted, nearly half as many more were outside fighting to get to the ticket window. Newspapers, for whom was provided a special gate, had to fight more than half an hour before they were admitted to the grounds, no games was the crowd around the grounds.

The rest of the rosters drowned all other noise. The fans from the board of trade were early at the grounds, and they occupied the seats in the grandstand. They came into the grounds leading two live bear cubs as mascots for the Nationals.

Manager Jones says that if Walsh wins today's game he will use Alcock tomorrow and Walsh again on Monday. He added that he was in a bad plight about a shortstop, neither George Davis nor Tannehill being in shape. The batteries announced today were Walsh and Sullivan for the White Sox and Ruelbach and Kling for the Cubs.

The batting order today was as follows: Hahn, cf.; Jones, cf.; Isbell, 2b.; Rube, 3b.; Donohue, 1b.; Dougherty, if.; Davis, ss.; Sullivan, c.; Walsh, p.

Nationals—Hoffman, cf.; Sheppard, 1b.; Schultz, cf.; Chavez, 1b.; Steinfield, 2b.; Tinker, ss.; Evans, 3b.; Kling, c.; Ruelbach, p.

George Davis was far today from being in as good shape as he was yesterday, yet he went short. The Nationals when they appeared on the field brought with them two black bear cubs and they created no end of excitement and amusement. They quarreled and snuggled amusingly and the crowd roared at the antics of the animals.

When the game was called the crowd outside of the gates of the stadium for admittance had swelled to 15,000 persons and another squad of officers had to be called to preserve order. The cheers of the crowd inside told those on the outside that the game had started, and they started to get inside made a grand rush for the gates in which persons were pushed and knocked down and it is feared that a number have been injured. The cops charged on the ground and attempted to break up the mob at the gates.

The White Sox started in at the first and drew a tally. Hahn, the first hitter, combed a single and was sacrificed to second by Jones, who whiffed at the next. Isbell ripped off a double to right field, which scored Hahn. Davis forced Isbell, and Rube, still with his batting eye good, sent Isbell to left field, good for two runs. Donohue drew a base and this filled the bases and the grandstand and bleachers were in a roar. Dougherty came up and was urged to make good, but he went to the pen and hit into a double play. Evers to Chance. The decision at first base was one that was very much off color and the crowd let loose some awful howls.

Not to be sidetracked in the opening the Cubs started to touch Mr. Walsh. Hoffman and Sheek sacrificed to Donohue. Schultz laid down a single but Hoffman was unable to get away from second. Walsh curled a close one up to Chance, who pretended he had hit him and Johnstone favored him. This filled the bases. Steinfield hit a slow one and forced Chance, but let it in one and forced Chance, but let it in one and forced Chance.

After blowing up in the first the Sox settled down and held the Cubs safe in the second, and being firm the Americans started to get on top. Tinker for the lead of the Cubs, and they drove Ruelbach to the horse blankets. Isbell, the first batter for the Sox up in the third, drove out a liner good for two bases, and George Davis following tore off another double that scored Isbell. Rube Ruelbach was then withdrawn and Pfeiffer went on the hurling hill and tried to stop the onslaught of the White Sox. Rube whiffed at three speedy ones and Donohue drew a hit, but was forced by Dougherty. Jiggs Evers to Tinker. Davis and Dougherty worked the double steal to perfection, and Sullivan fanned and the inning ended with honors even, each side having three runs.

The complainant in the case is W. W. Frilinger, of the Smith Premier Typewriter company, who claims that Frilinger rented two machines from him and subsequently sold them. Frilinger's alleged method was to inform the agency that his wife was studying stenography and typewriting and to practice upon it. HEARST TICKET IN MCGARRENS CITY

Independence League Names Judicial Ticket for Second Department—Boss in Rage.

ENTIRE ORGANIZATION TO VOTE FOR HUGHES

Hearst Contributes Liberally to Local Charity at Elmira—Republicans to Push Campaign Unceasingly—Overconfident of Victory.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) New York, Oct. 11.—Hearst's Independence League judicial ticket for second department was filed with the secretary of state at Albany yesterday. When the news of this reached Brooklyn the anger of the Democratic district leaders was great. McGarran held a conference with one of his lieutenants, and at the conclusion it was learned that definite plans of action had been agreed upon.

It is understood McGarran intends to call a meeting of the Kings county Democratic committee for tonight to place the matter before the local Democracy.

It is the plan to pass a resolution so that the local organization may go on record and its regularity may not be impeached, endorsing the action of the Buffalo convention and also the ticket nominated at Buffalo.

This party ticket will be performed, it is said, with the understanding that the Brooklyn Democratic machine will support Hughes at the polls.

At Elmira, Hearst contributed liberally to local charity when solicited. Later he informed an Elmira paper that he would give $1,000 more to charity if it could be proved, as has been asserted, that he employed Chinese labor, or owned, directly or indirectly, any property on which Chinese labor was employed. The offer was accepted.

Managers of the Republican campaign are arranging to push forward their work with great vigor. From now on the Hughes forces will work unceasingly. The Republicans feel so sure of defeating Hearst that both Chairman Woodruff and Parsons have felt it necessary to warn the opponents of Hearst against the danger of overconfidence. Last night Woodruff coached 80 stump speakers, who are to be sent all over the state.

Candidate Hearst spoke at Elmira yesterday afternoon and at Ithaca last evening. Candidate Hughes spoke at Penn Yan yesterday and at Seneca Falls last night.
