

MILLER TELLS OF LIFE IN JAPAN

Community Idea as Opposed to Individualism Controlling Feature in Islands.

PERSONS NOT WANTED TAKE THEIR OWN LIVES

Many Students Jumped Into Volcanoes This Summer When Flunked at Examinations—Families Arrange Marriages.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) University of Oregon, Eugene, Oct. 24.—(Special-General) H. B. Miller...

"The atmosphere of Japan and their civilization is entirely different from our own... It is not a single person, but a part of his family, never thinking of personal obligations, but always of his family."

"It is very hard for us to understand this group idea, and the Japanese do not understand our individualistic one."

"When a young man becomes of a marriageable age the family takes the matter up and looks over the village for a suitable maid."

"The great industries of Japan are controlled by the government, so that when any need is seen it is at once supplied."

"When any man becomes out of harmony with the group—individuals of the village—initiates suicide."
