

WERE IN GALE OFF COLUMBIA RIVER

Steamers Barracouta and Alliance Make Port After Riding Out Storm.

FOUR-MASTED SHIP SEEN NEAR TILLAMOOK ROCK

Nothing Heard From the British Bark Iverna Which Is Now Fully Three Days Off the Mouth of the River—Steamers Drifted.

The steamers Barracouta and Alliance arrived in the harbor this morning after having rode out the terrific gale that swept off the mouth of the Columbia river yesterday and the officers of both report having been in the midst of the blow. Both vessels escaped damage, although they were roughly handled by the elements. The gale attained a maximum velocity of 46 miles an hour and during that time both vessels were outside waiting for the flood tide to smooth the bar, which was breaking very violently.

The Alliance evidently fared the worst because Captain Kelly reports that although he held her full steam ahead against the southerly wind she drifted 15 miles northward of the river during one of the squalls. She arrived off the river at 7 o'clock yesterday morning and crossed in on the flood tide at 1 in the afternoon. The Barracouta went in on the same tide after having hung around in the vicinity of Tillamook lighthouse and the light-ship. Captain Doren says the Barracouta stood the buffeting of the waves well and he did not believe that the vessel was a Britisher and laden. The weather was very thick, however, so that at times it was impossible to see farther than a ship's length. However, he is certain that she was not the bark Iverna. The Barracouta left San Francisco last Saturday with a very light cargo, owing to the fact that the big liner Astec had cleared a couple of days before with 5,500 tons for this port.

Captain Kelly says the Alliance met rough weather on the entire trip this time. From the Columbia river to Coos Bay she bucked the southeaster that had commenced blowing at that time and on her way back the gale kicked up such a sea behind her that she not only plunged but got the corkerwork motion with the result that many of the 23 passengers took to their berths.

The Alliance brought a full cargo, consisting chiefly of dairy products, mill material and salmon. She will sail for Coos Bay tomorrow night.

CEMENT CARRIER COMING

Wagon, Wilson & Co. say British Bark on March at Astoria.

The British bark Dalgond on the berth at Astoria for Portland. She will load general cargo and cement. The tug-boat is a large vessel of 2,500 tons registered and will carry in the neighborhood of 2,500 tons of cargo.

This is the first ship loaded on the berth in Europe for the Pacific coast for several days, although there is a big demand for cement carriers for this coast. Importers say that it is difficult to not only obtain vessels, but the cement factories are so crowded with orders that it is not the easiest matter to secure the material.

ELDER IS NOW READY

Jack Peterson's Steamer Will Sail for San Francisco Next Wednesday.

The steamer George W. Elder is now practically ready for service. She was announced this morning that she will sail from Martin's dock in North Portland for San Francisco and way points next Wednesday night, carrying freight and passengers. She will alternate with the steamer Roanoke of the North

WATCH BULLETINS IN THE RAIN

Crowds Surge About Journal Office to Learn Story of Hughes-Hearst Battle.

BIG SEARCHLIGHT TELLS TALE TO THE WATCHERS

Under Dripping Awnings and Umbrellas People Gaze at Stereoscopic Bulletins Displayed by the Journal to Get Correct Returns.

Rain had no power to quench the interest in the New York election returns last night and until the last bulletin had been received eager groups stood in the drenching downpour or huddled under dripping awnings watching the bulletins and scanning the heavens for the signal flashed forth by the Journal's big searchlight on top of the Goodnough building.

Cheers were few and far between, but the interest was intense and held the watchers until the late bulletins pointed to the fact that Hughes had won the battle over Hearst and thus would give New York another four years of Republican government.

The Journal's searchlight, which reached its long, luminous finger to the east or the west as the New York returns swung to Hughes or Hearst, was a great success during the early part of the night as its bright ray cut through the falling rain and made a signal which could be seen from every part of the city. It gave notice of the progress of events to thousands of watchers in their homes until late in the evening when an unfortunate accident to the mechanism put it out of commission.

During the early evening the light pointed to the west for Hearst, as justified by the returns which estimated Hearst's majority in five figures. When the up state returns swung the weight of the votes to Hughes the light veered to the eastward, where it remained stationary until the Hearst gains in Brooklyn and Manhattan alarmed the New York Republicans and their reports indicated a Hearst victory. A few minutes after this the returns showed a steady drift to Hughes and as the light was about to swing to the east, the apparatus broke, forcing its discontinuance. The Journal bulletin, however, kept the crowds informed until the last returns were received and the election of Hughes was assured.

In spite of the steady drenching rain which swept the streets and washed curb-deep streams down the gutters the crowds were good natured and hung to their tasks of watching the boards with a grim determination to be in at the finish in spite of the weather. Some betting was indulged in but as a general thing the money had been put up before the reports began to come and the whole interest of the watchers was concentrated on the problem of whether their money was lost or won. The crowds gradually dwindled but still at 10:15 o'clock a goodly number of the loyal wire remain in evidence when the Journal bulletin announced that the returns justified the statement that there was no longer any doubt of the success of Hughes.

Pianos for Cash Only

The Reed-French Piano Company has planned a Piano Selling Event which will take much of the wind from Retailers' sails

The Beautiful Cable-Nelson Piano—famous throughout the Central States—makes an initial bow in Portland—The Reed-French Co. are its sponsors—$260 spot cash for one of America's Greatest Pianos.

We want to tell you a little about the Cable-Nelson piano and how we came to have it.

About a month ago our eastern office made a deal with the Cable-Nelson Co. of Chicago wherein it was agreed that the Reed-French Co. would act as sponsor for the Cable-Nelson piano in the Northwest, provided they would let the Reed-French Co. sell the piano in their own way.

We do not want to bother you now with descriptions and all that sort of thing, but the facts are: The Cable-Nelson piano is one of the most exquisite pianos in touch, tone and general appearance ever shown in Portland. We doubt there is a piano in the world worth the money the Cable-Nelson is (price considered).

Our store is full of Cable-Nelson pianos (three cars having come in since 8 o'clock yesterday morning), some in richest mahogany—others in the beautiful Circassian walnuts, and still others in latest Flemish oak effects.

The Cable-Nelson piano on retail floors sells throughout the east for four hundred and fifty dollars, and no one doubts the getting of his money's worth.

The Cable-Nelson Co. has consented for us to sell three cars of their very finest product without profit to themselves, the one condition being that they must be sold for cash; it would be foolish to sell an instrument without profit and then distribute the terms for payment over a period of months when they already have the cash in hand—so beginning today and for probably a week to come we will offer these splendid Cable-Nelson Pianos at a price retail dealers have never dared make—$260 is the spot cash price.

Wait a minute: After you have purchased the instrument if you say it is not the best piano you ever knew for the money, then return the piano and get your money. This is the Reed-French way—it is the fair way.

Pianos delivered at any railroad point in Washington or Oregon for one half freight rate extra. Store open nights.
