GALENA REPORTED WRECKED

British Bark Bound for Portland Is Driven Ashore at Clatsop Spit at an Early Hour This Morning

A telegram telling of the wreck of the British bark Galena on Clatsop spit today was received by the weather bureau here this afternoon. All wires to Hammond, where the lifesaving station is situated, are down, and it is impossible to learn the details of the accident.

Observer Jones at North Head is unable to see across the mouth of the river on account of the mist. There has been a heavy sea running all day. The highest velocity of the wind at North Head today has been 46 miles an hour. At 2 o'clock this afternoon the wind was 36 miles an hour.

The British bark Galena sailed from Junin, on the west coast of South America, on September 15, bound for the Columbia. She is in charge of Captain Howell. Her home port is Liverpool and she is owned by T. Shute. She was built in 1890 and is of 2,119 net tons. Her dimensions are: Length, 292 feet; beam, 42 feet; depth, 24 feet. She is well-known here, having carried wheat to Europe many times.

According to the best obtainable information the Galena was driven ashore near where the British bark Peter Iredale piled up a few weeks ago, and where the British ship Carnsmore stranded about 20 years ago. Like the Iredale she was evidently caught in the heavy gale from the south and carried so near shore by the current that before the officers discovered her position she refused to answer her helm because of the shallow water.

The life-saving station at Hammond is about four miles from the scene of the wreck and the lifesavers will be able to reach the wreck with little trouble since a new road has been cut through the sparsely timbered country. The stretch of beach at this particular point is very wide during low water so that if the vessel went on the sands at high tide it will be almost possible for the crew to walk ashore from the wreck should they decide to abandon her.

Several members of the crew of the Peter Iredale had been camped on the beach near the wreck guarding the property taken ashore shortly after the bark went ashore, and it is likely that they rushed to the assistance of the crew of the Galena as soon as they discovered her coming ashore.

The Galena is under charter to Balfour, Guthrie & Co. to carry wheat to Europe.

Clatsop spit is on the south side of the mouth of the Columbia. The jetty extends across it. Since the construction of the jetty the sand and silt carried down the river have formed this spit, pushing the high water mark further out into the ocean.

The storm of last night and today damaged the wires so seriously that no telephone connection below Westport can be made. The Western Union line to Astoria is working with difficulty, while that of the Postal company is out of business.

PAPER IS UNFAIR SAY MERCHANTS

Are Up in Arms Against Story That Barrel Scales Are Proved Incorrect.

Members of the Portland Retail Grocers' association were up in arms today when they read the story in this morning's Oregonian in regard to the test that was to be made at their meeting last night to determine the accuracy of a certain make of scales which a rival company's agent has attempted to prove incorrect. Charles B. Merrick, secretary of the association, said this morning:

"The story in the Oregonian was decidedly unfair to the merchants. C. C. Claggett has been making his assertions to the effect that barrel computing scales measure incorrectly so far as commercial values are concerned. He made the assertion at one of our meetings three weeks ago. We asked him to prove it at the time and he refused to do so. We then asked him to be on hand the next night and we would have everything ready for a test then. He refused, but last night came to the meeting with an Oregonian reporter and a set of scales.

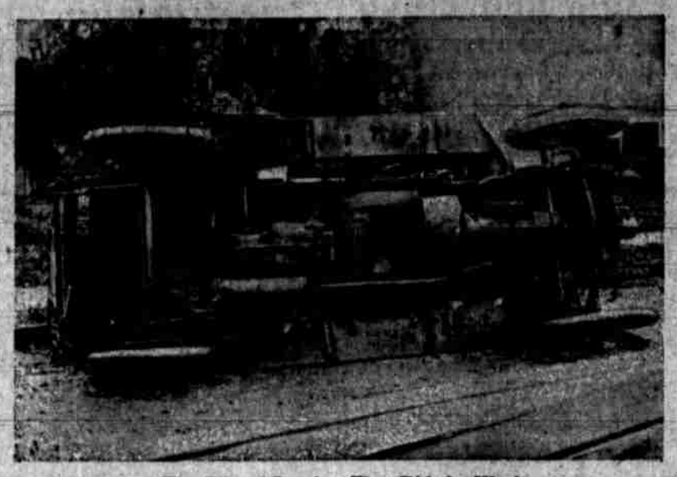
"He wanted to make the test on the scales he brought with him, but we did not deem that fair to his rival and a committee was appointed which selected a set from a local grocer. These were sent for and Claggett was told to go ahead with his test.

"He placed the scales on a low table so that the figures would be below a level with the eyes of a man standing. When A. C. Couch, one of the committee, stooped so that his eyes were directly opposite the figures on the dial, Claggett objected. Then he objected to another member of the committee serving because he uses the scales in question at his store. The members did not take kindly to the methods of Claggett and his insinuations as to the honesty of the member, and they voted to end the test.

"Nearly three fourths of the retailers in Portland use the scales which Claggett says are incorrect and would have been glad to have them shown inaccurate if it could be done.

"Claggett has used the same methods in other cities that he is using here and I have letters from places he referred us to where the barrel scales are disbarred. These letters are from retailers' associations, city inspectors of scales and reputable merchants and were directly opposite to the statements made by Claggett. In addition we have the report made at Washington as to the accuracy of the scales and they also flatly contradicted Claggett's statements. We have thoroughly investigated this matter and it is the universal belief among the dealers that Claggett intentionally misrepresented matters to us for the purpose of securing our business. We decided at our meeting last night that in the future no action would be taken by the association in regard to scales, but to let the merchants fight it out with the scales agents themselves."

PILE OF LUMBER BRINGS AUTO PARTY TO SAD, SUDDEN STOP



The Pile of Lumber That Did the Work.

An innocently intentioned pile of lumber cut short at least one midnight trip to the Twelve-Mile house in a cozy motor car. Not one of the four merrymakers was hurt, but after being spilled into a heterogeneous mass in the inverted top of the car they decided that they had had fun enough for at least one rainy November evening.

The names of the jolly four are zealously guarded. Suffice it to say that two were women and two were men and that they engaged Rudolph Becker to drive them out to the Merrill resort in a big 60-horsepower machine.

To get to the Twelve-Mile house in an automobile—if you don't already know—you cross the Morrison street bridge and travel east to Twentieth, then north to the Base Line road. That was the way Rudolph Becker took his four passengers last night.

But while bowling along between East Alder and East Washington streets the pleasure excursion suddenly ended. The passengers felt themselves lifted skyward, then the parachute dropped and after that they all failed to recognize each other for a few minutes. The auto had tried to climb over a pile of lumber that lay in the street. It had got part way up, then had lost its balance and now lay kicking frantically on its side.

When each of the passengers had detached him or herself from the mass and was able to identify him or herself it was found that not a bone had been broken nor a scratch of consequence sustained. There was no explosion and even the auto was little damaged beyond the smashing of the glass windbreak. It was midnight, but Becker succeeded in finding a telephone. Then came a hack and the party was quickly bundled back down town.

Becker took Attorney C. M. Idleman to the scene early this morning and the two measured the width of the street as well as the width of the lumber pile. The street was found to be 31 feet wide and the pile of lumber to take up 14 feet of it. Becker may ask damages of the person responsible for the obstruction, but it is not likely that he will sue, for then the names of the merrymakers would be revealed to the world.

The big auto remained on its side in the middle of the street until late in the day.

LIVESTOCK SHOW FOR PORTLAND

Tom Richardson Goes East Tonight to Interest Officials in the Scheme.

With the purpose of interesting eastern livestock men in the proposed livestock show at Portland next year, Tom Richardson, manager of the Portland Commercial club, will leave tonight for St. Paul, Minneapolis, Chicago and Kansas City. On reaching the last-named place he will attend the Trans-Mississippi congress as a Portland representative. At Chicago he will confer with W. E. Skinner, secretary of the International Livestock association. Mr. Richardson said:

"Portland is the natural center of the Pacific northwest livestock interests, and it is believed a great success can be made of a livestock show here. While the Portland Commercial club has not yet placed its indorsement on the project, and will not do so until it learns the complete details of the proposition, it is probable that the undertaking will have the backing of the club and of Portland's business interests.

"The idea is to make the Portland show one of a series, on a western and eastern circuit, with close relations to the International Livestock association. In this manner a number of similar shows can be held in the principal western cities, and many of the exhibitors and their prize winning cattle, hogs, sheep and horses would be able to move along from one show to another. The livestock show at the St. Louis exposition was not profitable to the exhibitors for the reason that those far away were obliged to make a long and expensive trip with no intermediate shows to divide the expense."

It is argued that the Portland show, given as one of a circuit, would be most likely to score a great success from the standpoint of public interest, and also be more satisfactory financially to the livestock men.

A Bold Step.

To overcome the well-grounded and reasonable objections of the more intelligent to the use of secret, medicinal compounds, Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., some time ago, decided to make a bold departure from the usual course pursued by the makers of put-up medicines for domestic use, and so has published broadcast and openly to the whole world, a full and complete list of all the ingredients entering into the composition of his widely celebrated medicines. Thus he has taken his numerous patrons and patients into his full confidence. Thus too he has removed his medicines from among secret nostrums of doubtful merits, and made them Remedies of Known Composition.

By this bold step Dr. Pierce has shown that his formulas are of such excellence that he is not afraid to subject them to the fullest scrutiny.

Not only does the wrapper of every bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, the famous medicine for weak stomach, torpid liver or biliousness and all catarrhal diseases wherever located, have printed upon it, in plain English, a full and complete list of all the ingredients composing it, but a small book has been compiled from numerous standard medical works, of all the different schools of practice, containing very numerous extracts from the writings of leading practitioners of medicine, endorsing in the strongest possible terms, each and every ingredient contained in Dr. Pierce's medicines. One of these little books will be mailed free to any one sending address on postal card or by letter, to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., and requesting the same. From this little book it will be learned that Dr. Pierce's medicines contain no alcohol, narcotics, mineral agents or other poisonous or injurious agents and that they are made from native, medicinal roots of great value; also that some of the most valuable ingredients contained in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for weak, nervous, over-worked, "run-down," nervous and debilitated women, were employed, long years ago, by the Indians for similar ailments affecting their squaws. In fact, one of the most valuable medicinal plants entering into the composition of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription was known to the Indians as "Squaw-Weed." Our knowledge of the uses of not a few of our most valuable native, medicinal plants was gained from the Indians.

As made up by improved and exact processes, the "Favorite Prescription" is a most efficient remedy for regulating all the womanly functions, correcting displacements, as prolapsus, anteversion and retroversion, overcoming painful periods, toning up the nerves and bringing about a perfect state of health. Sold by all dealers in medicines.

GROCERS TO FORM STATE SOCIETY

Among Purposes Will Be to Secure Food Laws and Protection From Bad Debts.

Grocers of Oregon are preparing to organize a state association for their mutual benefit, and it is expected that the organization will be completed by January.

Already dealers from many cities have signified their willingness to join in the movement and it is thought by Portland men that by January all of the following cities will be included in the association: Albany, Astoria, Ashland, Baker City, Corvallis, Dallas, Eugene, Forest Grove, Grants Pass, Heppner, Hood River, La Grande, McMinnville, Marshfield, Medford, Oregon City, Pendleton, Roseburg, Salem, Sumpter and The Dalles.

Similar organizations have been formed in neighboring states which have resulted in much good to the dealers and to the customers as well. California, Washington, Utah and Colorado have strong associations and have secured laws that have resulted in general good.

The objects of the organization are many and diversified. Some of the principal ones are to secure good pure food laws, better trade conditions, mutual insurance and to protect the members against men who make a practice of running up large bills and skipping to other parts of the state without paying them. A list of such men will be kept and forwarded to every member of the association.

Another purpose of the organization would be to fight the parcels-post law which the large mail-order houses are trying to have passed. Such a law was killed in the last congress, and the small dealers want it kept down. The law killed embodied a provision for raising the weight of a single package from four pounds to 200. This would allow clothing and large articles to be sent through the mail at a cost that could not be met by the small dealers buying by the carload and shipping by freight.

The mutual insurance law is another of the prominent features which is proving an incentive to merchants to join the organization. In Washington it has been shown that such insurance is cheaper to the members by 25 per cent than the regular insurance provided by the large independent companies.

A special feature of the pure-food laws that the members will work for is a provision for net weights. They will ask that the law be worded so that the label on each package shall state the ingredients and the exact weight, together with the name of the manufacturer. It has been shown in North Dakota, where they have such a law, that some of the paint concerns in the country have sold short measure, some of their packages having been shown to contain more than a fraction over 39 per cent less than the amount which they were supposed to have contained. The paint feature is a new one in the pure-food laws, but it will be insisted upon by the Oregon association.

The gentle game of Football will be played this season with unusual precautions.

If you want to watch the play, one of our new rain coats will play to the grandstand all right.

We have the best Fifteen-Dollar values ever shown in Portland.

JUDGE CAMERON TIES THE KNOT

Adjourns Court Long Enough to Marry W. J. Miller and Irene Cardwell.

William J. Miller, a clerk in a local railroad office, and Irene Cardwell, a dashing brunette, were married today by Judge Cameron in the office of Clerk Frank Dennis Hennessy of the police court. Following the ceremony Patrolmen Burke and Maloney and several of the detectives obtained a quantity of rice from a neighboring Chinese store and industriously pelted the happy couple as they left the building.

The wedding was as sudden as unexpected. Detective John Price while standing in front of the police station was approached by Miller, who inquired where he and the beautiful girl accompanying him could be married. Price answered that Judge Cameron would perform the ceremony and escorted the lovers to the court room.

Judge Cameron, upon being apprised of the mission of the young people, adjourned court for a few minutes and with Price acting as best man and Clerk Hennessy giving the bride away, the knot was tied in a hurry. When it was all over Mrs. Miller remarked, "I would never have been able to face a crowd in a church."

During the rice-throwing that followed the marriage Jailer Ben Branch happened to come out of police headquarters with a crowd of prisoners to chop some wood. "This is certainly fierce weather," said Branch turning up his coat collar after looking at the rice on the pavement. "It's hailing again."

Mr. and Mrs. Miller leave this afternoon on a brief bridal tour, but both refuse to reveal their destination.

CHINESE FINED FOR GAMBLING

Judge Cameron dealt a hard blow to Chinese gambling of all forms today when he imposed fines aggregating $285 on 11 Chinese arrested in the resort at 83 Second street for playing dominoes. The keeper of the place, Sing Lee, was fined $50, three escaped with fines of $7.50 each and the rest were compelled to pay over $15 each into the municipal coffers. Ah Gee, who acted as lookout for the gambling place, paid a $50 fine.

Attorney Spencer appeared for the Chinese and entered a plea of guilty for his clients. The evidence showed that the game in progress at the time of the raids was dominoes. In the first raid some money was found on the table, but the second time the police put in an appearance the wily Celestials undoubtedly acting on legal advice were playing for cigars. That this subterfuge failed is evidenced by the heavy fines imposed.

FEDERATION REFUSES TO ADMIT DELEGATES

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 13. — The Federation of Labor today kept out a number of delegations until their dues and assessments were paid, but admitted the Porto Ricans. They gave seats for the first time to farmers in admitting their Society of Equity. They listened to the executive committee's explanation of the foray into politics. The committee said it was necessary to enter politics and would continue, as ever, to dictate what tickets the laborers should vote.

Held to Grand Jury.

Jessie Cooper, a colored denizen of the North End, who is accused of having robbed John Brade on three different occasions within 24 hours, was bound over to the grand jury today by Judge Cameron in the sum of $750. The original charge against her was vagrancy, but the evidence showed plainly that there was probable cause for holding her on the felony charge.

Drouth Breaks Record.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Madras, Or., Nov. 13.—The oldest settlers of western Crook county say that the drouth just ended was the longest spell of dry weather they have ever known in this section, and they predict a long winter and a late, wet spring, which they say invariably follows a dry fall. The long five months' drouth has just been broken and a good rain has fallen, causing much rejoicing among the farmers.

J. P. O'BRIEN BACK FROM EASTERN TRIP

J. P. O'Brien, vice-president and general manager of the O. R. & N. company and the Southern Pacific lines in Oregon, reached home this morning after a month spent in the east on business and pleasure. His most enjoyable experience was a visit with his mother, who resides at Winsted, Connecticut. He attended the Hill-Harriman official conference at Chicago, where differences of the rival companies on matters of terminal grounds and joint trackage privileges were considered, and after the failure of this conference he went east, visiting New York and other cities.

The date for a gathering of the general managers of the Harriman railroad lines will probably be November 19 in Portland, and Mr. O'Brien has timed his return to suit this event. Five of the general managers of the Harriman roads will be here and will make an extended trip of inspection over the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific systems, to note and compare conditions.

THREE RUNAWAY LADS WILL BE SENT HOME

Ted McGrath, George Graham and Sam Gorman, 15-year-old lads, who ran away from Seattle, Washington, several days ago were taken into custody by the police last night and sent to the Boys' and Girls' Aid society pending advices from the northern authorities. The boys arrived here last Saturday seeking work, but were unsuccessful in securing employment. When arrested they had $1.20 and were considering the advisability of working their way to California to engage in the orange picking business. They will be held until an officer arrives from Seattle.

The date is not fixed and cannot be fixed until the preliminary proceedings now in court, be concluded. Jerome's assistants are laughing at the proposed defense. One said:

"Unwritten law may be proved in California, but it won't go in any court in New York. No lawyer could force it down the throats of eastern jurors."

PORTLAND MAN DISAPPEARS NEAR CLATSKANIE

Henry Goer Separated From His Companion While Hunting on Lower River.

Clatskanie, Or., Nov. 13.—The people of this vicinity and some persons from Mist, in Nehalem valley, are still searching for Henry Goer, the man that was lost in the woods about a week ago. Henry Goer is a German, who came down from Portland a week ago to hunt and look up a location for a shingle mill or some other small enterprise. He stopped with the Dippold family, who live about six miles south of Clatskanie. He and Harold Dippold started to hunt and fish for a day and became separated about noon. Dippold went home, and, on account of a very stormy evening, they gave up searching till the next day. Since that time the people of both Clatskanie and Mist have been searching continually, but no trace of him has been found.

Sheriff White and a posse of men are going out tomorrow to see what can be done. He may have met with foul play. There are some suspicions to that effect at present.

WANT REVENUE CUTTER TO SEARCH FOR IVERNA

The treasury department has been requested by the Portland chamber of commerce to send a revenue cutter in search of the missing British bark Iverna, long overdue at the Columbia.

Kerr, Gifford & Co., resident agents of the ship's owners, asked the chamber of commerce to make the request, and at noon today President Hoge wired the chief of the cutter service.

The Iverna sailed from Acapulco, July 12, and has been off the mouth of the Columbia for nearly a month, unable to pick up a pilot or tug and get in. It is feared that her crew is short of provisions.

HOOD RIVER ELECTION FRAUD CASES CALLED

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

The Dalles, Nov. 13.—Circuit court convened in this city yesterday with a pretty full docket of civil suits and three very interesting criminal cases. These latter are the persons arrested for perjury in connection with the general election in Hood River last June. No grand jury has been impaneled and the criminal cases will be tried on direct information by the district attorney. These will be desperately fought, for the temperance—or prohibition—element claims that with a fair election Hood River would have gone "dry" last June. On the contrary, the saloon men will attempt to prove that the result of the election was the expression of the popular will.

MOODY AND NOLAN LONG AT OUTS

Climax in Relations Supposed to Have Been Reached in Title Contest.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

The Dalles, Or., Nov. 13.—Malcolm A. Moody says that he knows nothing about the resignation of M. T. Nolan, register of the land office, and is absolutely reticent about the charges being made against Miss Anne Lang, receiver of the land office. When approached this morning, Moody pleaded ignorance and had nothing to say for publication. Miss Lang was equally ignorant of the resignation of Nolan or of the charges preferred against her and knew nothing about these matters, and had nothing to say and no statement to make.

For some time friction has existed between Mr. Moody and Mr. Nolan. Their relations have been far from genial, although Nolan owed his appointment to Moody. The climax was supposed to have been reached when the contest over Mr. Joseph Shearer's title to his home was heard before the register and receiver. Shearer had lived there over 34 years and considered that he had title to the same by lieu land selections of the state, with the land board, of which he had filed his application. When the selections were canceled by the government Mr. Shearer was not acquainted with the fact.

A new corporation recently came into existence, the Interior Development company, and filed scrip for the purchase of the land on which Sherar's bridge and home are located. In some manner Mr. Nolan, it is surmised, coupled the name of Moody with the new corporation, and this caused the breach between them to become irreparable.

SAFE BLOWN OPEN BY ROBBERS AT SPOKANE

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Spokane, Wash., Nov. 13.—The safe of the Spokane Ornamental works on Sprague avenue was blown to pieces at about 9:30 o'clock last night. He called upon them to surrender and one of the men drew a revolver and fired at the officer but missed. They then fled into the darkness and escaped. Nitroglycerin was use to blow the safe open which contained nothing but books and papers, which were destroyed.

Excitement continues and all are awaiting what the investigations will prove. The officials will give no information.
