

SENSATIONAL LOVE OF PLATTS

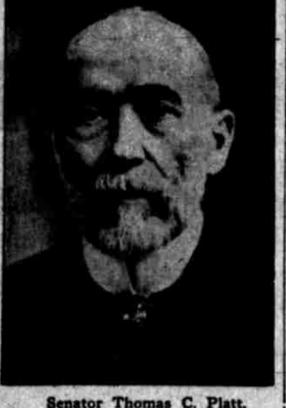

Aged Senator Kept Suite of Rooms Where He Met His Friends Secretly.

WOMAN HE MARRIED WAS ONE FREQUENT VISITOR

Landlady Declares That She Will Tell All She Knows Unless Solon's Wife Stops Talking in the Way She Has Done.

(Journal Special Service.) New York, Nov. 16.—Following the formal separation of Senator and Mrs. Thomas C. Platts, the Journal prints an astonishing story of Platts' love affairs, covering the last 15 years.

The Journal's story quote Mrs. Mary

Senator Thomas C. Platts.

Lamonte, landlady of a house in which Mrs. Platts is said to have surprised her husband in company with a handsome young woman yesterday, and in which Platts is said to have met various other women friends, including his present wife while Mrs. Lillian Janeway.

The Journal says Mrs. Lamonte declared she had been landlady of the house for 16 years, and during 15 years Platts had a suite of rooms in the house. Although ostensibly living at the Fifth Avenue hotel and the Hotel Gotham, Platts had also been in the habit of meeting a number of women there. He had secured government positions for Mrs. Lamonte's friends and kept her friends and her liberally supplied with railroad passes. Mrs. Lamonte also said:

"I know Mrs. Platts is trying to get a divorce from the senator and wants to get me into it. But if she goes on that way or does any more talking of the kind she has done, I'll show her up. Why, this Mrs. Janeway often came

AMATEUR BUNKO MAN LOSES SMALL FORTUNE

Dr. G. W. Biggars Is Robbed by Swede Whom He Thought Was His Victim.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Pendleton, Or., Nov. 16.—Wishing to make good a loss of $400 which he had met with away on the gaming table, Dr. G. W. Biggars has discovered that a card sharp is not the equal of a professional in that line and has paid the sum of $1,400 for his experience as a bunko man.

Biggars, who is a wealthy retired physician of La Grande, had been gambling with Roy Stewart, proprietor of the Rainier beer hall, and a gambler named Sam Endicott and lost about $400.

Wednesday he was approached by Stewart, who informed him that he had a green sheepherder, who had a long roll, "on the string," and a bunko game was arranged. Biggars was to deal the Swede four kings, while he held four aces.

When the four got into the game Biggars followed directions and, with the knowledge that he held the high hand, bet $1,000. This was covered by the Swede, who placed a check on the First National bank in the "pot."

When his hand was called Biggars showed down, but learned to his dismay that he had six cards, one of the other players having slipped an extra pasteboard to him. The Swede claimed the pot and carried off the money.

It is learned that the Swede, who signed the name of A. Anson, had no money in the bank upon which he drew his check, and it is believed that he is a professional gambler named Andrew Anderson.

$500,000 LOSS ON COWLITZ RIVER

Stream is Raging Torrent Twenty Feet Above Low-Water Mark at Kalama.

NORTHERN PACIFIC TRAIN IS STALLED BY WASHOUTS

Communication With Points in the Flooded Districts Not Yet Restored—River Cleaned Out Its Contents—Fill at Olequa Bridge Out.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Kalama, Wash., Nov. 16.—The Cowlitz river is a raging torrent 20 feet above low water mark. Communication with Seattle, Tacoma and other points in the flooded district are not yet restored, but with improved weather conditions today it is expected that wires will soon be in operation. Railroad traffic is still at a standstill and it will be weeks before normal conditions are restored. Advances received early this morning indicate that the storm is over and that the rivers will not go much higher. The river has been cleaned of its contents and the damage is estimated at $500,000. This is the highest winter water since 1862.

Northern Pacific train No. 5 left here yesterday afternoon for Castle Rock, but on arriving at Ostrander found a fill of about 200 yards washed out. The train then returned to Kalama. It was staid by several passengers that as the train left Ostrander a piano box was noticed floating in the river and upon arrival at Kelso the same piano box noided its farewell as it passed the town of Kelso.

The long fill leading to the steel bridge across the Cowlitz near Olequa is also reported as being swept away. All telephone connections between here and Portland are down. All Northern Pacific trains have been annulled.

REPAIRS COMPLETED

Northwestern Gas & Electric Company's Plant in Operation.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Walla Walla, Wash., Nov. 16.—Repairs on the Northwestern Gas & Electric company's plant on the Walla Walla were completed late yesterday afternoon and power turned on at Walla Walla, Weston, Athena and Pendleton the first time in two days.

The repairs to the damaged flume were effected under the greatest difficulties, the men working waist deep in the cold water for hours. The company will immediately take steps to build the retaining wall around the plant two feet higher to avoid any future danger from high water.

CITY ISOLATED

North Yakima Cut Off From World By Storm.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) North Yakima, Wash., Nov. 16.—North Yakima is a city of isolation and desolation is spread broadcast in the Yakima valley. Communication by rail with surrounding points is completely cut off, and the change in the course of the Naches river has rendered hundreds of families homeless, besides doing enormous damage to railroad property and the country generally. Along the lowlands a tent city has sprung up. Homes have been washed away and others abandoned and families are now making the best of circumstances in water-drenched tents.

The Northern Pacific has lost heavily. The approaches to every steel bridge along its line in this valley have been washed away and several hundreds of feet of the embankment along the Naches have been dissolved in the raging stream below. Water is running from six inches to five feet deep over every bridge in the county.

PILOTED THROUGH FLOOD

Northern Pacific Trains on O. R. & N. Tracks Pass The Dalles.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) The Dalles, Nov. 16.—By reason of bridges being washed out on the line of the Northern Pacific, passenger trains of that company are using the track of the O. R. & N. Co. from Wallula to Portland. These trains are piloted by engineers of the O. R. & N. Co. over the route. Two Northern Pacific trains were got through The Dalles as early as Wednesday night, and two more yesterday.

The extent of the damage to Northern Pacific bridges cannot be ascertained, but it is likely to continue for some days.

The Dalles is without electric lights, and the arrival of trains, either east or west, is very uncertain. To add to the isolation, the telegraph wires were blown down somewhere west of the city, and there was a lengthened break of telegraphic communication. With no electric light, streets dark as Erebus, and rail communication uncertain in every direction, The Dalles is truly suffering from the effects of the storm, and the people will be happy when the usual conditions prevail again.

WOODLAND PEOPLE IN PERIL

Boats Fly the Streets, Rescuing Inhabited.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Woodland, Wash., Nov. 16.—Woodland is now experiencing one of the worst floods since the June freshet in 1894. Wednesday morning the people awoke to find the river up to their doors, the Lewis a raging stream and still rising. School is dismissed until Monday, as it is impossible to reach the school-house.

Frank Klager's family was rescued by boat in the early morning. The river first overflowed near Mr. Klager's place, which is near town. Great ditches are being cut by the rising waters and travel has been discontinued as it is no longer safe. Several feet of water now takes the place of streets and several boats are kept busy rescuing those in danger and carrying them to safer localities. All business is practically at a standstill.

LOGS SWEEP AWAY

Half Million Feet of Timber Is Lost at Hood River.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Hood River, Or., Nov. 16.—Over 1,000,000 feet of logs tied up in a huge jam, that had swept down the Klukkat and into the Columbia, a city in darkness, railroad and bridge work suspended, the village of Trout Lake under water, lumber camps in momentary peril, the bottom lands are swollen streams, and the whole country tributary to this point deluged with one of the severest storms in years in a partial summary of conditions existing at Hood River today.

FLOOD IS COSTLY

High Water Will Make Higher Tax Levy in Umatilla County.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Pendleton, Or., Nov. 16.—As a consequence of the flood of last spring and the high water that came over parts of Umatilla county yesterday doing considerable damage to bridges and roads, it is inevitable that the tax levy will be higher next year than this. According to Assessor C. P. Strain, the county has expended $60,000 on roads and bridges during the past year. The county tax at present is 20 mills. Also there is a probability of a higher city levy next year, should the charter be changed so as to permit of the same. In order to meet the expenses of levy repairs and street work the limit of indebtedness will have to be extended, higher taxes levied, or else additional bonds sold.

KELSO INUNDATED

Bottom Lands and Lower Portion of Town Are Under Water.

Kelso, Wash., November 16.—It rained all last night and continues this morning. The river is at the same stage as last night, although the current is not quite so swift, indicating that the Columbia is rising. The bottom lands are pretty well flooded and sewer-manholes in the lower part of town are holding up six inches above the top. There is water in all the mills but no damage has been done since the bridge and big boom went out.

WIND STORM

People Are Scared by Hurricanes at Condon, But Damage Is Slight.

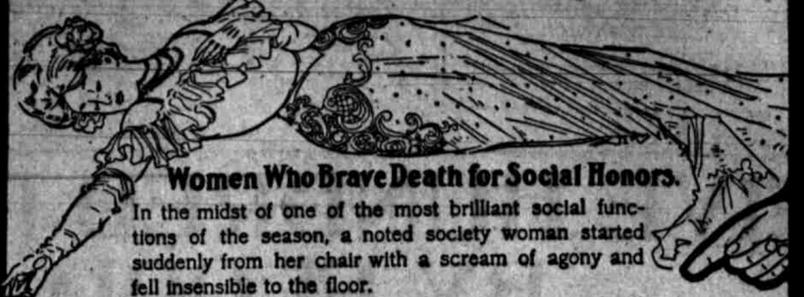

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Condon, Or., Nov. 16.—The worst wind storm in the history of this country struck here at 4 o'clock yesterday morning. The people were badly scared but no damage was done. All wires are prostrated and the Condon-Fossil stage, loaded with passengers, had a rough trip.

Social Tragedy

Women Who Brave Death for Social Honors.

In the midst of one of the most brilliant social functions of the season, a noted society woman started suddenly from her chair with a scream of agony and fell insensible to the floor.

A few hours later the distinguished physician told her anxious husband that she was suffering from an acute case of nervous prostration brought on by female trouble, and hinted at an operation. Fortunately a friend advised her to try

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

The result was that she escaped the surgeon's knife and to-day is a well woman.

The derangement of the delicate female organism sets every nerve in the body quivering with pain. Headaches, backaches, torturing bearing down pains and dragging sensations make women nervous and hysterical.

DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I was troubled for eight years with irregularities which broke down my system and brought on extreme nervousness and hysteria. I could neither enjoy my meals nor sleep nights, became easily irritated and nervous and very dependent. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound proved to be the only medicine which helped me. After taking the third bottle, my general health began to improve. At the end of the fifth month I was well and could attend to my household and social duties and enjoy life. Mrs. CHESTER CURRY, 42 Saratoga Street, East Boston, Mass.

Mrs. Curry, whose portrait appears on the right, is the leader of the Ladies' Symphony Orchestra. The following letter is from Miss Goode, President of the Bryn-Mawr Lawn Tennis Club of Chicago:

DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I tried many different remedies to try to build up my system, which had become run down from loss of proper rest and unreasonable hours, but nothing seemed to help me. Mother is a great advocate of Lydia Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for female troubles, having used it herself some years ago with great success. So I began to take it, and in less than a month I was able to be out of bed and out of doors, and in three months I was entirely well. Really I have never felt so strong and well as I have since. New York, Nov. 16.—The ecclesiastical court of review of the second department reassembled today to resume its hearing of the appeal from the diocesan court in the diocese of western New York, which convicted Dr. Algernon R. Crapsey, rector of St. Andrew's Episcopal church, Rochester, of heretical teachings. Dr. Crapsey was convicted in Batavia, New York, last April. The appeal was first heard last month before the court of review of the second department, and which, having heard the arguments of counsel, met again two weeks ago to prepare its decision. It is expected that this decision will be handed down before the present meeting adjourns.

Stock Meeting at Canyon City.

Canyon City, Or., Nov. 16.—A stock meeting is being held in the city for the purpose of making grazing allotments in the western division of the Blue mountain forest reserve for 1907. Certain driveways will be established upon which stock must be kept while crossing the reserve. Owing to the crowded condition of the range a reduction will be made in the number of sheep allowed to graze in the reserve during the season of 1907. A number of new stock laws went into effect yesterday. The western division comprises that part of the reserve lying south and west of The Dalles military wagon road.
