

ARTIST'S FAMILY SKELETON EXPOSED DURING POLICE COURT SESSION

Domestic Woes of Richard Max Meyer and Wife Aired During Trial of Former on Charge of Assault and Battery.

Grinningardonically, the skeleton of the Meyer family was dragged forth for an airing in the police court today much to the edification and entertainment of the habitués of the Oak street justice shop. The occasion of the exposure of the marital infelicities of Professor Richard Max Meyer, a prominent local artist, and his wife, Gertrude Meyer, was the trial of the painter on a charge of assaulting his wife with a stick of stove wood last Friday morning. Mrs. Meyer, a tall, determined-looking nervous woman, was the principal witness against her spouse. She testified that they were married in 1890, divorced in 1901, remarried recently, and reside at 349 Jackson street. Upon being informed that the whipping-post would be the fate of her husband in the event that the charges of brutality were substantiated, she took occasion to hastily declare that she was not desirous of having him punished in that manner.

COOK ARRESTED AT THE DALLES

Former Superintendent of Portage Road Gives Bail for His Appearance.

L. S. Cook, late superintendent of the portage road, was arrested yesterday afternoon at the Dalles by a deputy sheriff on a warrant charging him with misappropriating state funds, requested by State Land Agent Oswald West. Cook immediately gave bonds in the sum of $500 and was allowed to go by District Attorney Menefee until Saturday, when his case will come up for preliminary hearing at the Dalles. S. A. Koser, from the office of the secretary of state, is still at Celilo, busily engaged in checking over the accounts kept by Cook while he was superintendent of the portage road. It is not possible at this time to state the exact amount of his pecuniations owing to the peculiar methods employed by Cook which destroyed the evidence and leaves the state officials only fragmentary facts upon which to compute the shortage. Charles E. Steadman, who for the past few years has been the agent for the W. F. Fuller company at the Oak street dock, has been appointed superintendent of the portage road and has taken up his duties there. He will still retain his position in Portland, hiring a man to attend to it while away from the city.

MAYOR NAMES COMMITTEE

Selects Kellaher, Rushlight and Vaughn to Examine the Experts' Report.

Councilmen Kellaher, Rushlight and Vaughn were this morning appointed by Mayor Lane as the special committee of the council which will scan the report of the mayor's experts on the city books and determine whether their bill of $150 is reasonable. This was after a spat between several members and the mayor—the councilmen criticizing the report as well as the bills the mayor's relatives in ordering the examination were also impugned. Clark and Buchanan were the experts employed. The ways and means committee submitted a report, believed to have been drafted by Thomas Gray, which formed the basis of discussion. It admitted that according to the charter the mayor has the right to order such an experting of the city's books at any time he sees fit, but he held that the bill was unreasonable considering the amount of work performed. The three councilmen were notified in writing of their appointment this morning. "I told them that it was my wish that they would prosecute the investigation without fear or favor," said Mayor Lane today. "I do not pretend to know all about such business, and if they can show that the bill is too heavy I hope they will report. I want an independent, fearless report."
