Sons of Eli Defeat Wearers of the Crimson by a Score of Six to Nothing-Veeder of Yale Is Star of the Game

Thirty-five thousand were on the field in hour before the game was called. Yals won the tone and chose the torth goal. Burk kicked to Ted Jones in Yale 50-yard line. Yale failed to min on tricks and Harvard got the ball in blocked kicks and worked the double has to Harvard's 25-yard line. Yale locked and bucked through the center, copped a kick and got the ball in mideld. Jones tackled for a loss on a layed pass. Yale was penalized for iding the ball.

made long gafes, alternating, with magnificent holds and spectacular runs. Harvard stopped smashing the line play without gain, but the next play Vesder went through Pierce for a touchdown. Soure first half, Yale 6, Harvard 0.

In the last half neither side scored. Final, Tale, 6; Harvard, 0.

Yale had all the speed, contrary to the expectations of rooters. Harvard played a wonderful game holding after settling down from the early onslaught. Vesder made holes in the crimson line, disheartening the Cambridge contingent in the stand.

Yale kicked off to MacDonald on Harvard's 20-yard line. Throughout Yale retuined speed, but Harvard pulled herself together for a better defensive. Harvard's left end let Morse around for 15 yards. Vecder punted. Haryard lost the ball on a fumble and tried a number of forward passes this half until the ball was lost by decision, when Yale started a line of bucks, which were successful until the desperate Crimson team three Vecder for a loss of five yards.

Yale was penalized, for which offense

Before the half ended, Harvard was pensissed for holding. Both teams were apparently rattled and there was much rank playing. Klaf made 5 yards on two tries through the line. Veeder on two tries through the line. Veeder punted behind the Harvard goal line. The ball was taken to Harvard's 20-yard line and punted.

Knox got the ball on Yale's 50-yard line, ran 40 yards through the entire orimson team before he was downed on Harvard's 20 yard line. More penalties were imposed on Yale. Both teams

Policeman Catches Them but Is Surprise to Prosecution-Grand Denied Glory of Making Arrests.

Gentlemen with a penchant for sprinting should keep out of the section of the city patrolled by the vigilant Policeman Roberts. Last evening Ernest A. Foster of 187 Halsey street and a friend, whose identity is unknown, became engaged in a heated argument as to which was the more fleet of foot. After some discussion it was decided to run around the block, Foster to start in one direction and his friend in the other.

At the start of the race Patrolman Roberts was standing on Weidler street, one of the thoroughfares constituting the race course. As Foster, with head down and breathing hard, came rushing around the corner Roberts immediately suspected that he was either a footpad or a burgiar. Drawing his trusty revolver the policeman called upon Poster to halt, but without effect. Three shots sent whiszing by the racer's head proved to be more effective, however, and he came to a sudden stop. While he was explaining matters to the bluecost the other footracer, tired and perspiring, hove in sight and was also compelled to halt. Explanations followed and the two men were allowed to go on promising to confine their tests of prowess to the Multnomah cinder track in the future.

NOT ENOUGH EVIDENCE SAYS JUDGE CAMERON

Mary Krausunas and Joe Demarko, who were arrested on complaint of John Krausunas on a statutory charge, were discharged this morning by Police Judge Cameron, owing to the insufficiency of evidence. Krausunas alleged that he had caught his wife and Demarko in his tailor shop on Second street. He falled to call his spouse to account for several days and when he did remonstrate with her she promptly hit him over the head with a pair of shears.

Though Both Feet Are Crushed, F. B. Woods Plans to Return to Goldfield.

F. B. Woods, who jumped from the second story of Hotel Goldfield, Goldfield, Nevada, last Saturday to escape death from the flames that destroyed the new hostelry, was at the Belveders yesterday on his way to his home in Spokane. Mr. Woods weighs 225 pounds and the injuries resulting from jumping barefceted to the hard stones below his window were two crushed feet, one of which may have to be amputated. Mr. Woods was most cheerful yesterday when discussing his misfortune. He said:

when discussing his mistortune. He said:

"When the slarm of fire was given I was sleeping, but once awakened, I realized that I would barely have time to get out of the hotel with my life. Hastily drawing on my trousers and shirt I threw up the window and jumped to the ground. Both my feet were crushed and the pain was intense. I did not have much curiosity left to watch the fire. All the bones in my right foot were broken and my left foot was badly crushed. Physicians at Goldfield wanted to amputate my right foot but I decided that I would wait until I arrived in Spokane and had an X-ray examination of the foot made."

Mr. Woods talked very little about the fire and his injuries, but possesses a world of information about the wonders and resources of the new mining country.

"You see" he bears. "I have to talk."

paarance of Leoncavallo and his company of artists interest in his engagement is increasing and the demand for tickets grows rapidly.

Many out-of-town mail orders have been received and it is said that the musical element of every town in western Oregon of any size will be represented at the concerts Monday afternoon and evening at the Heilig. That they should have to come hundreds of miles means that the magnitude of the orchestra and opera company is too great to allow stops at any but the principal cities in the country; but the fact that they come this distance means that this is to be an immense musical event and they realize its value and importance.

A report from Detroit where Leoncavallo appeared in the largest hall in town, tells of the enthusiasm of the crowded house. "There was more spontaneous enthusiasm than is ordinarily seen at three performances" was written. There a little Italian gri with a huge bunch of chrysanthemums tied with the Italian colors came out upon the stage after the singing of the "Ave Marie." Leoncavallo, who is nothing if not gallant, stooped to kiss the forehead of the donor, but she declined the platonic embrace and offered her lips. Leoncavallo responded like a true Italian and the house went wild.

REORGANIZATION IS NOT EFFECTED

The Federated Trades council took no steps last night toward the reorganization of the Building Trades council, as no answer to the proposition for reorganization has as yet been received from the officers of the defundabody. The matter will be taken up again at the next meeting of the Federated Trades two weeks hence.

The council decided to put a paid business agent in the local field and Secretary W. H. Fitzgerald was elected for the place. The council also put itself on record as favoring a bill to create a commission to devise remedial legislation restricting privileges of corporations in the state. The city of composition in the state. The city of dinance prepared by the musicians union providing for the repeal of the ordinance against music in sations was endorsed.
