

DECLARES WIRE ORDINANCE IS NOT ALL SOUND

Attorney Freeman Believes That Exemption of Telephone and Telegraph Wires From Measure Will Invalidate Whole Law If Test is Made.

That a phrase in the ordinance regulating overhead wires is unconstitutional and would nullify the whole law, was a test case brought, is the declaration of Frank F. Freeman, attorney for the Electrical Workers' union.

Telephone and telegraph wires are exempted by name in the measure which the ways and means committee of the council outlined at the Monday night meeting.

It is this phrase "Telephone and telegraph wires" which makes all the trouble. W. Y. Masters, the only lawyer on the committee present Monday night, admits that a change must be made in the ordinance.

Both the linemen and the electrical company had agreed that wires carrying not over 100 volts should be exempt from the provisions of the ordinance, which regulates the distance between wires of the cross arms and imposes other restrictions.

Through carelessness the committee apparently ignored another section which both parties had agreed to, and framed the ordinance so that the electrical combine in the recipient of a large boquet.

According to the linemen's ordinance as introduced, and as afterward agreed to by the company, all cables and wires running vertically up a pole from the ground shall be enclosed in wood beyond a point 15 feet from the ground.

The ways and means committee, however, changed this so as to enclose the vertical cables four feet from a point where they were crossed by a high power wire, one carrying 750 volts or more.

At the same ordinance puts all these high power wires on the top crossarm it is apparent that the cable would never cross one of them at all. This would mean that the present condition would remain unimproved.

repeat with emphasis what he had said. Judge Sears added $75, making the fine $150. McGinn then declared that the court had been taking a hand in the affair.

This morning when court convened, a case in which Attorney R. A. Letter and McGinn were counsel was called to have the time of trial fixed.

Attorney Letter asked that the case be set for trial in the January term of court. Attorney McGinn arose and addressed the court, stating that he had no objections to the request of Attorney Letter.

"I will state, Mr. McGinn, that as long as you remain in a condition of recalcitrancy I cannot recognize your appearance in court."

DAY'S EVENTS ON EAST SIDE

Crowds Journey to Mount Tabor to View Proposed Park Site.

MOUNT SCOTT TOWNS DISCUSS BOUNDARIES

Annexation Question May Come Up at June Election—Improvement Association Plans Considerable Work—Other Events on the East Side.

Every car going to Mount Tabor yesterday afternoon was crowded with sightseers and others who are interested in the Mount Tabor park project.

A complete view of the city is to be had from this prominence, from the extreme south to the farthest north. One only needs to turn half around to be able to take in the mountains in the east and far north and look down at the pretty little suburb of Montavilla.

Residents of this hill are very enthusiastic over their surroundings and would not give their location for any other in the city. They love both the city and the country in their panoramic landscape, and while perhaps their location is farther from the city in some respects than Council Crest, yet they declare that they have no disadvantages.

The park plan has been carefully thought out by the Mount Tabor Park club, and the proposition will come up for the people to vote on at the next June election.

A great deal of misunderstanding exists in regard to the precise boundaries of what is known as the Mount Scott district. Each one of the little communities that go to make up this district are very jealous of the others and watch very carefully any move made by any of the others that looks like an attempt to embrace under its name a larger territory than rightfully comes under its approved jurisdiction, which is generally determined by the public opinion of the combined district.

The Mount Scott district covers a distance of six miles and includes all the stations on the Mount Scott line of the Oregon Water Power from beyond Woodstock to Lents, a territory in which are three postoffices.

Since there is no station on the line that is called Mount Scott many people are confused by the name. But according to the best authorities in the district, all the stations on the line can share the name Mount Scott equally and inappropriately, as the real Mount Scott lies east of the entire district.

The district is rapidly growing and soon the boundaries of the many towns along the line will be one. Already a movement for annexation is popular except, possibly, at Lents, where a sentiment for incorporation is predominant, and the district will probably be added to the city at the general election in June, 1908.

Women in Our Hospitals

Appalling increases in the Number of Operations Performed Each Year—How Women May Avoid Them.

Going through the hospitals in our large cities one is surprised to find such a large proportion of the patients lying on those snow-white beds women and girls, who are either awaiting or recovering from serious operations.

Why should this be the case? Simply because they have neglected themselves. Female troubles are certainly on the increase among the women of this country—they creep upon them unawares, but every one of those patients in the hospital beds had plenty of warning in that bearing-down feeling, pain at left or right of the abdomen, nervous exhaustion, pain in the small of the back, dizziness, flatulency, displacements of the organs or irregularities. All of these symptoms are indications of an unhealthy condition of the female organs, and if not heeded the penalty has to be paid by a dangerous operation.

When women are troubled with irregular, suppressed or painful periods, weakness, displacement or ulceration of the organs, that bearing-down feeling, inflammation, backache, bloating (or flatulency), general debility, indigestion, and nervous prostration, or are beset with such symptoms as dizziness, lassitude, excitability, irritability, nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, "all-gone" and "want-to-be-left-alone" feelings, they should remember there is one tried and true remedy.

presence of mind to shout to his companion to grasp the upper beam of the elevator and lift his feet from the floor.

When the cage fell. Like a streak of lightning the cage with its human freight dropped down the narrow shaft to what appeared certain destruction. With a crash it struck the steel beams at the end of the shaft on the first floor.

The employees on the upper floors, fearing that the two men would be found an unrecognizable heap of bruised and bleeding flesh, hurried to their assistance. They found Heft able to walk about as if nothing out of the ordinary had occurred and McCarty lying on the floor conscious and able to tell the tale.

The police were notified and Patrolmen Robson and Burke were sent to the scene by Captain Moore. The injury sustained by McCarty to his hip and back prevented his walking and he was taken to his room at the Mt. Hood hotel, Water street and Hawthorne avenue, where he was attended by a surgeon. His injuries, although incapacitating him from labor for a short time, are not regarded as serious.

It was only McCarty's foresight in grabbing the top of the cage and crying to his fellow-laborer to do likewise that saved both men from death. When the elevator struck they had their feet off the floor and consequently did not get the full force of the shock. It is not known what caused the cable to break.

but in view of the small size of rope used it is thought that it had been weakened by continual use and the weight of the two men added to the wheelbarrow of lime proved too great a strain.

In discussing his rapid flight through space, McCarty stated that it seemed only a second after the rope parted and he shouted the warning to Heft, that they struck the bottom. The elevator was almost completely wrecked by the fall, but as it was constructed of wood the damage is small.

building will be ready for dedication some time in February. The Sellwood church is a strong organization having received 50 new members since the first of the conference year.

The Sellwood woolen mills were started this morning. Only a part of the mills will be put into operation at present but within the next two or three weeks the mills will be running full capacity. All the machinery has arrived but not all has been adjusted so that it can be used.

The Sacred Heart social club is greatly elated over the success of its drama, "Among the Breakers," presented last Thursday night in the Sacred Heart hall at Sellwood and Kaywood streets. The actors did remarkably well. A good audience greeted the performance and all express themselves as having been delighted with the play.

A movement to continue the Improvement of Union avenue to Alberta street has been started by the property owners along the street and a petition for that purpose is being circulated among them. This will be another great stimulus for the rising values of east side realty.

This is pre-eminently a business district and the growth in the territory adjacent to Union avenue in the last few years has been marvelous. Over nine miles of hard pavement is to be laid on the east side in 1907.

The Sellwood Methodist church is completing a handsome edifice on East Fifteenth and Tacoma streets that will cost $5,000. It is expected that the Improve ment Club to Meet. The Mount Scott Improvement Association meets this evening and will hold its annual election of officers. Many improvements for the district are talked of, the most urgent of which seems to be lights for the car line. The company will be asked to install lights along the most frequented parts of the line and later they will be expected to do more for the district. Their patronage is great and will be greater with increased comforts in the way of better stations and lights.
