Among other measures which will come up at the regular meeting next week is an ordinance providing for a steel fireboat. This will cost $100,000, and the expense is planned to be de-frayed by a special levy upon the city. The George H. Williams, a wooden boat, will continue in service even if the steel vessel is built. It is generally con-sidered that Portland's waterfront at present is inadequately protected. Coun-climan Annand will infroduce the ordi-nance which is now being prepared.

Paul Wittke was before Judge Came-ron this morning as the result of his attempt to annihilate a crowd of Ital-ians with a shotgun last night. Upon the request of counsel for the defend-ant the case was continued until tomor-row for hearing. Wittke participated in a game of cards with several Italians in a sa-loon at Fifth and Sheridan streets. Be-lieving that he had been cheated, and inflamed by the amount of liquor that he had consumed, he repaired to his home near by and secured an andient shotgun. Returning to the saloon he haid in wait for Carlo Felifi and Domi-nic Aquina, and when the two men put in an appearance covered them with the field piece. Vancouver, Wash., Dec. 11.—Roy Long, a former soldier and for several years employed by various firms about town, died at St. Joseph's hospital at midnight as the result of a builet wound received at 5:30 hast evening. From all circumstances surrounding the affair it is believed that Long com-mitted suicide, although those about the Old Kentucky saloon, where the shooting took place, say it was acci-dental. denial. By those connected with the saloon it is said that evidently Long was in the act of opaning the drawer in which lay the revolver, when the gun was accidentally discharged. However, from statements made by Long in the past week, this theory is not given much credence. On several occasions Long has spoken indirectly of a wish to end his life. While in a local bar-ber shop Saturday he exhibited two Little Clara Barnes, the niece of Lincoln Whitney, who clung to him as he was shot took the witness-stand he was shot, took the witness-stand this afternoon at the trial of Orlando S.
