

PALATIAL QUARTERS FOR FAVORED EQUINES

Palatial Stables of the Meier & Frank Company.

After visiting the different quarters, chambers, hospital wards and special apartments for the fortunate Meier, Frank & Co.'s 65 head of horses, as provided in their elegant new stables on Second and Jefferson streets, one actually expects next to be taken to the office and shown a great register where these intelligent beings have, on arriving, placed their names, so complete are all the appointments, so closely do the arrangements follow those of a great hotel for human beings.

The building itself is a large brick structure, comprising three stories and a basement, on a base 100 by 100 feet. The basement, which is a basement in name only, being but two and one-half feet below the surface of the ground, is for the horses exclusively. The floor is of cement, the walls finished in plaster, with windows on every side, affording perfect light and ventilation.

great clock tells off the hours, every one of which, all through the long night, sends a watchman the rounds of the stalls to see that all is well in the sleeping animal world. The electric wiring is in condita, that safety in this regard may be insured. In fact, absolutely nothing seems to have been left undone that could add comfort, health and security to this great horse home.

William Carl, superintendent of the barn, knows every horse by name as well as nature, and is as attached to them as if they were children. He has had 40 years' experience with horses, and no man in the northwest is better equipped for the responsible position he occupies.

Each Animal Has a Name.

"We have a great time getting names enough for them," he said. "It does seem we've about exhausted the vocabulary, and I declare I don't know what

Mr. Meier vouched for the truth of this story, and certainly Bell is a handsome, intelligent appearing thoroughbred, that might be capable of any number of such pranks.

When all the horses are in their stalls they certainly make a magnificent showing; they are of good blood, the best that can be gotten for their purpose, some of them being prize-winners.

Clubrooms on First Floor.

Almost with regret we left the horses and went up stairs to the first floor proper, where are found large, pleasant, airy quarters for the drivers—sort of clubrooms, one might call them, where they can rest and talk and feel at home. Hot, cold and shower baths are provided. Well-ventilated lockers where their uniforms may be safely kept when off duty, and every comfort trio lights, a sink—every convenience of modern flat building is found here, showing the same care and thoughtfulness for physical comfort and health apparent all through the enterprises. The men's quarters are also on this floor, adjoining the superintendent's apartment.

Feed Kept on Second Floor.

Feed for the horses is kept here, with a special arrangement for letting it down a shoot to the basement, during which time it is freed from all dust and injurious matter that may have become mixed with it. A great space is set apart for the paint shop, making it the largest one on the coast, with a metal-lined cabinet in connection, for storing paints, constructed according to the underwriters' law of Oregon. An electric elevator, 23 by 14 feet, for moving wagons from one floor to another, has the speed of a passenger elevator.

Immense Washing Rack.

And the washing rack, which is also the largest one on the coast, being 30 by 40 feet, has a most convenient addition to the usual rack, of a gallery going around two sides of the wall, where a man can stand and readily wash the tops of the wagons. The harness room, on this floor, is marked by the same convenience of arrangement. It is large, like the other special rooms, with space for 175 sets of harness.

"Real" instantaneous water heaters are installed here, which maintain even heat, and hold the water at a temperature of 175 degrees all the time, thus keeping the leather limber and in good condition. The tub is large, affording sufficient room for two men to work at one time. The trimmings are nicie and the walls finished in hard oil.

The third floor is a sort of emergency space, set apart for storing articles not in immediate use, and for extra equipment for use during the annual holiday rush.

Interesting Place to Visit.

Taken altogether—the horse hospital—so well appointed, stable—is a superb illustration of the highest form of modern care for our good dumb friends. It would delight anyone who is interested in horses and their treatment to visit the Meier, Frank & Co. stables, and see how science and modern inventive genius have been applied to their comfort and well being.

The stables are distinctly for the horses, the men who care for them—eight in number, and the drivers. Many people have gotten the erroneous idea that the new stables are a kind of annex to the store, or a place for shopping bent. No goods whatever are kept at the stables.

THOMPSON'S WORLD WAS ONE OF DISTORTIONS

Theory of Defense Reduces to This Peculiar Phase of Insanity.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Tacoma, Wash., Jan. 5.—Dr. John P. Tweeney, the family physician, and Walter Vincent, a near-by neighbor of the Thompsons, witnessed in the Thompson murder trial, testified to Chester's peculiarities, the trend of their entire testimony being that he had false ideas relative to his surroundings.

The testimony of Mrs. Jennie Barnatt, a nurse in the Thompson family, of Mrs. May Thompson Calhoun, the defendant's sister, and Miss Ella Gillespie all tended to show that Chester had strange opinions of his responsibility to his family and that he entertained equally erroneous conceptions of the purport of Miss Whitteley's polite response to what witnesses considered merely a slight acquaintance, or a boyish one at most.

All the testimony of witnesses has had for its sole object Chester's mental condition just prior to the shooting of Judge Emory. Both direct and cross-examinations have brought out from all parties declarations that witnesses considered Chester either mentally unbalanced or insane.

The state has in a measure weakened these conclusions by getting from witnesses the admission that the declarations were based entirely on the eccentric actions of defendant.

Maurice Thompson, the elder brother of the defendant, and his maternal grandfather, Mr. Leo Thompson, have given many incidents of Chester's peculiar home life.

It is not the intention of the state to cross-examine very severely, as Mr. Mackintosh and his associates believe they have secured for the state all material points already from the narratives of the actions of Chester at home.

Where the Harness is Kept.

also vents every five feet along the inside walls to the roof. Every horse has his individual stall, with plank flooring, which provides ease for the feet, and ready cleaning. These stalls are all comfortably large and kept in scrupulous order. The name of each occupant appears over the rear of each stall.

Hospital Wards for Disabled.

Besides the regular stalls, there is the large hospital stall for sick horses, where additional comforts are provided; a special stall having cement floor and pipe attachments, where horses suffering from hot feet in the summer can stand in cool water till relieved, and a mud stall, where a surface of soft blue clay is provided, where horses may stand when their feet are in bad condition. An experienced veterinary surgeon is in constant attendance, and a the next ones will be called. There's Leon, Peter, Jack, Ole and Tabor, Gloomy and Happy, Prince and Joe, Alta and Dimock, Pouch and Judy, Rock and Rye, Shorty and Pansy, Bird and Blaise, Dan and George, Pathfinder, Queen, Ned and Eddie, Dock and Nelly, Bell H., and I don't know how many others." Bell H. is Julius Meier's pet mare, and if she ain't the intelligent brute, though! She takes to her new home like she'd been raised at the Waldorf. The other day I was at the far side of the barn and I noticed the electric light over here by her stall being turned on and off, like some young fellow might be just playing with it. I came over to investigate, and if you'll believe me, there Bell H. had the electric cord in her mouth, turning the light on and off to suit herself."

and convenience that thoughtfulness could suggest.

The men have taken a great interest in the new stable, and feel perfect freedom at all times to suggest improvements in any and every department. A drug supply is also on this floor, in connection with the office, where are found all the necessary appliances and remedies for injured or sick horses. The wagons are kept on this floor and the horses are brought up here for harnessing. Cleanliness is again noted as the order of the day, with every modern contrivance for making and cleansing of wagons as easy as a matter.

On the second floor there is, first, the well-finished, up-to-date little flat, or apartment for the superintendent and his wife, bath, hot and cold water, elec-

PURE DRUGS ACT

June 30, 1906
In Effect January 1, 1907

A GOOD LAW

We endorse the Pure Drug Law, because we have always believed in its principles, and because it means that the American people will find the strong arm of the Government protecting them from RANK FAKES, IMITATIONS AND SUBSTITUTES made of adulterated, impure, worthless and even dangerous drugs.

This sort of thing has been an imposition, fraud and crime against the People, as well as against the responsible manufacturers of honest, reliable remedies, and it was high time for it to be stopped. Misrepresentation and substitution of "something just as good" will now be done away with.

The principles of the Food and Drugs Act have been always favored by conscientious and honorable manufacturers, who recognized that Purity and Quality alone could permanently secure the favor of the nation.

So the makers of Cascarets Candy Cathartic recognized the great principles of PURITY, QUALITY and MEDICINAL MERIT when the first tablet was made, over eleven years ago, and have adhered to them ever since.

Cascarets stand alone on their record of having gained in that short period of time the friendship, confidence and patronage of millions of people, who are now buying Cascarets at the rate of over a MILLION BOXES A MONTH,—the largest sale of any Bowel Medicine in all the world.

We endorse the Pure Drug Law. It suits us, because we have always stood before our friends unafraid and clear of conscience, made our contracts good to every one, and in the conduct of our business, had the good fortune to help hundreds of thousands of our fellow-citizens back to health and life.

We have no reason to hesitate, and so we do not hesitate, to recommend Cascarets to all sufferers from Constipation and all complications arising therefrom. Also any other diseases of the food-canal. We are advertised by our loving friends and whenever the American people pass judgment in favor of an article after over ten years of investigation, trial and test,—their verdict speaks for itself.

The greatest merit of Cascarets however, is that of being a positive and reliable preventive of disease. The most important function of the human body is to keep its digestive channels and passages, with over thirty-six feet of bowels, strictly clean and disinfected, so that natural operations can take place in a natural manner, and the growth and activity of disease germs can be prevented.

A Cascaret at night before "turning in" will keep your Bowels regular, and your whole digestive canal wholesome, pure and normally active.

No matter what you have been taking, buy a little 10c. box TODAY at your own druggist, and let the results tell your little story. It means a lot of health and comfort in store for you.

TO MAKE BEQUEST TO SCHOOL AVAILABLE

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Pendleton, Or., Jan. 5.—A committee of Pendleton citizens, appointed to raise $10,000 in subscriptions in Pendleton for the enlarging of the Pendleton academy, payable in four annual installments, to secure the gift of $10,000 by W. W. Brown of Crook county, is meeting with success. A boys' dormitory will be added, and many other improvements will be made to the existing institution.

SUNDAY PASSENGER TRAIN TAKEN OFF

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Pendleton, Or., Jan. 5.—The Walla Walla-Pendleton passenger train on the O. R. & N. will be taken out of service tomorrow, but the mixed train will hereafter run on Sundays, giving this city a daily service with Walla Walla, in addition to the regular Spokane train. The reason for taking it out of service at this time is that the business of the winter season does not justify the expense of the extra train. While no promises are made, it is thought the passenger service will be revived next summer when the busy season opens.

PENDLETON BARBERS ELEVATE THE SCALE

Pendleton, Or., Jan. 4.—The Barbers' union of Pendleton has raised the price for cutting hair from 25 cents to 35 cents. The order goes into effect today. Facial massage has been raised to 50 cents. The price of shaving has not been changed, however.

No Seats, no Fares.

La Crosse, Wis., Jan. 5.—Council is considering an ordinance as to whether it is a misdemeanor punishable by fine for conductors of street cars to collect fares from passengers not provided with seats.

TO ELECT TAYLOR TENNESSEE SENATOR

(Journal Special Service.)

Nashville, Tenn., Jan. 5.—Members of the general assembly of Tennessee are arriving in the city in anticipation of the convening of that body next Monday. The general opinion among the members is that the session will be a busy and interesting one. Many bills are in preparation and are to be offered. Governor-elect Patterson made his campaign upon a platform embodying amendments to election laws and the laws relating to back tax attorneys and assessors. In his message to the legislature he will advocate the passage of such measures.

A successor to United States Senator Carrack is to be chosen at this session. But one name will be presented, that of former Governor Robert Taylor, who was the choice of the primary election.

BAKER GOT ONLY THE FRINGE OF THE STORM

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Baker City, Or., Jan. 5.—Baker county got but the tail end of the storm which swept over the northwest yesterday. There was a heavy snowfall, about six inches, but a chinook wind springing up in the evening rapidly melted it. It then turned a little colder and a light snow fell. The fall of snow is considered their salvation by the farmers, who started a dry winter, and consequently poor crops in the spring. The present weather augurs well for crops. As there were few cattle or sheep on the range stockmen are not suffering losses.

BAKER GRAND JURY TO HANDLE NOTED CASES

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Baker City, Or., Jan. 5.—Dr. Roy Fuller, the young physician of Eagle valley who is under arrest charged with performing a criminal operation, and Alex Widdowson charged with the murder of Willard Moody, the Pine valley rancher, are to be given a chance to escape trial. Judge Smith has announced that he will call a grand jury to meet Monday and these cases will be submitted to it. Upon the findings of the grand jurors will depend whether or not trials are held.

State Legislatures Meet.

The sessions of the state legislatures will begin during the week in Texas, Wisconsin, Tennessee, Kansas, Alabama, North Carolina, Illinois, Connecticut and one or two other states. In most of the states the new officials will occupy attention in that order.

The case of the packing corporations indicted for conspiracy in restraint of trade is set for trial in Chicago next Thursday. Another anti-trust suit will occupy attention in that brought to oust the Standard Oil company and its affiliated companies from the state of Missouri. This suit is to come up for hearing at St. Louis Monday.

Seaboard Air Line will meet Thursday to give their approval to the plan for an $18,000,000 bond issue.

Open Canal Bids.

On Saturday next in this city the Panama canal commission will open bids for the completion of the construction of the Panama canal.

The seventh national automobile show will open Saturday in Madison Square Garden, New York, to continue through the following week.

The supreme court of Newfoundland on Tuesday will hear the appeal of the west coast fishermen against the decision of a magistrate fining them $500 each for violating the salt act by fishing for American vessels with territorial waters. The case involves the modus vivendi between Great Britain and the United States, guaranteeing immunity to fishermen if they are shipped outside the three-mile line.

Grand Army Meeting.

A meeting of the executive committee of the Grand Army of the Republic will be held at Zanesville, Ohio, Sunday, at which definite consideration of the location of this year's national encampment will be taken up.

Professional baseball will be in the limelight during the week, with meetings to be held by the minor leagues in New York and by the national commis-
