

EAST SIDE CLUB OPENS QUARTERS

Well-Appointed Rooms in Sargent Building Opened to its Members.

SELLWOOD FIREMEN HOLD A REUNION

Volunteers Long Supported by Local Contributions Are Now to Be Succeeded by Firemen Paid by the City—Thomas B. West Dead.

East Side Department. The East Side club has now completed its quarters in the new Sargent building, Hawthorne and Grand avenues. The directors met in the rooms today at 11:45 and sat down to an informal dinner to talk over plans for the final and formal opening of the club quarters. Everything is furnished throughout and in readiness for the members. The rooms are very neatly furnished in red and green, each room being tinted and furnished in harmonious shades. The rooms occupy the half of the top floor of the hotel. A view of the entire city except to the immediate west presents itself from the windows. On the right are the reading rooms and connecting with the social rooms on the left is the long room in the center equipped with billiard tables. The billiard room is on the first floor, and there is a small cafe on the top floor in connection with the clubrooms proper. Assistant Secretary Fixot is in charge of the rooms and for the past 10 days or so has been supervising the apartments during the furnishing. The directors have been working hard to get the quarters into shape as soon as possible and are much gratified at the results of their work.

New Telephone Ordinance. At the regular meeting last night of the common council of the city of St. Johns a new franchise was presented by the Home Telephone company that will assure better terms for the city, but in its essentials is the same as the former one brought up last week. Regarding the legality of the appointment of City Engineer Godrich, a discussion as to the authority in the matter of the length of his term arose, but was dropped again without any definite action. It was again announced that the charter will be finished "next week."

Death of T. B. West. Thomas B. West, a well-known east side merchant, after a sickness of several months, died last night about 7 o'clock of typhoid fever in his apartments over his place of business, 33 1/2 East Morrison street. Mr. West was 51 years old and a pioneer in east side business circles. He was born in Mandeville, Wisconsin, and had been a resident of Portland for 33 years. With his brother, N. K. West, he formerly conducted a store on Grand avenue near East Alder, but after the bridges were built he moved to East Morrison street and had been in business there ever since—something like 30 years. He had some choice holdings in east side business realty, worth perhaps $100,000. He is survived by his wife and following brothers: N. K. West of La Grande and Orville West and T. S. West of Portland. The twelfth annual reunion of the Sellwood fire department was held last night in the firemen's hall on East Thirteenth street and Tacoma avenue, and in spite of the unusual weather a large number was present. As plans are now under way to establish an engine at Sellwood this will perhaps be the last anniversary of the volunteer company. The women's auxiliary assisted by preparing a dinner. There was an entertainment on the second floor, conducted by Chief J. E. Reinke and the volunteers. There were talks by Councilmen Willis and others. After the banquet, served by the ladies, the hall was cleared for dancing. The Sellwood company has just completed its 13 years of usefulness and is in a prosperous condition. Its holdings are valued at $4,000, and it has been supported by contributions throughout from Sellwood people, except a donation of $600 from the city. A paid company from the Portland department will supersede the company in a few months. The Blackman circle of the G. A. R. will hold a social at Sellwood tonight in Knipe's hall. The first of a series of teas by the Ladies Aid society of Sellwood will be given this afternoon between 3 and 5 o'clock at the home of Mrs. S. D. Willis, 1497 East Seventeenth street.

THE REALM OF THE FEMINE

BY HELEN HAWTHORNE

Satin Now Used for Petticoats.
A satin finish, or at any rate a certain amount of sheen, is noticeable on nearly every kind of material this season, even on the dress lining and under-petticoats. A satin-finished material is always more effective than a dull silk, and for this reason also requires less trimming—often a decided advantage. This year things have been rather reversed, for there are many reception and house gowns of lace, chiffon, net and taffeta silks, but for the evening even the debutantes prefer satins and satin silks. With a satin gown an under-petticoat of the same shade and having the same soft sheen is naturally more attractive than the too sharp contrast of a dull silk would be, but until just lately this scheme has seldom been carried out. Satin has been used for some time as a background for lace or chiffon, and all transparent textures are at present being made up over satin finish silk. An evening petticoat is all important to the ball gown and great care must be taken that it give just the correct last touch to the costume. A white skirt, with its dainty lace ruffles, is hard to improve upon, but the satin petticoat, matching the shade of the gowns with which they are worn are much in vogue at the moment. The plain color is relieved by deep flounces of lace and mousseline, the lace being caught up here and there with garlands and rosettes of ribbon. Some soft satin makes the prettiest skirt—it must be perfectly fitted about the waist and hips, and only from below the knees is there any flare to it. An empire gown gives the impression of a long clinging skirt, but there must be a full under-petticoat to keep the skirt from sagging.

Instead of Ribbons.
The mother of a small girl whose ability to lose hair ribbons was a source of constant worry solved the problem by using strips of plain or flowered muslin. These she hemmed neatly, making them the width of ordinary hair ribbons. They laundered nicely and always looked fresh and clean, while the loss of one of them did not mean so serious a thing as if a brand new hair ribbon had disappeared. Of course, these little muslin ties were not used for "dress-up" occasions, but for ordinary home wear they proved to be as satisfactory as they were inexpensive.

Some Recipes.
At this season of the year, when the vegetable list is narrowing, except for the products shipped here from more favored climates, it is well to think of what is at hand, even of unfamiliar. One thing not used here in many homes is chicory. It is sold as endive oftentimes in our markets. It spreads out in great bunches like a big dandelion plant which has been partially blanched. It is slightly bitter like endive. It makes an excellent salad. For this use only the tender white portion; just as you do with chicory when preparing it for a salad. The chicory should be dressed with oil and vinegar, pepper and salt—the familiar French dressing. Orange baskets make a pretty dessert. Stand the oranges, blossom end uppermost, and cut out from each upper half two right angle pieces in such a way as to leave the lower half intact and a strip of skin over the top to form a handle. Remove all pulp and juice, and with a sharp knife scallop out the top of the rind. Press and strain the juice, and for each pint take a half package of gelatine and a half cup of cold water. When soaked add a half pint of boiling water and when dissolved, the juice of one lemon, one cupful of sugar and the orange juice. Strain, and when cold and firm, cut into cubes and heap these in the orange baskets. For an extra touch divide the strained jelly, coloring half pale pink. Chill separately and mix the two colors in the baskets. These delicious little dainties may be made with any little odd pieces of beef, mutton, lamb, veal or pork—no matter how small, in long as they are perfectly sweet and free from fat, bones and bristle. Break three eggs into a basin and beat them until light and frothy; then stir into them, by degrees, six tablespoonfuls

MONEY FOR THEIR BIG SHOW

Seattle People Coming to Olympia to Rush Appropriation Bill.

BUT IT MAY HAVE TO TAKE PLACE IN LINE

Districting of State Congressionally Fought by Present Representatives and Friends—Employees Who Face the Mileage Problem.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Olympia, Wash., Jan. 16.—A large delegation of Seattle men is expected here tomorrow to start a campaign for an appropriation of $1,000,000 for the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition, to be held at Seattle in 1909. An attempt will be made to rush a bill through on the theory that after an appropriation has been made by the state it would be easier to secure one from congress. Ex-Senator John L. Wilson is here in the interest of the appropriation and is working hard to secure the early passage of the bill, but the sentiment among the members seems to be that it will have to take its regular course through the committee on appropriations, and that it will not be passed until near the end of the session, after the appropriations for the state institutions and other expenses have been determined.

Congressional Districts.
Notwithstanding the fact that the Republican state convention declared unequivocally for the division of the state into congressional districts; that such division is provided for by the state constitution, and that the governor recommends it in his message, there seems to be a good prospect that no such division will be made at this session, as it is opposed by Congressmen Cushman, Humphrey and Jones, each of whom fears that the division of the state might jeopardize his chances for reelection. The fight against division will be led by the friends of these congressmen and will be to a finish.

Employees and Mileage.
As an offset to the action of both houses in cutting down the salaries of employees, it is probable that in the session a resolution will be introduced to allow employees mileage to and from their homes. It is argued that unless this is done it will give practically all of the patronage of the legislature to the members of the west side, those living east of the mountains not being able to handle any patronage because there would be no applicants for positions who would be willing to pay their way to work for such beggary pay.

of fine bread crumbs, three ounces of butter, slightly melted, a tablespoonful of finely-powdered herbs, a sufficient seasoning of salt, a teaspoonful of grated lemon rind, a pinch of cayenne, three-quarters of a pound of the meat, finely chopped, and a good gravy to moisten the whole. Mix these ingredients thoroughly and pour the mass into the nest little pyramid shapes. Egg these entirely over, coat thickly with bread crumbs and bake in greased gem pans in a well-heated oven for about half an hour. For creamed potatoes cut freshly boiled or cold boiled potatoes into one-half-inch cubes, put them into saucapans, boiling milk salted, cook gently until nearly all the milk is absorbed. Add white sauce, stir for one minute, sprinkle with finely-cut parsley and serve. The sauce—Butter, two tablespoonfuls; salt, one-half teaspoonful; flour, two tablespoonfuls; pepper, one-eighth teaspoonful; milk, one cupful. Rub the butter and flour together with a spoon in a small saucapen. Add the milk and stir steadily over a moderate heat until the sauce boils. Use one and one-half teaspoonfuls of flour to one cupful of cream. To Report Ship Subsidy.

Rest the Stomach

Nothing will cure indigestion that doesn't digest the food, itself, and give the stomach a perfect rest. You can't reasonably expect that any weak stomach will regain its strength and get well when it is compelled to do the full work that a sound stomach should do. You wouldn't expect a sick horse to get well when it is compelled to do a full day's work every day of the week. Your stomach must have rest. But it isn't necessary to starve yourself in order to rest your stomach. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure is a perfect digestant. It will digest all of the food you eat regardless of the condition of your stomach.

Kodol Dyspepsia Cure
