SOLVE COAL LAND PROBLEM

La Follette States Idea of Bill to Conserve the Fuel Supply.

CORRECT ABUSES OF CORPORATE COMBINATION

Government to Retain Title to All of Mineral Fuels in or Upon Public Domain—Prevent Monopoly by Carriers.

(Washington Bureau of The Journal.) Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—Intense opposition has developed to the licensing plan proposed by Senator La Follette as a solution of the abuses of corporate combination for the control of coal lands and other evils which have grown up under the existing system. Much of the opposition is that of those who sincerely believe that the La Follette proposals are not calculated to serve the purpose for which they are intended, and that they are only another manifestation of the paternalistic idea of government. Others oppose the plan because they have yielded to corporate influence.

Senator La Follette was asked to state his case, and did so as follows: La Follette's Statement. "Legislation for the conservation of the fuel supply still remaining in the public domain of the United States should have for its purposes: "First, The retention in the government of the United States of the title to all of the mineral fuels in or upon the public domain. "Second, Provision for the sale of the surface of the lands so as not to impede agricultural development. "Third, Provision against common carriers securing control of the leases or licenses which may be made upon or given to those who operate the mines which may be developed upon this property and also against combinations for the control of prices of the output or of production by the lessees or licensees. "To Guarantee Prices. "Fourth, A provision guaranteeing the reasonableness of the prices at which the lessees or licensees shall dispose of or sell the output to the public."

"Fifth, Proper safeguards as to the methods which shall be employed in mining so as to protect the surface against subsidence and the agricultural interests which may locate upon the land, against the damages not only to buildings and personal property which may be upon the land, but against damages which would result from subsidence and be a permanent injury to agricultural development. "Sixth, Specific and definite preservation of rights of the State or territory in which the mining property is located, to tax as personal property, buildings, machinery and product of mines, so that there will not be in any state or territory under license or lease of the United States, a large amount of property which will not pay its just share toward the cost of government. "Cover All Questions. "In framing the bill which I presented, dealing with this subject, I endeavored to cover all of these and other minor questions. The object sought to be attained in the bill was to cover the subject as completely as possible in a legislative enactment. There may be differences of opinion in regard to the policy of prescribing by law many of the minor details which are included in this measure, but there will be no disposition on the part of advocates of adequate legislation upon this line, to permit insistence on any of the minor details to stand in the way of the passage of an effective law. However, I am firm in the conviction that no law upon this subject will be as effective and accomplish the desired purposes which does not contain provisions covering each of the six subjects to which I have referred."

For fifty years a staple remedy of superior merit. Absolutely harmless
