We Are Sure We Have One of the Richest Sections of the Goldfields Rich Mineral Producing Region

We Feel Confident That Ten Thousand Per Cent Would Not Be an Extravagant Estimate of the Dividends These Mines Will Be Paying Within the Next Two Years

WIRE, WRITE, PHONE OR CALL UPON US FOR CIRCULAR GIVING PARTICULARS

WE SOLD 20,950 SHARES OF BUTTE BOYS CONSOLIDATED MINING STOCK OF GOLDFIELDS, NEVADA, ON MONDAY.

The first day we put it on the market, mostly to friends and acquaintances, who know that

WE ARE NOT SPECULATORS IN MINING STOCKS OR BROKERS IN MINING SHARES.

In justice to ourselves we feel that we ought to emphasize this fact, so that readers of our advertisements appearing in The Journal may know that we are marketing a legitimate proposition and not attempting to foist upon the public some wildcat scheme. If there be those who make it a business to deal in mining shares of questionable value, they are welcome to the diversion, but as for us we cannot afford to mix up in that avocation.

WE ARE BUSINESS MEN OF PORTLAND, AND HAVE LARGE INTERESTS HERE.

And at no time will it be charged that we ever have attempted to "scheme" for a living. Our pursuits always have been honest and above board, and this instance will be no exception to our life-long rule. Not any officer of the company receives any compensation for his services. His time and labor is given absolutely without charge.

THE OBJECT OF EACH ONE BEING TO PUT THE BUTTE BOYS CONSOLIDATED MINES ON A PAYING BASIS.

And this can be the more speedily accomplished by each man placing his shoulder to the wheel and working with might and main to keep the thing in motion.

We put up our own good money and bought the Butte Boys Consolidated Mines, the five claims covering 100 acres, because every indication points to the property becoming one of the richest in Nevada. And now our purpose is to sell stock sufficient to accomplish its development, and this merely because we lack the means to prosecute the work ourselves. In other words, we are taking into partnership a number of people who have confidence enough in us to become a part of our organization, and we feel confident that all such will thank their stars that their reliance on our good judgment and in our integrity was strong enough to induce them to invest in what we believe will soon become as valuable mining stock as ever was placed upon the market in the United States.

It is common knowledge that prospectors are invariably poor. Rich men do not take upon themselves the burdens and hardships of clambering over the mountains with a grubstake upon their shoulders in search of gold. They wait till the mine has been discovered, and then either buy the claim outright or develop it and share its profits with the finder.

TOM CRUSE OF HELENA WAS WITHOUT A PENNY WHEN HE DISCOVERED THE GREAT DRUM-LUMMON MINE AT MARYSVILLE.

Only 30 miles distant from that city. He had not a friend who would so much as help him to a grubstake. One day his condition was mentioned to a Helena dressmaker, and she advanced him $30. Fresh supplies were procured, and within 10 days the golden rocks of the Marysville mountain were discovered, and Tom Cruse was a millionaire. Stock sufficient to develop the discovery was sold, the necessary shafts and tunnels were sunk and bored, and in a short time Mr. Cruse sold a nine-tenths interest in the mine for $1,500,000 spot cash. He then made his benefactor his wife, and presented her with a check for $500,000 as a wedding present. The one-tenth of the mine that he reserved for himself has netted him millions of dollars since, and his bank in Helena is one of the great financial institutions of that rich state. All other stockholders of the mine are likewise independently wealthy, and

WE BELIEVE THAT LIKE GOOD FORTUNE IS IN STORE FOR THOSE WHO JOIN US IN OUR ENTERPRISES IN THE GOLDFIELDS REGION.

It really seems that there can be no doubt of this. The claims are five in number, prolific of free milling rock, and its assay value is positively demonstrated to range from $24 on the surface, to $130 to the ton where the miners are now at work. WHO EVER HEARD OF MINERAL RICHES SURPASSING THIS? Not another mine in Goldfields, with all its monster gold productions, has exceeded this marvelous showing.

As we said in our advertisement on Sunday, our mines were located early in the Goldfields rush. Our prospectors were men of large experience. Immediately they were offered a generous sum for their "find," but knowing the worth of the property all offers were declined until one of our party succeeded in securing the entire 100 acres, the miners taking stock of the company as their recompense for their time and toil.

THERE IS INDISPUTABLE EVIDENCE IN THIS OF WHAT THE DISCOVERERS THINK OF THE PROPOSITION.

We were prepared to amply requite them for their labor, but they preferred to be partners rather than sell out their interests and turn everything over to the company.

SO HERE WE ARE WITH A CLEAR TITLE TO A GREAT MINING PROPOSITION.

Requiring only development to enable it to distribute to a most lavish hand its golden favors to every owner of the stock. And we invite you, reader, to become one of these. We invite you to join hands with us in the interesting enterprise. It is not a great burden for a company to pay the costs of machinery and other necessary equipment to enable the laborers to bring to the surface the gold-laden rock, and all will agree that there is no misery in receiving dividends from a property that without further fatigue or worry is as nearly certain as any mining proposition, not actually completely developed, ever was to

LIFT EVERY ONE OF ITS SHAREHOLDERS FAR AND AWAY ABOVE THE PLANE OF WANT AND CARE.

So far we have our own means and reputation at stake in this mining investment. We are not urging others to take part in something we fear ourselves. We are simply endeavoring to effect a combination of capital and interests that will hurry this matter along—that will enable us to enjoy returns from our investments at the earliest time we can—that every shareholder may be a participant in the dividends without the tedium of delay.

IT IS THE BIGGEST THING THAT PORTLAND HAS HAD OFFERED FOR INVESTMENT SINCE THE DAY THE FOUNDATIONS OF THE CITY WERE FIRST BEGUN.

$1.00 shares, fully paid up, for a little time at only 10 cents per share.

ALL ELECTRIC LINES TO USE BIG STATION

Block at First and Pine to Be Built Upon by the P. R. L. & P. Company.

CENTRAL DEPOT FOR ALL SUBURBAN CARS

Officers of Electrical Interests to Be Housed in Seven-Story Building Which, With Ground Just Bought, Will Cost a Million Dollars.

The entire block bounded by Second, Pine, Ash and First streets has been purchased by the Portland Railway, Light & Power company, which will erect a $1,000,000 union passenger station for interurban and suburban electric cars. The building will cover the entire block and will be six or seven stories in height.

The building will be covered with a huge glass dome and will be constructed of steel. It will be thoroughly fire-tight. It will include waiting-rooms, ticket offices, platforms, and every modern convenience that can be contrived for the accommodation of the public.

Deeds for the acquisition of the entire block were completed and acquired by the Portland Railway, Light & Power company last night. The price paid by the company was $360,000, which, with the cost of erecting the giant building, $550,000, will make the total cost $910,000. However, it is said by officials of the company that the cost of construction may exceed that sum.

WHERE DO YOU BUY YOUR MEATS? ARE THEY U.S. GOVERNMENT INSPECTED THEY COST NO MORE THAN UNINSPECTED MEATS

Besides the offices of the company, the building will include the station now located at Seventh and Alder streets. The headquarters of the company at First and Alder will be removed to the terminal station, and the supply department, now located on Seventh street, between Alder and Morrison, will also be removed to the terminal.

Through the entire station four tracks will be run, enabling the cars on the First and Second street line to turn in a loop through the terminal. Interurban cars, including those on the St. Johns, Vancouver, Oregon City, Cannon and other long-distance lines, will be operated direct from the terminal station. Other interurban lines that may be constructed by other companies will be granted terminal facilities.

Construction work on the proposed building will begin as soon as plans are completed. Notice will be served immediately on firms occupying buildings in the block to vacate, in order that the present buildings may be torn away. On the block are some of the oldest buildings in the city. It is expected that cars will be in operation through the building within a year, though the building may not be completed within that time.

Levy's Music House is gradually assuming orderly shape in its new home in the westland building, No. 126 Fifth street, opposite Olds, Wortman & King's. The same lines—sheet music and stringed instruments—will be carried, only in larger stock, for which the handsome new store provides facilities.

Mr. Bartholomew of the Washington street suit house is back from his five weeks' stay in New York, with his reputation as an exclusive buyer much enhanced by the beautiful suits, lingerie waists and coats that have filled his store as the result of his trip. The lingerie waists certainly put those of other seasons far in the background for elaborateness. They are most dressy, quantities of lace being used especially on sleeves and yokes, and notably Cluny and fillet. One exquisite creation of lace and mull was made up of seven different styles of lace woven together with such taste as to produce a real work of art. The silk suits are extremely beautiful, and only one or two of a kind. These are being appreciated almost as fast as the goods are opened, so striking and original are they in materials and style. The leather shades of brown, with tasseled trimmings, are very striking, also suits in black and white mastic silks.

A prominent writer on men's clothing insists that men are no longer dressed—they are merely clothed. I can't agree with this conception. Men's clothing is built along the most graceful and beautiful lines, as exemplified in the different high-grade shops, with more real beauty in ties, gloves, hats, vests, etc., than could be found in all the flimsier attire of those early days of lace and ribbons. Robinson & Co. have just received their fall assortment of spring goods, which includes a number of the most delicate and becoming shades in hats of the best makes—Dunlaps, Stetsons, etc.—in all the conventional styles. There are grays, fawns, tans, the new leather tones, pearl grays, black, brown, everything in the way of a hat is every imaginable gentile tone. The ties are in many plain colors—red, green, lavender, blue, gray—whatever color best suits your complexion seems to be the particular style for you, and is readily found.

A new art store in town—375 Stark street, Mr. A. C. Christiansen of Omaha, proprietor—promotes to gain decided popularity. The Portlanders have discerning tastes and appreciate the "real thing" when they find it. Mr. Christiansen will handle only high-class art goods. His pictures are by artists in the real sense. He has now on exhibition a collection of the works of Alexander Comper, the great western impressionist painter, styled by many admirers the impressionist painter of the age. His pictures have been annually hung in the Chicago galleries, and many are owned by connoisseurs of world-wide reputation. He possessed undoubted genius, readily discernible in the collection now in Portland, and at once pleases the person who is souther rather than materialistic. Several Portland lovers of art have already purchased a number of these beautiful canvases, and doubtless many others will reach Portland homes.

IRON BRIGADE LEADER EIGHTY YEARS OLD TODAY

(Journal Special Service.) Fond du Lac, Wis., Feb. 20.—The fellow-townsmen of General Edward S. Bragg paid him splendid tribute today on the occasion of his eightieth birthday. The famous leader of the "Iron Brigade" was obliged to keep open house throughout the day to receive the scores of friends who called to offer their congratulations in person. In addition there came to the "Little General" a veritable flood of good wishes from old friends and admirers throughout the country.

He began his military career as a captain of volunteers soon after President Lincoln's call for soldiers in the spring of 1861. His regiment, the Sixth Wisconsin, left for Washington in the middle of the summer, and by the time it had been whipped into shape and was ready for real campaigning, Captain Bragg had been promoted to the grade of lieutenant-colonel. He had command of the regiment from Gainesville, Virginia, to Antietam, Maryland, in which conflict the brigade was given its memorable name.

At Antietam General Bragg was seriously wounded and was sent home to Fond du Lac to recover. He was soon back in the field again and took part in the battle of Fredericksburg. After Chancellorsville he was again stricken down and taken to a hospital in Washington. When the Gettysburg campaign was commenced, though utterly unfit for service, General Bragg insisted upon going to the front, but did not reach Gettysburg in time to take part in the battle. It was the only great battle of the "Iron Brigade" except the closing contests ending at Appomattox in which he did not lead his regiment.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Arlington, Or., Feb. 20.—Iva Elma Wallace, the youngest daughter of Charles Wallace, living near this city, had a close call for her life today. She is only 14 months old and by some accident fell into a wash boiler filled with water in the woodshed. When discovered life was apparently extinct, but Mr. Wallace, after using in vain every method within his power to resuscitate her, hitched up his team and maddly dashed to town, a distance of four miles, for medical aid. The child's life was saved and she is now doing well.
