WEATHER REPORT.

The British Columbia disturbance now extends, as a trough of low pressure, along the entire eastern slope of the Rocky mountains. It has caused general rains on the Pacific slope, which were heaviest in the central plateau states. An immense high pressure area is central over the middle Atlantic states, and unusually cold weather prevails in the lower lake region, upper Ohio valley, New England, middle Atlantic and south Atlantic states as far south as Charleston.

The indications are for showers tonight and Sunday in western Oregon and western Washington, and for fair and cooler weather in the eastern portion of these states and Idaho.
