Mrs. Robbins Seems Determined to Get Divorce Despite Agreement With Husband.

SAYS HIS LAWYER GAVE HER BAD ADVICE

Did Not Realize That If She Followed Instructions of Husband's Attorney She Would Work Injustice to Her Lawyer and Herself

Agnes V. Robbins says in an affidavit which she filed in the state circuit court yesterday that she has left her husband, W. E. Robbins, and has "left him for quits," which means, according to an accepted translation, that she has no further use for him than she has for a castoff glove with holes in each finger.

The couple lives at Lents. They were divorced in December, Mrs. Robbins winning by default on the part of Robbins. Last week Robbins filed an affidavit asking that the decree of divorce be set aside, alleging that he had signed a contract with his wife whereby they had forgotten and forgiven past differences and were to live the rest of their lives in happy peace and loving concord.

Says She Was Suckled.

Now comes Mrs. Robbins into the same court and files an affidavit whereby she not only says that Robbins colored certain facts, but that his brush slipped and he painted white black. Mrs. Robbins did not like Robbins' painting and proceeded to produce vermillion hues in which the word picture, "Liar," was the leading figure. Her painting was not allegorical but seemed to run close to the line dividing truth from fiction.

Mrs. Robbins says in her affidavit that she had been inveigled into the office of her errand spouse's attorney, J. J. Johnson, where, to quote Mrs. Robbins, "we had some talk about dissolving our divorce suit, but that said Johnson volunteered to advise me not to go to my attorney and request him to dismiss this suit for some little time, for the reason, as Johnson stated, that my attorney would, in such event, charge me more than he would do after he should find that I had resumed cohabitation with defendant (Robbins) for some little while, and I, not realizing at the time that said advice was dishonorable and not straightforward, accepted said advice, and did not consult my attorney, and did not request said attorney to dismiss said suit, and did not inform him of any of the facts relative to said agreement to resume cohabitation, and did not communicate with him in any manner. That my attorney not having received any communication from me, and not having been informed of what had transpired, entered up a default in said suit shortly after the expiration of the time to answer.

Back to the Battle.

"That after I had gone back to defendant, he shortly thereafter resumed his drunken ways, and went about soaked in whiskey and cursed and abused me, and threatened me with physical violence until, in about a week, I was obliged to and did again leave him, this time for quits.

"That defendant well knew that the divorce case had not been dismissed, but was still pending, and I repeatedly told him so, and he well knew that I intended to proceed with said divorce, but neglected to appear therein, under the mistaken idea that said agreement forever wiped out my cause of suit for divorce, as stated in the complaint."

Appended to Mrs. Robbins' affidavit was an affidavit by J. O. Petty, a resident of Lents, who knows the couple. Petty's affidavit follows in part: "And after plaintiff had gone back to defendant, defendant was drinking and abused plaintiff until she was obliged to and did leave him for self-protection in consequence of said cruelty and drunkenness."

AMERICANS SPEND MUCH MONEY CULTIVATING RUBBER IN MEXICO

C. N. Cooper, manager of the Castillon Rubber company, returned a few days ago from a three months' trip to the company's plantation in the state of Chiapas, southern Mexico. While talking of his trip this morning Mr. Cooper said:

"There are six American rubber companies, the lines of whose properties join one another, that are now clearing the dense jungle and planting rubber trees in the state of Chiapas, Mexico. These people are spending vast sums of money down there in planting and cultivating the native rubber. One large American company has been shipping rubber from there for two years from cultivated trees, and this year will have many thousand young trees that will come into bearing.

"From the immediate vicinity of the American plantations there are about 200,000 pounds of pure rubber shipped into the United States monthly. We expect that in a few years the Mexican rubber belt will equal in production that of Ceylon, which is now the chief source of rubber supply for the world."

INDIANS LINGER IN JAIL BECAUSE OF LOVE FOR NEIGHBORS ANIMALS

Because Tycona, a resident of the Umatilla reservation, and Ralph Jackson, an allottee of the Klamath reservation, did not realize that the federal law is based to a certain extent on the tenth commandment they are both in the county jail awaiting the action of the next federal grand jury.

Tycona looked with covetous eyes upon a saddle horse and outfit owned by Albert Barnhart, another well known character of the Umatilla reservation. The more he looked the more he came to the conclusion that the horse of right belonged to him. He concluded his observations by riding the horse over to his own teepee where he stowed it away out of sight. Barnhart, however, trailed the lost steed to the tent of his neighbor and being a member of the Indian police force took both the horse and Tycona before United States commissioner John Halley, Jr., of Pendleton. Mr. Halley remanded the covetous one to the custody of the United States Marshall's office and he was brought to Portland.

Ralph Jackson had need of milk for the use of his family of seven papooses, and following the ancient maxim that might is right, led away the nucleus of his neighbor's dairy farm. As a result he made an involuntary trip to Klamath Falls where United States Commissioner Alex Martin put him under $2,500 bonds to appear before the next federal grand jury in Portland. Mr. Jackson furnished the bonds and

PORTLAND LEADS IN IMPROVEMENTS

No city west of Chicago has before it as much street and sewer improvement as Portland this year.

Under ordinances passed at recent meetings of the council 246 streets have been laid out, and the plans will be reported to the street committee at next meeting. In addition 90 streets and 45 sewers are now under construction.

The big Irvington sewer has been accepted by City Engineer Taylor. The Brooklyn sewer, the biggest drain this side of the Mississippi, so the city engineers say, is now well under way. This sewer will have an inside diameter of 10 feet at the river. It will be nearly three miles long.

HILLSBORO PRISONER ALMOST OUT OF JAIL

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
 Hillsboro, Or., March 21.—Charles Patton, colored, a prisoner at the county jail, charged with receiving stolen property, was discovered by Sheriff Connell and his deputies in an attempt to break jail. Patton was allowed the freedom of the corridor and in some manner succeeded in secreting a table knife and a large piece of iron in the jail. Late in the afternoon a grinding noise was heard in the rear of the jail and upon investigation employees in the sheriff's office found Patton fast making his way to liberty. Several bricks had been removed and it would have required but a few minutes more. It is reported that the district attorney had agreed to let Patton off with a light sentence, but the good news was not conveyed to him until after the attempt to escape and he is now likely to get a severe punishment.

EXCITING BATTLE WITH RUNAWAY BURGLARS

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
 Eugene, Or., March 21.—Tuesday night while the proprietor was in a rear room, three men entered the cigar store of Walter Wilnot at Springfield and stole several boxes of cigars. Just as they were leaving the place Wilnot saw them and he and Frank Smitson gave chase. They succeeded in overtaking one, who showed fight, knocking Wilnot down. Smitson then struck the robber a blow in the face, partially stunning him, and City Marshal Shahan arrived and took the fellow to jail. During the night the man's accomplices broke into a blacksmith shop and taking some tools therefrom broke the lock on the jail door and liberated the prisoner. They have not been seen since. The burglars had the appearance of being hooded. The cigars they took were thrown away while they were running from Wilnot and Smitson and were recovered later.

While Mammy was lazily doing the wash,
 She said to herself: "Dis labor is bosh,
 Ah wish dat de tub would run from de room
 And nevah come back to worry dis coon."
 No sooner she'd spoke, when her wish it came true,
 And Kornelia Kinks was the cause of it, too.
