When one sits down and coldly figures out the monumental profits in gilt-edged investments of the class offered by the Butte Boys Consolidated Mining company, Weatherly building, 360 East Morrison street, corner East Third, it is not surprising that its shares are selling as they are. For example, $5 invested two years ago in the stock of the Mohawk mine, a neighbor of the Butte Boys, at Goldfield, Nevada, would sell today at $2,400; $10 invested then would now bring $4,800; $20, $9,600; $40, $19,200; $50, $24,000; $100, $48,000; $150, $72,000; $200, $96,000; $300, $144,000; $400, $192,000; $500, $240,000; $600, $288,000; $700, $336,000; $800, $384,000; $900, $432,000; $1,000, $480,000.

Damages for alleged pirating are being for in a suit filed in the United States circuit court yesterday afternoon by W. E. Nankeville, a theatrical manager, against Keating and Flood, managers of the Lyric theatre. The complaint asks $2,500 as compensation and alleges that the copyright was infringed upon by the manager of a road company which played at the Empire theatre, and that the production of the play by the Lyric on October 21, 1906, injured his business. The Lyric management contended it had the right to produce the play upon payment of the royalty demanded.

The Portland Sunday School Officers' association was organized at the Grace Methodist Episcopal church last night. This body embraces the superintendents and officers of all the evangelical Sunday schools in the city and suburbs, and will meet monthly. Its object is to keep the workers in closer touch with each other, and to coordinate the various phases of Sunday school activity. The officers elected are: President, G. E. Stewart, of the First Christian Sunday school; vice president, E. S. Miller, of the Centenary Methodist; secretary, Edward Drake, of the Grace Methodist.

Charles Carnegie, not a relative, however, of the steel magnate, is being sought by the police on a charge of embezzlement. Captain E. W. Spencer reported to the authorities yesterday that Carnegie, who was employed on the steamer Charles B. Spencer, disappeared yesterday with $100 belonging to the steamer company. It is thought that the alleged absconder is still in the city and detectives have been detailed to locate Carnegie.

EMPLOYMENT BUREAU IS GIVEN A BOOST

Establishment of Free City Office to Go Before People at June Election.

By the unanimous vote of the council yesterday afternoon, the ordinance providing for the establishment of a free employment agency was ordered submitted to the vote of the people at the June election. The ordinance had been returned by the ways and means committee without recommendation. Councilman Rushlight moved that it be taken up out of its regular order and put before the people. The motion was carried.

The free employment bureau has been recommended by License Officers McEachern and Hutchinson for the past two years. Both officers have received complaints of the flooding of laboring men by irresponsible agents and they have carried the matter before the council committees at every meeting.

Upon recommendation of Circuit Judge Frazer as judge of the juvenile court, the council accepted four acres of land from Mrs. S. A. and E. C. Brown as a site for a home for incorrigible children. The land is near the Montavilla car line. The donors wish the title to be given the city, so that if the home should be moved the land may be converted into a park and playground for children. The county, Judge Frazer said, would pay the expenses of the home and the cost of the maintenance of the grounds. The ordinance was accepted and City Attorney McNary was instructed to prepare an ordinance taking the land in the name of the city.

Exposition Rink News.

Extensive improvements to the big maple floor at the Exposition rink have just been completed, and those who skated yesterday pronounce it in more superb shape than ever before.

Skating at the warm, comfortable, steam-heated Exposition rink is especially pleasant during the damp weather, and no place in the city offers more genuine pleasure and amusement. Racing has become a feature at a number of the evening sessions lately and several exciting matches are promised to be pulled off before the week's end.

INDORSES VOTE ON PRISON MEALS

Pomona Grange in Favor of Referendum on Law Passed by Legislature.

FIRST SESSION IN THE CITY OF PORTLAND

Movement Begun to Increase Salary of President of State Agricultural College if Necessary to Get High-Class Man for the Position.

The largest session of Pomona grange of Multnomah county, Patrons of Husbandry, and the first meeting of this grange, ever held in the city of Portland convened yesterday at the Odd-fellows' hall in Montavilla. Over 200 sat down at noon to a sumptuous dinner provided by the Russelville grange, which entertained Pomona yesterday.

Resolutions indorsing the action of the executive committee of the state grange proposing the referendum on the compulsory past law were introduced by Mrs. Clara H. Waldo and unanimously adopted. Against the resolutions indorsing similar action in regard to the $100,000 appropriation to build armories, in different cities in the state for use of the state militia, an attack was led by Napoleon Davis but the resolutions finally were accepted.

Sustains Webster's Contention. F. M. Gill introduced a resolution expressing the sentiment of the convention that all laws before referred to the people should be referred to the people that the constitution be amended so that legislators be elected by a district system instead of in groups from the different counties.

The convention indorsed the action of the county court of Multnomah in invoking the referendum against the law passed by the last legislature which placed the feeding of the prisoners in Multnomah county in the hands of the sheriff instead of in the hands of the county commissioners. Superintendent Chapman of Kelly's Butte was present and explained conditions.

For Corvallis' President. Concern in the appointment of a president for the Oregon Agricultural college was expressed and resolutions adopted asking that a man of national repute be procured if possible. The grange expressed itself in favor of increasing the salary of the position as a means of obtaining such a man. The convention will meet next in June, with the Columbia grange, above Troutdale.

Reports showed the following membership within the county: Evening Star, 260; Columbia, 90; Multnomah, 60; Graham, 70; Fairview, 60; Rockwood, 80; Pleasant Valley, 40; Woodlawn, 75; Latta, 150; Russellville, 120; total, 1,000.

Officers for the ensuing two years were installed as follows: Master, J. J. Johnson; overseer, H. W. Snashall; steward, W. H. Sparr; assistant steward, E. C. Huffman; chaplain, Mary Shattuck; treasurer, J. F. Shattuck.

secretary, Mrs. E. A. Niblin; gatekeeper, A. J. Garnett; porter, Annie Greenway; census, Belle A. Beard; flora, Ada G. English; lady assistant steward, Anna Anderson.

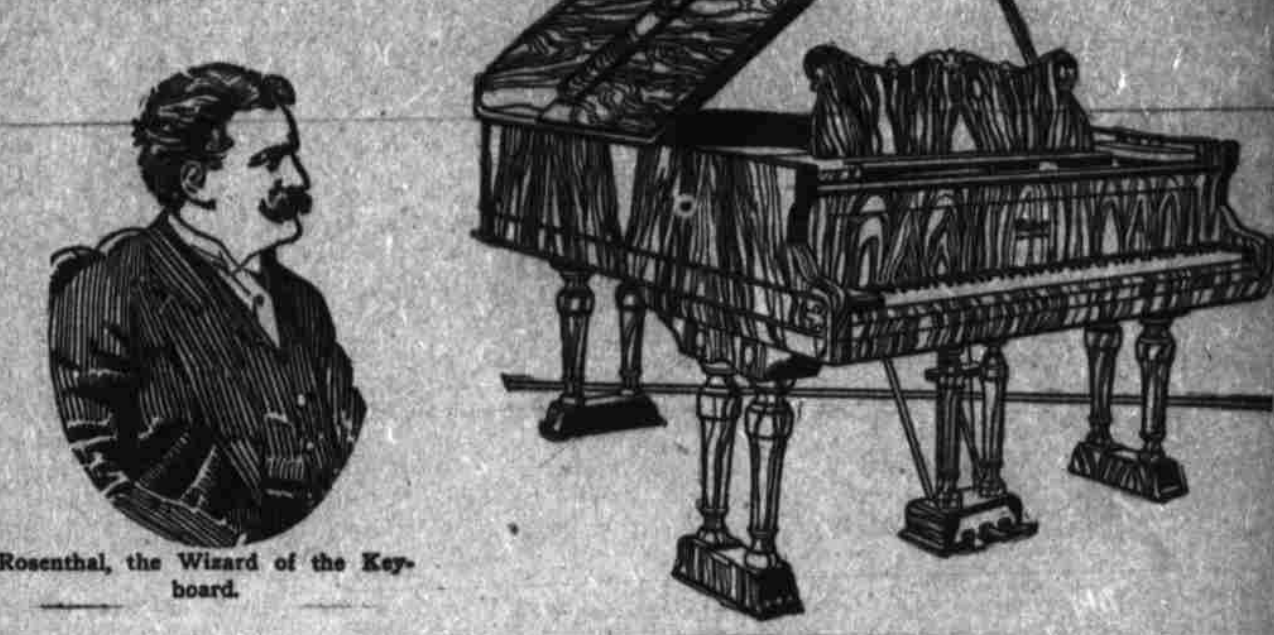

FORMER ASTORIA WOMAN DIES OF HEART DISEASE

Miss M. C. Tupman, aged 52 years, died suddenly of heart disease this morning about 7:30 o'clock in her room, 47 Goodnough building, Fifth and Yamhill streets. Miss Tupman had been troubled with heart disease for the past year, but was not considered dangerously ill up to the time of her death this morning. Since Monday, Mrs. A. Smoak, a friend of Miss Tupman, had been taking care of her. She also had a physician.

All the relatives of Miss Tupman are in London, Kentucky. She conducted the Berkshire rooming house at 2504 First street a short time and had lived on the coast for the last 12 years. During this time she lived in San Francisco and Astoria, coming to Portland from Astoria four years ago. A number of friends in this city will attend to funeral arrangements.

THE MORNING OREGONIAN, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 13, 1907.

ROSENTHAL RECITAL AT THE HEILIG

BY NANCY LEE. Miss Rosenthal, master technician, today captivated a brilliant audience with his stupendous art. Last night at the Heilig.

It seems unfortunate that the adjective for the English language have not been augmented sufficiently to adequately convey the impression of his colossal achievements upon the minds of his hearers. So much has been said that would stagger the imagination, so his art and his work that it is not agreeable, surprise, or find his more their justified.

A happy introduction to a long and wonderful interesting program was the recital of those who had acknowledged his superiority in the technical realm were forced to admit before the close of the number that his interpretation placed him in the very front rank of the best-known exponents. The Chopin Sonata Opus 10, while not so well-known as the Opus 10, still carried its way to the audience's hearts of recognition, his exquisite sense of tonal gradation, and his superb mastery of technique.

In response to numerous recalls he gave in his inimitable fashion three delicate preludes.

The following number embraced a trio of well-known Chopin compositions. The recital was played with such charm, beauty and grace that those who had not previously heard these compositions were brought to the point of their own arrangement. According to a charming demand it was graciously repeated.

The performance was brought to a conclusion by the piano's own transcription and fantasia on waltz themes by Johann Sebastian Bach. Here the youth of the curriculum of the Heilig's musical education, hands, recently published was strikingly brought to mind. It seemed impossible that he could have had ability to conceive of a fitting tonal climax to his already tremendous program, but as he built up crescendo upon crescendo, thundering tones rolled on after another, his audience held their breath, and at the conclusion demonstrated itself into an ecstatic rapture equalled on any other occasion.

One of the wonders of this occasion was that a mechanism of wood and steel could be so delicately and adequately responsive to the beautiful shades of shading and the stupendous muscular resistance of the master musician of the key.

A truly fitting tribute was the Rosenthal's appearance in the excellent series of operas under the Stars-Comet's direction, which commenced with the famous baritone, and followed in order by the world's greatest contralto, Edouard-Jean, Countess, the famous Hungarian violinist.

Made possible the Weber's marvellous scale and action. Witness the olden days, the wonderful Weber tones, perfect power, all conditions truly was the delight of the audience. Truly possible on account of repetition and touch of the Weber's.

Unprecedented test. Here is the reason for Rosenthal's choice of the Weber's.

THE WEBER

The unrivaled artistic standard—indisputably and preeminently the piano of today—tested as no other instrument ever was or probably ever will be, proved the marvel of the Rosenthal recital. The ideal distinctiveness of the tone, the crystalline transparency and inimitable brilliancy of the upper register, the thunderous appeal of the bass, and the phenomenal responsiveness of its action, enabling Rosenthal to attain almost superhuman speed, held the auditors spellbound.

One cannot but admire Rosenthal's selection of the "matchless Weber," as the medium of his wonderful art, but he is not alone in this respect. Eminent virtuosi, among them Paderewski, who have heretofore used other makes and indorsed such instruments a few years ago (which testimonials are being published and used today by other dealers in a wild endeavor to rally prestige to the old standards), now recognize the superiority of the Weber.

The Weber is rapidly replacing the other makes in the homes and studios of the greatest artists—in the courts of Europe, in mansions of the wealthy and the highest artistic circles everywhere.

IT'S WEBER TONE. IT'S WEBER CONSTRUCTION. IT'S WEBER INDIVIDUALITY. IT'S WEBER DURABILITY that elevates it to the topmost pinnacle of supremacy.
