BUTTER PRICE ABOUT TO DROP

Receipts Are Catching Up With the Demand and Most Orders Are Filled.

TRADE EXPECTS DECLINE DURING COMING WEEK

Another Sharp Break in Egg Values Due to the Accumulated Holdings of Country Shippers Who Expected an Advance for Easter.

Principal market features today:
Butter market to drop.
Cold storage men wreck eggs.
Veal and hogs are lower.
Millstuffs are quoted firm.
Bean prices are advanced.
Wheat and flour very firm.
Potatoes and onions are stiffer.
Great weakness in hide market.
Hops are very slow sale.

Creamery Butter to Drop.

It became apparent in the wholesale market today that supplies of butter are gradually getting heavier and that at this time the stocks are almost, if not quite up to the demand. Along Front street supplies are ample for all present requirements of the trade—in fact the market is not quite so firm as it was a few days ago. With the moderation of the weather the grass is growing very rapidly now and it is but a question of a few days, next week at the most, before values will begin to go backward. This, unless there is another very sudden change in weather conditions. City creamery men report butter supplies are more ample and orders are now being filled almost in their entirety. This in itself shows the greater supplies and a continuance of these conditions will mean that lower prices will prevail the coming week.

Cheese remains very firm with supplies scarce and prices unchanged.

Cold Storage Men Wreck Eggs.

Along with those country shippers who thought they could force the egg market to a higher point, the cold storage operators are now bent upon wrecking the egg market. For the present break in values the trade lays most of the blame upon the shoulders of the shippers, for most of them held back the major portion of their supplies until Friday when they thought they could get an extra advance because of the Easter demand. In this they failed, for every one began to ship eggs at once and had it not been for the fair demand from the north yesterday afternoon the market would have gone to pieces. As matters stand today the egg market is very complicated with prices so badly broken that not two dealers are today quoting the same figure. As far as the buying trade is concerned, however, there is a unit of opinion for all agree that the price is broken and none of them care to pay over 15c or possibly 20c a dozen. The latter price is the extreme high point.

Poultry Continues Scarce.

Supplies of poultry along Front street continue scarce but this scarcity is more than made up by the very liberal supplies of eastern storage stock the retailers have on hand. While there is a famine on the street the retail trade is not without poultry at any time and values are unchanged.

Veal and Hogs Are Lower.

With the moderate weather there is a softer tone to the dressed meat market and both veal and hogs are showing lower prices. Spring lambs continue in demand at the figures quoted but the market is not quite so firm as a day or so ago.

This is the last day of Lent and the trade is still without supplies of fresh salmon. The markets had ample supplies of fresh halibut, frozen salmon and frozen smelt to meet all demand. Plenty of fresh salmon promised next week—after Lent.

Great Weakness in Hide Market.

There is great weakness shown in hide values and although unchanged today the tendency is downward. The weakness here is due to the severe break in prices in the east, the latter being due to the fact that eastern values were too high to admit of exports to Europe, thus causing an accumulation on this side.

Brief Notes of the Trade.

Both the potato and onion markets show a firmer tone today on account of the higher figures being received in the south.

Hop sales are very few and the market is lapsing again into severe dullness.

Bean prices are higher owing to the floods in the growing districts in California. Pinks, bayous and large whites show advances from ¼ to ½c a pound.

Flour and wheat are firmer with values unchanged. California demand for bran is very good at prices that net the shipper a fractional advance over the values ruling here.

The trade pays the following prices to Front street. Prices paid shippers are less regular commissions:

EGG MARKET DECLINE DUE TO MANIPULATION

It is expected by the general trade that the price of eggs will again touch the low mark on the present movement owing to the expected great increase of supplies. It will not take heavy arrivals at this time to cause this for the trade is scared and will jump at its own shadow. The responsibility of the sharp break is laid at the door of both shipper and cold storage operator by the general trade; the latter being at fault for accumulating supplies at this time of the year with the object of advancing prices and then shipping all in a bunch. The cold storage operator is looking for cheap eggs and will do all in his power to put them on a storage basis. This would be around 17 and 18 cents.

Hog Are Weak at $7.25@7.50 but Trade Believes Market May Hold Temporary on Account of Sharp Rise in the East.

Year ago	.....	.....	.....
Previous year	.....	225	106

In line with what these reports have predicted during the past few days the cattle market is higher today, the top moving up to $5.10, an advance of 10c over the extreme high point previously quoted.

Arrivals were nominal today, 26 head of cattle forming the total for the past 24 hours. Not a single head of sheep or hogs arrived in during the day.

The hog market continues weak at $7.25@7.50 for best stuff. With no arrivals in during the 24 hours the market was dead today. Stockmen seem of the opinion that the market will show a further reaction, but its tone and price will depend altogether upon the attitude of the east. The sharp advance of 15c in the east today, coming as it did upon continued weakness and lower prices there, may possibly mean that the market has stopped on its downward movement and may hold steady for awhile.

Sheep are too scarce to quote and printed figures are nominal.

Official livestock prices:

Hogs—Best eastern Oregon, $7.25@7.50; stockers and feeders, $7.00; China fats, $6.75@7.00.

Cattle—Best eastern Oregon steers, $5.00@5.10; best cows and heifers, $3.50@4.00; stockers and feeders, $3.50@4.00; bulls, $2.50.

Youthful Detective.

From the Youth's Companion.

Bobby's mother had taken him to church to hear the evening sermon, and they occupied seats in the gallery, where there was more room than on the main floor. Bobby tried not to allow his attention to wander from the preacher, but it did. He seemed to be particularly interested in a family who sat in front of him, and when the sermon was about half over he whispered to his mother:

"Mamma, I never saw these people before, but I know their name."

"Hush, dear."

"But I do," persisted Bobby. "Their name's Hill."

"How do you know?"

"Every time the preacher says his text, 'I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills,' those two big girls look at each other and smile."

Subsequent inquiry proved that Bobby was right in his guess.

Chicago, March 30.—The wheat market was sharply advanced today with heavy buying by big people. News was bullish, the damage reports being continued.

Modern Miller says: "The generally fair prospects of the winter wheat crop are maintained, growth being normal at this season of the year. It is general, especially in the southern territory. No further deterioration in the condition of the crop of the southwest, though the bug is reported in Ohio and Indiana. Where the plant looked poor, improved prospects are noted since growing weather set in."

There will be no session of the grain exchange Tuesday on account of the city election.

STUDENTS AT ODDS

Revolution in Progress in Coimbra University Over Hazing.

The students of the University of Coimbra, Portugal's most famous seat of learning, are in the throes of a revolution. The strictly up to date element have turned reformers and aim to abolish, or at least ameliorate the practice of hazing.

The conservatives are struggling to save all the old-time traditions of the university. Between the two the freshman is getting decidedly the worst of it.

From time immemorial it has been the custom to call the newly entered student "caloiro," which is equivalent to "freshy," and the "caloiro" has been the object of all the rough practical jokes that the older students could invent. There was in particular a sort of initiatory process.

Groups of upper classmen laid in wait for freshmen in dark streets at night, armed with large wooden spoons. When they caught a newcomer they demanded to know if he had as yet secured a patron and protector in an upper class.

Of course he hadn't, so they fell on him and drubbed him unmercifully with the wooden spoons. Then he was allowed to choose a patron, and was at least immune from thrashing.

The liberals, as the innovating students call themselves, consider all these proceedings beneath the dignity of twentieth century scholars. For the title "caloiro" they propose to substitute "novato," which simply means new man or newcomer.

Realising that the street thrashings are too dear a privilege to be suddenly given up, they propose a compromise. Instead of the wooden spoons, which are called "mocas" or maid servants, they suggest the use of olive switches, and instead of administering the drubbings haphazard in the street, they propose to hold tavern parties, order the "novatos" to be present two or three at a time and initiate them as a feature of the festivities.

The conseravtives bitterly resent these proposals. They are determined to stick to the good old ways. The liberals are full of zeal, and the result is that of late almost every freshman has had two lickings, the one administered in the old way by the conservatives and the other in the new way by the liberals.

The Doctor That Turned.

The proud boast of a certain New Jersey town is its possession of a physician well qualified to be ranked in the first class in his profession. Ill health and extreme diffidence have cooperated in limiting his fame.

In religious belief a Catholic, he has often been called to give medical aid to members of the clergy of that creed, but on more than one occasion anxiety and pain have swayed the judgment and loyalty of his patient. The doctor has always yielded gracefully to the request for a New York or Philadelphia specialist.

Recently it was the doctor's turn to become very ill, and for a time his life was despaired of. His clerical friends arose en masse and vied with one another in their efforts to encourage and to reconcile him.

In spite of his critical condition they awaited in vain a request from him for the last sacraments. Sense of duty finally compelled them to remind him of his spiritual obligations.

"Any one of us will be glad to give you the church's blessing," they said.

His expression of gratefulness changed abruptly to one of feigned disdain as he replied:

"You must send to New York for a specialist in theology."

Why He Didn't Wish to Go.

From the London Evening Standard.

The children in the Sunday school class were getting restless, and the vicar, to divert them, asked all who wished to go to heaven to stand up. The whole school rose except one little boy.

"Don't you want to go to heaven, my little lad?" asked the vicar.

"Yes, sir," was the response, "but I know mother doesn't want me to go just yet."

TWO TONS OF STOLEN GIANT FOUND AT BUTTE

Within Twenty-Five Feet of Railway and a Bonfire—Stolen From Amalgamated.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Butte, Mont., March 30.—Two tons of dynamite that was stolen during the recent labor troubles in this city was found last night by officers cached in a building surrounded by other structures in the eastern portion of Butte. The find caused much excitement by reason of the fact that the powder had been secreted within 25 feet of railroad tracks and within 20 feet of a bonfire which had been built several nights ago.

The powder was stolen from the cars of the Amalgamated Copper company while en route to the company's magazines. The theft was amazingly bold.

SETTLED STRIKE

all street railroad, gas, electric, telephone and other franchises."

The suggestion is made that "some evil-minded persons, who have come under ban of the grand jury because of the supervisors having held them up, might wish to make reprisals against those who have contributed to the grand jury expense fund," in which case, it is hinted, the banks would be attacked, causing a panic.

Schmitz Fights for Control.

It was learned this morning that Mayor Schmitz has made overtures to several supposedly weak members of the board of supervisors to resign in order that he may have an opportunity to appoint their successors. Two of the members are now under the control of Schmitz. These are Tveitmoe and O'Neil, who had no hand in the graft, as they were only recently appointed. All others, 16 in all, are controlled by Heney and the grand jury.

Schmitz could block any attempt to repeal the franchises that were granted by the confessed boodlers if he could secure three more supervisors who would do his bidding, as it requires 14 votes to pass a measure over the Mayor's veto. Supervisor Kelly said last night:

"The present board of supervisors has no intention of resigning. There is no chance for us to do so. Most of us would like to do so, but there is a big stick held over our heads. The grand jury will not permit us to get out, but we are more than willing, and a request has been made by the mayor that we retire."

Detwiler Will Return.

It is thought that certain corporation interests are responsible for the latest attempt by Schmitz to recover control of the board, at least in a negative sense.

The graft prosecutors are now satisfied that A. K. Detwiler, the Ohio capitalist, will surrender as soon as he places his affairs in shape, and the order to the sheriff and police to apprehend him will probably be withdrawn.

Vault Was for Fiddle.

Schmitz consented to tell what the secret vault in his old residence was used for. He said he kept his violin there, as it was an old German belief that a violin's natural tone will be preserved when placed in a plush-lined box built between the floors.

May Continue a Year.

So extensive have been the deals of the boodling officials of San Francisco and the bribe-giving "higher ups," that the end of the San Francisco investigation may not come during the present year. Rudolph Spreckels, who has backed the prosecution with funds, said last night that probably all the remainder of 1907 would be required to seek out the grafters and punish them.

Spreckels asserted also that the inquiries would not end until every bribegiver in the city had been found and punished, and that he would personally guarantee the prosecutors sufficient funds to carry their work through to the end.

Strange Indian Names.

However rapidly the Indian is traveling the path of civilization, it is plain from a casual reading of the notices in the South Dakota newspapers of inherited Indian lands for sale that their names do not change. In one of these advertisements appear the following:

Edward Snow Boy, Emily Crow Dog, Joseph Red Leaf, Little Bird, R. Spotted Eagle, Lob Long Ear, Lizzie Lone Bull, Jonah Iron Whip, Samuel Four Star, John Omaha, Julia Humming Bird, J. Pretty Feather, Jonah One Elk, R. Crazy Eyes, Lizzie Long Ear, Medicine Horn, Feather-in-the-Ear, Cecelia Curly Feather, Robert Kill Bear.

Probably a fourth of these Indian heirs bear the names of white fathers. Half a century ago a colony of Frenchmen settled in the vicinity of the Mandans and Brule Sioux, and nearly every one of them married an Indian. Their progeny are represented by such names as Picotte, Achambeau, Arconge, De Fond, Brunot, Dezera, Tasagye, Bruyer. Descendants of these Frenchmen own great tracts of land and many cattle in the northwest.

Many of the Indians still retain their old form of name. From another advertisement come these: Sunkakoki; api, Iwankemwastwin, Cuncagewokanna, Ouncagetopawain, Wawoklyewin, Pejutatowin, Wakocoarawin and the like.

Kaiser's Most Studious Son.

From the Glasgow Herald.

Of all the kaiser's sons Prince August Wilhelm is the most studious and the one who is fondest of literature and art. Since he left the military school at Ploen, where he and his brothers were educated, he had had but little opportunity of devoting himself to study.

His two trimesters at Bonn university barely sufficed for him to attend a score of lectures. Then came a rapid tour around the museums and picture galleries of Italy with his tutor, at cost tout. The prince's desire was to return to the university for at least a couple of years, but his marriage will put an end to this and drilling a squadron will be his fate instead.

TURN BACKS ON THE LAND OF BIRTH TO BECOME AMERICANS

More foreign residents of Multnomah county appeared at the courthouse in March to file their declaration of intention of becoming citizens of the United States than in any month since the new law went into effect September 27, 1906. There was 86 declarations filed and nearly every leading country in the world was represented. England led off with 24. Norway was a close second with 23 of her subjects coming under Uncle Sam's protection. Russia was third with 10, and other countries ranged as follows: Denmark 8, Austria 4, France 2, Switzerland 4, Italy 5, Germany 4, Hungary 2 and Greece 2.
