

WOMEN'S CLUBS AND WORK

Edited by Mrs. Sarah A. Evans.

Mrs. Johnson a Woman Who Accomplishes Things.

Mrs. Edward L. Johnson who, as chairman of the transportation committee of the general federation, will have charge of the plans for bringing the prominent club women from all over the country to Jamestown for the annual meeting in June, has a most interesting personality.

She is a little woman, full of energy and activity and with great executive ability in that everything that she undertakes is usually carried out. It is this quality which makes her a valuable member of the national board, and it was because she had proved herself so efficient in her own state in her delegation that she was given the privilege of sending her to the national board.

working conditions in life-threatening trades. Much attention was given to the evil of child labor and the conditions under which women toil. Exact reproductions of tenement workrooms were shown, along with tenement housing conditions in relation to health and the way in which tuberculosis is spread in unsanitary factories.

A notable feature was a series of afternoon extension lectures by speakers of national reputation, who discussed methods of industrial development.

The organizations combined in this movement were the Women's Educational and Industrial union, the Woman's Trade union, the Massachusetts Trade School for Girls, the industrial committee of the Century club, the Consumers' League and several other organizations of women.

The League contemplates holding a morning session with short responses from members present; also an afternoon and evening session; program to be arranged later.

An Original Poem

At Famous Sorosis Breakfast.

Sorosis gave its thirty-ninth annual breakfast the other day at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York. Thirty-nine club presidents were among the guests of honor, and 24 of them were down on the program to speak. There were many bright addresses, and Miss Jennie Pomerois, president of the College Women's club, read the following original verse:

THE WOMAN OF THE FUTURE
Is the topic you've assigned
For a little dinner kind;
And though I took the challenge
With a rashness I deplore,
I shall sketch that woman for you
In a few minutes—and not more.

The woman of the future,
If I read creation's plan,
Will certainly be womanly:
She will not be a man!
I know you're glad to hear that,
For we were a while in doubt,
But now I can assure you all
That hink is straightened out.

The woman of the future,
If I read the stars aright,
Will love her club at breakfast,
But she'll love her home at night;
She'll love her children, train them well,
And educate them, too,
And see that all of women's clubs,
Hold quite the proper view.

The woman of the future
Will be both true and keen;
She'll have her smacks of gossip,
But she'll lose the low and mean;
She'll give and take, and thrust and guard,
As all the world must do,
But the thrust will be an honest one,
Through sometimes through and through.

The woman of the future
Will cast an honest vote;
She'll seize the cringing lobbyist
By a metaphorical throat;
She'll dust the halls of congress,
And she'll sweep the civic stair,
And ventilate the corridor
With some unpolluted air.

A woman of the future
My crystal globe discloses,
That she'll model on the pattern
That one sees here in Sorosis.
She has the chairman's grace and tact,
The members' wit and laugh,
In short, she is Sorosis,
Composite photograph!

Honolulu Entertaining

Two Well-Known Oregon Women.

The Honolulu Sunday Advertiser of recent date gives several complimentary notices to two of Oregon's well-known women—Mrs. E. Foster Weathered and Miss Mary Adele Case. Mrs. Weathered and Miss Case, who were on the tour of tourists to Honolulu during the winter and promoting her magazine, the Western Tourist, which is published at Berkeley, California.

On these trips Mrs. Weathered and her party have enjoyed every hospitality for which the island is so justly famous. Speaking of the latest party, the Advertiser says:

"One of the jolliest lot of tourists who have returned from the volcano trip this season was the Western Tour party, who arrived here in Honolulu on the Kaimuki yesterday. Barring the usual tribulations of sea passage, their trip was a delightful one. At Hilo the party was received by a reception committee of the Oregon girls last year, under the chaperonage of Mrs. Weathered, and the party was entertained at a dance arranged in their honor during their night in the Hawaiian city. The following day the Japanese squadron appeared at Hilo and the party were escorted to the volcano house by the Japanese admiral and his officers, who also accompanied the Western Tourists to the crater."

"For the visit Madame Pele had reserved her choicest fireworks and the night spent by the party at the edge of the crater, peering over and watching the lake of fire, is one they will ever remember. The pit was time and time again filled with sheets of fire, in the intervals the streaks of brightness zig-zagging across the floor, while fires were playing almost continuously. The rushing lava, sounded like the beating of surf. To this accompaniment the watchers sang their national airs, the Japanese joining in with the Americans in 'America' and singing with a will."

Mrs. E. Foster Weathered and the members of the Western Tour party were entertained last night at a reception given by Princess Emma DeFries."

In the same issue of the paper is a very handsome double column picture of Miss Case, of whose singing the paper speaks in almost extravagant, though well-deserved praise.

Miss Case has been giving some concerts on the island and has become immensely popular.

friends will also be welcome, and a cordial invitation is extended to the state or local press clubs to which the league members may belong.

The National Editorial association will be in session the week of June 10, on which date President Roosevelt will address that organization. The Federation of Women's clubs will meet a few days earlier, so that a week's visit can be made to include both meetings.

Refreshment tables will be provided for the exposition, and hotel accommodations can be secured at reasonable rates.

All members of the League of American Pea Women who contemplate attending this reunion at Jamestown on June 11, will please notify Miss Elizabeth Hyde, corresponding secretary, in order that some estimate may be made of the expected attendance.

The league contemplates holding a morning session with short responses from members present; also an afternoon and evening session; program to be arranged later.

A Courteous Reply

From Greatest Expert of All.

All his life Dr. Wiley has been a stickler for pure food and pure food laws. When he was state chemist of Indiana he was invited to dine with a friend who had had of a very fine grade served with home-frozen cream. Dr. Wiley, suspecting nothing, ate of the cream freely, and his host said:

"How do you like the butter, sir?"
"Excellent," replied Dr. Wiley; "one can fairly taste the rich, pure cream in it."
The host gave a loud laugh.
"Oleo!" he said. "You've been eating oleo, and you never knew it."
Dr. Wiley retorted, with a calm smile: "Since the most expert of us can be so easily deceived, there's all the more need of the strictest laws against impure food."

Tuesday Afternoon Club

Entertained by Mrs. White.

The Tuesday Afternoon club was entertained this week by Mrs. Warren S. White, at her home, 344 Hall street. An elaborate luncheon was served by the hostess preceding the study period. The program in the hands of the hostess was rendered as follows:

Character of Pleading and His Work—Mrs. G. M. Gilman.
Review, Tom Jones—Mrs. H. J. Jackson.
Review, Sterne's Tristram Shandy—Mrs. W. Pugh.
Lady Mary Montagu and Her Letters—Mrs. H. B. Chipman.
Quotations from Don Quixote.
The next meeting will be held with Mrs. George Boynton, 543 East Ankeny street, April 22.

Present Day Club

Holds Interesting Meeting.

The Present Day club held its regular meeting last Tuesday at the home of Mrs. C. G. Tipton, 719 East Main street. An able paper on Corporations was given by Mrs. Pallett. Mrs. Tipton conducted the table talk on the Song Writers of America.

Revised Political Precepts

From Senator Sorghum's Primer.

The reformer is the woman that gets pushed off the band wagon and has to start a procession of her own.

A shrewd enemy may be met and conquered, but a cool friend has you coming and going.

I don't care to write my name on the scroll of fame if I can be the main personage in our local paper at election time.

Occasionally a politician tries to pose as a martyr because of the mental anguish she undergoes in sacrificing her friends.

Anybody can keep a promise, but it sometimes requires an artist to break one.

The complaint of the treachery of a friend usually indicates that the woman hasn't been discriminating in her early companionships.

The cares of the office holder are great, but they are slight in comparison to the worry of the woman who hasn't any office but wants one.

People who know lots and do not try to do anything are nuisances. So are people who do not know anything and try to do lots.

Advertising helps club women, but the rule that applies to ordinary commerce still holds; there is no use trying to boom a really worthless article.

Half a club woman's time is spent in fearing she won't be talked about, and the other half in fearing that she will.

Some politicians set out to win at any cost. The wise ones devote themselves to winning at as little expense as possible.

It is not wise to be too lavish with your promises. Don't waste your bet.

The game of club politics is like some other games. A lot depends on knowing just when to quit using the telephone.

Club harmony consists in having your own way and persuading other people to be resigned to fate.

Some women insist upon going into politics when they ought to be taking to the tall timber.

I very much fear that elections are not so honest as they should be. A lot of people make promises and then don't deliver the goods.

When a candidate has been elected, congratulations of people who supported her are so numerous that she wonders how her opponent got any votes at all.

If I had my life to live over I think it possible that I might prefer literature to politics. In literature you can work under an assumed name.

Queuing in the Chinese Army.

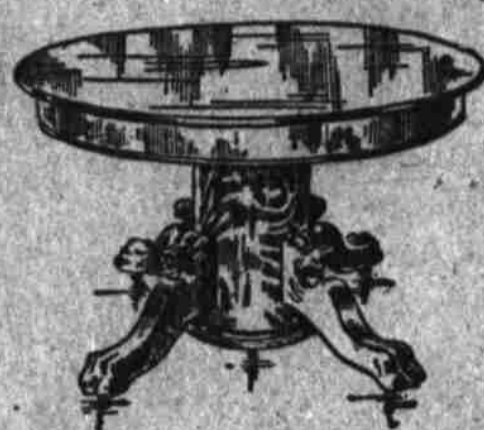

The pay of a private soldier in General Ma's army is about seven Mexican dollars a month. That general is supposed to have entirely done away with the "queuing" of the soldiers' pay. In order to do so it was necessary to behold "three or five" officers.

There is some doubt, though, asserts a recent writer in the Metropolitan Magazine, whether or not this evil is entirely done away with. One soldier was asked if he would fight if China got into trouble with the Russians. "What risk my life for a dollar and a half a month!" he replied.

Female Immigration.

"It is amazing," says an Ellis Island official, "what a wonderful increase there has been in the immigration of women during the past 14 years. Fourteen years ago—yes, even 10 years ago—fully two-thirds of the women who arrived came as dependents. Today, two-thirds of them make their own living."
