

SAYS FRANCE BROKE PLEDGE

Resolution Adopted by Meeting at Hellig Protests Against Treatment of Catholics.

GOVERNMENT OFFICIAL ADDRESSES AUDIENCE

Professor Monaghan Severely Scores French Government for Attitude Regarding Catholic Church in That Country—Governor Previews.

"The French Crisis—a Layman's View," was the subject of a grilling given the French government last evening at the Hellig theatre before a great audience, by Professor J. C. Monaghan, chief of the bureau of consular reports at Washington. The speaker declared that the so-called French republic, on close examination, appears to be a despotism against which the French people are powerless to defend themselves.

Governor George E. Chamberlain presided at the meeting. The following resolution was adopted by the audience:

The Resolution submitted.
Whereas, the French government, in the course of its war against Christianity in France, has violated its solemn pledges with the holy see, has interfered with the rights of conscience of its Catholic people, has robbed many thousands of priests and nuns of their goods and has reduced them to poverty, and has treated them unjustly and tyrannically in many other ways,

"Resolved, that we, citizens of Portland, declare that such acts are unworthy of a humane and civilized government and a treaty on its boasted watchword—liberty, equality, fraternity—and we call upon all American citizens in the name of religion, humanity and justice to join with us in our solemn protest."

Government Official's Remarks.
Professor Monaghan said oppression of religious organization in France reached an aggravated stage under Napoleon, who violated the concordat of justice by arbitrarily adding organic articles to it. Today the situation is even worse than under Napoleon. Today the French government is as much of a despotism as it was under Napoleon.

son. One after another the government has passed laws affecting the priesthood in such manner that the older and more subservient were made bishops and the young men were driven out into the world as missionaries. Fifty per cent of the missionaries who died in foreign lands last year were Frenchmen, said the speaker. Laws have been passed prohibiting meetings that aimed at disturbance of present conditions; suppressing religious associations; and, finally, the law of separation. The church had been plundered and its property confiscated, and then followed measures to degrade and destroy. The speaker appealed for higher ideals in schools, for more moral force, more religious training and for better schools.

T. G. Halley Takes Part.
At the close of the lecture Father H. J. McDermott offered the resolution printed above, and its adoption was moved by T. G. Halley, ex-justice of the Oregon supreme court. The audience then an affirmative standing vote. Preceding the lecture, a solo was contributed by Miss Elizabeth Harwan. Professor Monaghan will lecture at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning at St. Mary's academy on the subject, "The Making of the German Empire."

HUNDRED CONVERTED AT MISSISSIPPI AVENUE

At the Mississippi Avenue Congregational church services will be held every evening this week. There is much interest manifested in these meetings which are conducted by Evangelist Wolfe and at yesterday's meetings there was a marked movement in the consecration of more than 100 young people to the Christian life. An open air meeting was held before the evening service and the church was filled in the evening when Evangelist Wolfe spoke on the text "God is Love."

MONAGHAN COMMENDS INDUSTRIAL PEACE

Government Official Declares Employer and Employee Generally Get Together.

J. G. Monaghan, chief of the division of consular reports, has added his commendation to that of many others on the purpose of the National Industrial Peace association, which will hold its first open meeting next Wednesday night. In writing to P. H. Scullin, national secretary of the organization, Mr. Monaghan says:

"I want to congratulate you in your work and the most excellent method proposed by you for settling the disputes between labor and capital. I am aware of no other way that will in any degree equal the one proposed by you. Arbitrary and compulsory arbitration, if adopted, is bound to fail, for it is bound to antagonize and be antagonized; it keeps labor and capital apart. What the world wants is a way along which capital and labor will be enabled to walk side by side, each certain of the other's sympathy and respect. Your proposition presents the light that meets this world's need—I might add, the world's need. I give you, then, most cheerfully this word of commendation.

"Observation and many years among the masses of men who labor and employ labor have taught me that both are looking for a way in which they may help each other. It is only the discontented, pessimistic workman that is unwilling to see this, and the world, man, manufacturer or employer of labor, the man lacking sentiment, who fails to see it. Wishing the most complete success, I am, dear sir, yours most sincerely,

J. G. MONAGHAN,
"Chief of Division of Consular Reports at Washington, D. C."

INTRODUCTION NOTE FOUND FRAUDULENT

Mrs. De Lude Fooled by Madson With Bogus Letter From Ohio Friend.

Mrs. Anna De Lude, who was mentioned in Sunday's Journal as having been imposed upon by John Madson, supposed to have been John Mathias Williams, the Philadelphia man arrested a short time ago for having 150 wives, denies some of the statements contained in the published article. She says: "I never went to the theater with Madson but once, and was then in the company of an older woman, and I never dined with him at any time. I never saw Madson after his marriage to Mrs. Jones, although prior to that time he had called upon me and my husband at our home.

"I have no personal feeling in the matter whatever, except that I feel I was imposed upon in receiving an introduction to the man who brought me a letter from a friend of mine in Ohio. I learned through inquiry that the letter was fraudulent.

"The furniture in my home was not valued at $2,000, and was sold for only a few hundred dollars. I never owned a piano. The sale was made at the request of my husband, who was in Los Angeles prior to the time making arrangements to move there permanently. He was present when the goods were sold. Madson had nothing whatever to do with the sale. I never saw him after he married Mrs. Jones."
