

UMATILLA WATCHES WORKMEN ON STEEL BUILDING AND PONDERERS

Allen Patawa, Umatilla Indian, Looking at New Corbett Building Across Fifth Street.

From wigwam to steel-framed skyscrapers was too much for Allen Patawa, a Umatilla Indian, who is in Portland to testify before the federal grand jury, as he sat on the postoffice steps gazing at the new Corbett building. Visions of days gone by, when memory aided him in mental wanderings with his tribe over the hills and plains of the Umatilla country, were rudely interrupted by the rapping of the workmen's hammers on the steel, the noise of the dummy engines furnishing motive power to carry the cement and steel from the street to the 'seventh floor, and the dropping of boards and planks.

Patawa dreamed luxuriously in a glorious Oregon sun-bath while the noise of building went on, but once his dreams were interrupted, his mind commenced to piece together the why and wherefores of the new building—why the huge steel girders were not round, but square; why did the workmen put in the bricks at the sixth floor before they started at the ground; why did the white man make such a "hoop his wigwam"; where would the fire be laid that would boil the water and cook the venison; these were some of the questions that Patawa asked himself as he sat dream ing on the steps.

Wonder held him fast as he gazed spellbound upon the huge pile that re quired but a few months for his white brethren to erect. Pictures of moun tains arose in his mind in comparison with the structure that made the work of all the gods of his race seem incon sequential to Patawa. No wonder, thought he, that happy days of long ago, when Patawa's ancestors owned all the great Oregon country and used it for hunting and fishing, had been super seded by the strenuous, restless days of toil of the white man.

Patawa's dreams of past empires and present-day commercialism received the final jolt that drove him to retire to the shade of the federal building when he heard the click of the camera in the hand of The Journal photographer.

How Much Do You Spend Every Year For Cigars?

You buy a lot of cigars in a year's time, don't you? How many of them are good and how many are bad?

If it's too much trouble to figure that out, at least you can estimate how much you'd save and how much more enjoyment you'd get if you could be sure beforehand that every cigar you buy would be a good one.

We have solved your problem by stamping the "Triangle A" on the boxes of the best cigars made.

We know that by making this "Tri angle A" mean "good cigars" to you (and we have to prove it with the cigars alone) we get your continued patronage.

Isn't it plain enough that we MUST produce cigars that prove our claims?

The American Cigar Company cannot jeopardize its interests by misrepresenting qualities and leading the public to expect better quality than is actually in the cigars themselves. The "Tri angle A" really means better cigars for you—and you'll find the proof worth seeking.

For convincing proof of the better quality for which the "Triangle A" stands try

The New CREMO

Every box is extra-wrapped with glassine paper, sealed at each end with the "Triangle A" merit mark, assuring cleanliness and proper condition.

EXPECT BIGGEST TOURIST TRADE

All Transportation Lines Planning Unprecedented Summer Business.

Representatives of Columbia river transportation lines met at the office of William McMurray, general passenger agent of the Harriman lines, yesterday afternoon and discussed summer excursion plans for the seaside resorts and arranged rates and accommodations. The season this year promises to surpass all preceding years for business.

The rate of $4 for round trip from Portland to the beach resorts will be maintained, and also the $2.50 rate for an over-Sunday visit with privilege of returning Monday. These rates become effective June 1.

Portland and the north coast are every year showing a large increase in tourist and excursion travel and special car parties. The steady betterment of the Harriman roads in Oregon will, it is hoped, soon be followed by faster time for through trains, thus further popularizing the Portland route from the east and south.

Oregon Beauties Known.
A favorite route of special car parties is the Southern Pacific northward from Los Angeles to Portland, thence east over one of the northern roads. New Yorkers are learning that this affords one of the greatest railroad outing trips to be found anywhere in the world. People of large wealth who can afford to charter a private car in New York for a period of 20 days cross the continent to southern California, enjoy a few days of that climate and proceed north to Portland, take in the Columbia river gorge, and at Spokane choose between the Northern Pacific and Great Northern for the eastbound trip. Many of them include in their plans a visit to the world-famous Yellowstone park.

Gets Reputation for Sport.
With the development of seaside resorts on the Oregon coast it is said these tourists will make their stays longer here. They will indulge in the splendid fishing and hunting of Oregon when they come to know more about the royal sport to be had in this state. In the last two years many notable parties have visited the state for sports, and the reputation of Oregon along these lines is rapidly gaining in the east.

CANNOT LONGER DODGE PAYING ALIMONY

In order to get out of paying alimony to his wife, George I. Gheen, a confectioner, spent all his savings on automobiles and gambling. The Gheens were divorced several months ago, and Mrs. Gheen was awarded $2,750 in cash and $25 per month for her support. Gheen deposited $2,500 in a Washington state bank and resisted payment. When the officers of the law were hot upon his trail he withdrew the money and spent it.

Gheen was in the circuit court yesterday to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt for not paying the money to his wife. He declared that he had bought two automobiles recently, and that he had no money left. Judge Sears would not accept this as an excuse, but ordered Gheen to produce his books to court May 21.

Woman Looks to the Future in Choosing a Home Location

Select a home that will always be pleasant; where wholesome exercise and air will insure health for you and your children—a place you will enjoy when you are old.

This picture shows a homesite in Rose City Park, overlooking the peaceful valley, which slopes gently to the Columbia, while the symmetrical cone of St. Helen's—never changing, yet ever changing—catching the first ray of morning, holding the last gleam of day, rises to give inspiration and pleasure as long as daylight shall touch mountain peak.

Improve this long-awaited opportunity of buying a permanent home lot, just far enough to be away from noise and smoke; near enough to be easily reached from business; where every restriction and provision is being made to build up a substantial, convenient home locality, including all modern improvements, schools, churches—and the kind of people who make good homes, good neighbors and good citizens.

We are giving Auto Parties every day this week to ladies wishing to see Rose City Park. Our autos will call for you, or you may join parties at our office. Call or telephone.
