It was a fortunate day for the clerk in the First National bank of this city when he made the discovery that cleaned up for him $100,000 and enabled him the other day to start out on a tour of the world, including the Holy Land, Tibet, the Mohammedan countries, Central and South America, and all other regions reachable by man. The gentleman had been working for years at $100 per month, but in that wise moment he acquired the same amount of money that his salary would have amounted to in 87 years and 6 months. The total cost to the clerk of this comfortable fortune was his meager salary for six weeks—45 days—or the same as if he had been paid a salary of a fraction less than $3,000 per day—nearly $4 for every hour of the day and the night—while waking and sleeping. And best of all, a similar proposition is now open to every man and woman reader of The Journal, and it is explained in the Butte Boys Consolidated Mining company's advertisement in another part of today's paper. The person who fails to look it up will not be doing justice to himself. The fortunate bank clerk is well known in Portland. He is not some mythical personage and has not been identified with some mythical bank. His home was at Third and Harrison for more than seven years.

The Ladies' Auxiliary to the Order of Railway Conductors gave an afternoon at home to their friends in the Knights of Pythias hall Tuesday. The occasion was the seventh anniversary of the organization. An address made by Mrs. Frank Wieden, the presiding officer, related the history in brief from the date of receiving the charter to the present time. Mrs. Frank Wieden is well known and intelligent writer of current topics. Farewell was bidden to Mrs. Mattie Hughes, Mrs. Abbie L. Crocker and Mrs. Sam Yestich, who leave May 8 for Memphis, Tenn., in which city the Order of Railway Conductors of America and the auxiliary meet in biennial convention. In the receiving line were Mrs. Harry E. Crow, Mrs. George Dustin, Mrs. Frank Wieden, Mrs. Mattie Hughes, Mrs. J. McKimney, Mrs. Sadie Young, Mrs. J. E. Howland. Numerous friends called between 2 and 5 o'clock and many happy returns wished.

You won't find any flaws in our work. Discriminating people all over the city have patronized us for years—people who demand perfect fit and high-class workmanship above all else, and our work has always satisfied them. We have built up a reputation for our business purely by merit; we know how to make first-class garments, have the facilities for making them and want to make them. You have the pleasure of trying on the store made to your order for $25, no more, no less. Unique Tailoring company, 309 Stark street.

"The Rose City: Its Possibilities and Politics" will be the subject of an address to be delivered this evening at the Taylor Street Methodist church by Dr. Francis Burgess Short. Dr. Short has just returned from a visit to many eastern cities and is in a position to tell the people of Portland where their city has advantages over others he has visited. His present day politics will lend additional spice so that a very interesting evening is looked forward to.

At the next meeting of the Home Training association Judge Frazer will address the mothers on "The Training of Children." He has had wide opportunity to judge of training from results and has studied the subject from points judicial, philanthropic and parental, prompted by a strong love of the young and a disposition to give them all opportunities for a fair start in life without handicap. The lecture is at 8 p. m. in the committee-room of the city hall, Thursday, May 2.

The Young Men's Christian Association, Fourth and Yamhill streets, will hold a meeting for men at 8 p. m. today. After the half-hour concert by the association orchestra, J. E. Wolfe will deliver an address on "The True Nobility." Mr. Wolfe has been a missionary to the Cherokee Indians of Indian Territory, and is now on the coast holding special evangelistic meetings. Mr. Wolfe's long experience in the work makes him a most interesting speaker.

The exhibitions of arts and crafts in the galleries of the Portland Art association have been closed and will be reopened to the holders of admittance tickets next Wednesday afternoon. The exhibition will close May 18 and will be open from 9 a. m. until 5 p. m. Sentiment in Coon Song

A lively love story with a plaintive strain the feature of our music supplement today.

Melody comes naturally to the African races. It is this faculty which makes the coon song popular with the great masses of the people the world over. The song writer who is able to catch the spirit of the negro songster may always depend on the public to make his work successful. Harry Breen has done this to a marked degree and as a result his latest coon song "HONEY," which is a feature of this week's music section, has gone straight to the hearts of the people wherever it has been sung. Not only has the melody of the song that peculiar combination of rickety spirit combined with the plaintive undertone which is the peculiarity of negro songs, but the words of the song itself tell in poetic language which would do credit to any sweetheart, the longing of the love stricken swain for his Dulcinea. No young man who has truly loved a sweet girl but can sympathize with the sentiment expressed by the song writer when he says:

"When her eyes to me am turning, with the light of love a burning,
Then I get an awful yearning to be kissed;
I can't help it if I show it, and I don't think I'll outgrow it,
'Cause I want her just to know it, I insist."
"Honey" is bound to be popular with all to whom it comes. It will be found in the music section today.
