

STANFORD ENDS BANNER SEASON

Athletic Year Just Closed Is Most Successful in History of University.

VICTORIES OVER RIVAL ARE ALMOST UNBROKEN

Stanford Wins at Football, Baseball, Track Athletics, Boating, and Even Breaks California's Run of Tennis Triumphs.

(Special Dispatch to the Journal.) Stanford University, Cal., May 4.—The college athletic year, which came to a fitting close Monday with a Cardinal victory over the Blue and Gold in the intercollegiate regatta, has in every respect been the most successful in Stanford's history.

Never before has either university had the opportunity to claim as its share of the season's victories such a large percentage as that which this year falls to Stanford. These victories have been well earned and on the whole the most sportsmanlike spirit has characterized all of the intercollegiate contests.

Stanford has had the advantage of experienced coaches and trainers and no little credit for a successful outcome in every branch of athletics is due "Jimmie" Langan, "Dad" Moulton and "Dan" Murphy. The season has eclipsed all others and Stanford has succeeded in building, under the auspices of her own student body, two of the finest athletic fields in the west.

Football of Greatest Interest.

Undoubtedly the sport which carries with it the greatest interest in college athletics is football.

In the California colleges the season generally opens as soon as the students have returned for the fall semester, and from then until the final game between Stanford and California in November it is the all-absorbing topic of interest.

The big football game between the Cardinal and the Blue and Gold in November marks the culmination of the season just as in the spring the final baseball game or the intercollegiate track meet finishes up the work in these sports.

Rugby Proved Unpopular.

When college opened last fall a new situation confronted the student bodies of the two universities. Rugby was to be tried for the first time as an intercollegiate sport on the Pacific coast.

It was evident from the first that the change was not a well come one. There were many serious objections to the game. Neither Langan nor his men knew the game except what the coach had learned during a few weeks' stay in British Columbia in the summer. Very few had even seen Rugby played. From a financial standpoint the outlook was not encouraging. Such a change meant practically no receipts from practice games and the Stanford field would have to be widened. Besides, American college men were naturally averse to the substitution of an English game for the old typically American game of football.

The Season's Work.

Despite these difficulties preparations were made for the season's work in the new sport. The call for men resulted in a hundred candidates, more than ever before, because Rugby gave an opportunity for lighter and more experienced men to compete for positions. But it was noticed that the interest and enthusiasm of the student body was not such as had characterized former football seasons. The interest was one of curiosity and the students patronized the games more to encourage the men than to show their liking for Rugby. In the intercollegiate freshman game Stanford was defeated by California 3 to 0 and the contest showed that neither side had mastered many of the fine points of the game.

Another Trial for Rugby.

The game was a disappointment. It had not come up to the expectations of its promoters. Yet, despite this, Rugby is to be given a second trial next fall. Dr. Jordan of Stanford has declared himself in favor of the game as against football under the revised rules. It is probable that both Fressley and Langan, next year's coaches, will again leave for Australia, where they will study Rugby during the coming summer.

Greater interest has been manifested in the men upon the cinder path this spring than ever before. Under the watchful eye of "Dad" Moulton, Stanford succeeded in turning out the best track team in her history.

The annual interest in track this spring was due partially to the completion of Stanford's new cinder path, which has been pronounced one of the finest in the country.

It is a four-lap track well constructed and fast and has in addition a 250-yard straightaway.

The dual track meet between the varsity teams of Stanford and California was one of the greatest ever witnessed in California. As many people as could crowd within the enclosure on California field saw the Cardinal team struggle with the Blue and Gold in an exciting uphill contest and win out finally by a score of 15 to 17.

Several records were broken during the meet. The most remarkable performance was that of T. R. Langan, who after he had won the pole vault at 11 feet 11 inches, succeeded in clearing the bar at 12 feet 4 inches, lacking but a fraction of an inch in equalling the world's record and breaking the coast record.

Several Records Broken.

In the relay race the Stanford team succeeded in breaking the American collegiate record held by the University of Pennsylvania, covering the distance in 1:13.4.

Beside the relay and pole vault, four new intercollegiate records were broken. De Manuel of California covered the mile in 4:33.3-4; Cowies of California did the high hurdles in 6:15.4; Channing Hill cleared the bar in the high jump at 5 feet and 3/4 of an inch, and in the two-mile Nash of Stanford covered the distance in 10:10.5.

Freshman Disarmament.

There has been much discussion since the intercollegiate contest about the disarmament of freshmen from this meet on the part of California. This action was brought about by California early in the season and evidently it was expected that Stanford would follow her lead.

Stanford, on the other hand, saw no reason why she should do it.

Scholarship requirements have kept many good men out of athletics this spring. At the state university, these requirements are very lax. This year, in fact, the Stanford has but half as many men to choose from as Berkeley influenced the authorities here to allow the freshmen to compete. Perhaps the California cry of four classes to three will continue until the state university reverses her action and allows her freshmen to compete.

Stanford-Oregon Meet.

The calling off of the meet between Stanford and the University of Oregon was unfortunate but unavoidable. Owing to the nearness of the final examinations, it was out of the question for the men to leave the campus the early part of May. It was a faculty order and due to no reluctance on the part of the team to meet Oregon.

Elevation of Boating.

This season has witnessed the elevation of boating to the position of an intercollegiate sport, and for the first year, it has gained all that its promoters hoped for. This year varsity eight were introduced upon the coast for the first time. The regatta in which the Stanford freshmen defeated the Berkeley boys by three-quarters of a length and in which the varsity eight was victorious by six lengths, attests "Dan" Murphy's superiority as a coach.

The fact that the weather interrupted the first attempt to hold the race, in which Washington was to compete was unfortunate. But owing to the agreement which was entered upon, Stanford, by reason of her victory over California, will go north and try conclusions with the northern universities on May 20.

Varsity Baseball.

By winning the deciding game of the baseball series Stanford has also demonstrated her superiority over California in this sport. The first game of the series was won by Stanford by a score of 4-0, the second played on the Berkeley diamond went to California, 2 to 0, and in the ninth inning rally Stanford turned the third game from almost certain defeat into victory and won 3 to 1. The hitting of the varsity team for the whole season was light, but the fielding averages were high. The season's honors in batting went to Stott and Penton, the Portland stars, Stott leading slightly played in a less number of games than Penton. It is more than likely that Penton will captain the team next spring.

Stanford's Tennis.

Stanford's tennis season was also the most successful in years, and the Cardinal teams succeeded in breaking the long string of defeats Stanford was defeated in the women's singles and doubles by reason of the fact that among Berkeley's representatives was the champion of the Pacific coast.

In the men's events the Cardinal teams carried away the honors, and succeeded in adding the tennis chamionship to Stanford's string of victories on track, the football field, the baseball diamond and on the water.

FRAKES BEAT BRAINARDS IN SATURDAY'S GAME

Victory Due to Pitcher Olney, Who Holds Cubs Down to One Hit.

Nine innings of gilt-edged ball was dished up to the several hundred fans that gathered at Recreation Park yesterday afternoon to witness the leaders in the Tri-City pennant race smother the tallenders. The final score was 8 to 0.

It was a big surprise to many, the way the tallenders got into the game, and held the Milliners down to the scratch. Great credit is due Mr. Olney, he of the south paw and fast shoots. Only one hit was made off his delivery.

Ath Houston played a great game at third for the Frakes. The entire Cub infield played like old leaguers. The game was by far the best that has been played by the Tri-City league teams this season. A little bad luck in the first inning gave the Milliners a start or the contest might have run on into extra innings.

PORTLAND CAMP WINS TUG OF WAR SERIES

Twenty-nine members of the Portland Hunt club went for a run along the White House road and over the hills beyond the White House yesterday afternoon. The start was made from Twenty-second and Johnson streets at 2 o'clock and after the run the members enjoyed the hospitality of Judge Carey at his home. Coffee was served on the lawn and a very enjoyable time was had.

VIENNA'S MALE SINGERS SERENADE PRESIDENT

(Journal Special Service.) New York, May 4.—Former subjects of Emperor Francis Joseph resident in this city are on the tip of expectation in anticipation of the arrival here tomorrow of Vienna's world-famed Male Singing society. The organization, which is the most famous of its kind in the world, is coming to serenade President Roosevelt and on arrival in New York the singers will depart at once for Washington. After meeting the president the choir will make a tour of the large cities of the east.

The party numbers 159 singers, their wives and daughters and 15 newspaper correspondents. Their visit to America will cost them in the neighborhood of $200,000. But this is not surprising when the fact is borne in mind that no less than 15 millionaires are members of the society. Mendelssohn, Liszt, Richard Wagner, Johann Strauss and Brahms were honorary members of the society, and each of them has dedicated works to it.
