Eclipse Steel Ranges Best Bakers
$45 Values $35

Call and investigate our great range and you'll have no other placed in your kitchen. It is warranted by manufacturers and ourselves for 15 years, a signed bond given to that effect with every range sold. You will need to order but one, as they last a lifetime. They never fail.

Consider What It Means!

This great offer means that you obtain a High-Class Steel Range and the best Refrigerator on the market—family size—for the price of the range alone. Or you secure Linoleum sufficient for any ordinary kitchen free. Call and investigate the "Eclipse" before you purchase a range. More "Eclipse" Ranges are sold in Portland than all other ranges combined. The freight office records show that. We have the exclusive agency for the "Eclipse," and have contracted for 18 carloads for this year's sales. Building operations have interfered with usual sales, and we must redouble our efforts if we shall keep step with the pace set in the early part of the year. Basements are filled, warehouses are beginning to overflow with "Eclipse" Ranges. We must sell fifty ranges this week, and every week this month. To do so we are offering special inducements, special reductions.

We Place the "Eclipse" In Your Home for ---

If the "Eclipse" we sell you for $1 does not prove entirely satisfactory to you, we cheerfully take it back and refund your money. Could anything be fairer? We run no risk, however, as the "Eclipse" invariably gives perfect satisfaction. The wife will be delighted with it. Try it; it costs you nothing to make the test.

TANGLED WEB IN MALHEUR

Judgment in Case Already Twice
Appealed to Supreme Court.

TWICE REVERSED, AND TO BE APPEALED AGAIN

Comes Up Under New Title and in
New Form Each Time—Real Parties
in Interest Have No Control Over It—Case Five Years Old.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Vale, Or., May 6.—One of the most interesting cases tried during the present term of court is the case of Will R. King versus William Miller. It has attracted a great deal of attention, as it is a case with a history, having been pending five years in various forms and twice before the supreme court of Oregon and twice reversed, being reversed first on an appeal taken by the parties now interested in the case through the plaintiff, and reversed the second time on an appeal taken by Miller.

Each time the case has come up it has been under a different title. The first case tried was in the circuit court for Malheur county in 1902 as Helmick against Fortied, and judgment was obtained for $1,175. Miller was attorney for Helmick and collected the judgment and paid it to the Moss Mercantile company, with notice that the judgment had been previously assigned to the First National bank of Payette, Idaho. The bank sued Miller. The Moss Mercantile company then brought an injunction suit against the bank and enjoined it from proceeding against Miller. This suit was appealed and reversed. The trial then proceeded and judgment was obtained by the bank against Miller, but on appeal it was reversed and a new trial was ordered on a technical point.

Will Be Again Appealed.
King, having meanwhile purchased the judgment against Miller, was substituted as plaintiff and after a hard battle the jury Saturday night returned a verdict for King against Miller for $3,359.97.

Mr. King, being now a member of the supreme court, although present in court and a witness in his own behalf, did not conduct the case but was represented by C. E. Wood of Portland and Brooke & Saxton of Ontario. The defendant was represented by ex-District Judge J. H. Richards of Boise, Idaho.

The defendant has announced his intention to again appeal to the supreme court.

A Famous Legal Tangle.
Among the interesting features developed during the trial was that while Miller is the nominal defendant, the real party in interest is the Moss Mercantile company of Payette, Idaho, who will have to reimburse Miller in the event of his loss, and that while King owns a large interest in the moneys sued for, the creditors of Helmick, including Helmick, are indirectly interested in the judgment when paid the plaintiff.

Another interesting development was that after the judgment was secured by the bank, the manager of the Moss Mercantile company bought up most of the bank stock, and now owned the bank had no interest in court and denied the motion.

IDAHO COUNTY, IDAHO, COVETS FISH HATCHERY

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Lewiston, Idaho, May 6.—Idaho county is making a determined effort to secure the location of the state fish hatchery provided by the last session of the legislature, and promises the state an ideal location at the mouth of Clear creek, a tributary of the middle fork of the Clearwater river. Fifteen thousand dollars was appropriated for the construction and maintenance of a hatchery, and the money is now available from the game funds. It is hoped to have the hatchery under construction early in the summer.

A petition has been circulated generally in Idaho, Latah and Nez Perce counties, and will be presented to Governor Gooding for consideration this week. The petition recites that the natural conditions at and about the proposed site are peculiarly favorable for the accomplishment of the purpose contemplated by the state. Clear creek is about two miles from Koonakia, which is located on the Clearwater railroad. North Idaho sportsmen are said to be particularly anxious to see the hatchery located at the proffered site.

NAPOLEON'S NOTE CAUSE OF SUIT

Ex-Empress Eugenie Is Asked to Late Husband.

MONEY BORROWED MORE THAN SIXTY YEARS AGO

Son of M. Thierry Discovers Mislaid
Document and Goes to Court With Demand for Six Hundred Thousand Dollars.

(Journal Special Service.)
Paris, May 6.—Poor ex-Empress Eugenie, who for some time has been residing near Nice, on the Riviera, has been reminded of her late imperial spouse in a rather unpleasant manner which may cost her nearly a million dollars if the courts decide that she is responsible for her husband's debts.

In July, 1845, Emperor Napoleon III, who as usual was hard up, asked M. Thierry, a millionaire shipowner at Nantes, to let him have some loose change to the amount of $600,000. With visions of stars and crosses of the Legion of Honor, sure to come his way, M. Thierry obliged his emperor, who as "security" gave him a note payable on July 1, 1870, 25 years later.

Before the note fell due M. Thierry died and left it to his son, who did not consider it a very valuable asset, for he never thought of it again until he in June, 1870, was ordered to appear at the Tuilleries, where the emperor wanted to see him.

In the midst of the disastrous war with Prussia, which cost him his throne, Napoleon had not forgotten his note, and told M. Thierry that he would like to renew it for 15 years. The note this time was signed by the signature, with two of his defeated generals as witnesses.

This note M. Thierry mislaid, and did not find it again until a few weeks ago, and he immediately began suit and served papers on Empress Eugenie at her villa at Cape Martin.

WILLIAM JANUARY WILL SOON BE FREE MAN

(Washington Bureau of The Journal.)
Washington, May 6.—A rift in the dark clouds of the political storm, affording pleasant employment for benevolent impulses, has been the movement for the pardon of William January, alias Charles W. Anderson, the modern Jean Valjean. President Roosevelt penned a note to Attorney General Bonaparte setting in motion the machinery of the pardon, just as soon as he learned of the tragedy which had torn from the bosom of his family a man who for nine years had fought the good fight and demonstrated that, once sinning, a man need not continue to go against society. Senator Warren and Congressman Ellis and hosts of others joined in the movement, and January was as good as pardoned the moment the proposal was made.

It has caused the revival of the popularity of Hugo's marvelous tale of Jean Valjean, and there are comments here that the officers of the law might wisely have exemplified the act of the good Bishop Welcome, who, when confronted by the gendarmes with Valjean, calmly told them he himself gave to Jean the silver-handled sticks which Jean had stolen from the bishop after being his guest.

ELECTRIC LINE WANTS TO GET INTO CLARKSTON

Walla Walla and Columbia River
Will Look for Feasible Route
This Summer.

Clarkston, Wash., May 6.—J. H. Morrow of Waitsburg, general manager of the Walla Walla & Columbia River electric line, who was here Saturday in the interest of his company, announced that it was the intention of his road to make a survey from Dayton to Clarkston the coming summer, and if a satisfactory route can be secured the line will undoubtedly be extended to this city.

The principal difficulty in locating an easy grade and entrance into this city lies in the fact that the right of way between Clarkston and Alpowat, along the rocky shores of the Snake river, has been occupied by the Northern Pacific railroad, which last fall did extensive surveying down the south bank of the river. Mr. Morrow made a trip from Clarkston to Anacostis in his automobile to investigate the feasibility of the ridge from Pomeroy to Anacostis, thence to this city by way of Anotin. He finds the distance too great to be considered. Mr. Morrow stated furthermore that it was the intention of his company to effect a junction with the Spokane & Inland at some point on Snake river, and that Clarkston is the natural point for this connection.

HOW BEST TO SPRAY IN THE SEMI-ARID REGION

Vale, Or., May 6.—The Malheur county fruit inspector, E. B. Conklin, has issued a circular letter to the fruit growers of Malheur county instructing them how to rid their orchards of the codling moth. He urges the spraying of the blossoms and fruit of apples and pears only, as worms do not infest other fruit. The first spraying should be done just as soon as the blossoms fall while the calyx cup is still open. He cites the fact that successful orchardists emphasize the necessity of spraying on time, claiming that the first spraying, done properly and on time, is worth as much as two or three later sprayings. In this region it has been found that arsenate of lead is the most satisfactory spray for the codling moth. It is easily prepared and quite inexpensive. One pound of poison to 50 gallons of water is sufficient.

LAST EFFORT TO SAVE MEGORDEN

Murderer Hints in Court at Further Proceedings to Be Taken at Salem.

UNDER SENTENCE TO HANG TWENTY-EIGHTH OF JUNE

He Killed His Wife in the Course of a Family Row, but Has Tried to Evade First Degree Penalty—
Other Convicts Sentenced.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Vale, Or., May 6.—When Holliver Megorden, the murderer, was asked by Judge Davis Saturday if he had anything to say why sentence should not be passed upon him replied that he had no statement to make further than that he gave notice, that he discharged all of his attorneys and would have his case attended to at Salem. Megorden was then sentenced to be hanged at Salem on June 28, 1907.

Megorden, who lived on a farm near and adjoining Nyssa, this county, in March, 1905, shot and killed his wife. The circumstances of the killing were as follows: Megorden had been to Vale, a distance of 18 miles, to pay his taxes, and on returning home, according to his statement, he was not given any supper, whereupon a family row occurred, during which a son about 18 years old struck Megorden with a gun. During the melee Mrs. Megorden started to run to the house of a neighbor, but was overtaken by her husband and shot and killed.

At the September term of the circuit court for Malheur county for 1905, Megorden was tried, found guilty and condemned. His (Megorden's) attorney appealed to the supreme court for a new trial, upon the grounds that the evidence in the case was not sufficient to justify a conviction of murder in the first degree. The supreme court denied a new trial and remanded the defendant to Vale for resentencing.

Others Sentenced at Vale.
Henry Cannon, on the last day of the term received a five-years sentence in the penitentiary for horse stealing. B. R. Miles, indicted jointly with Cannon, entered a plea of guilty and in consideration of his aiding in the conviction of Cannon, was given a three-years sentence.

Floyd Roberts of Ironsides was found guilty by the jury of assault with intent to kill. He was recommended to the extreme clemency of the court, and was sentenced to the penitentiary for one year, the minimum penalty for such crime.

Dock Anderson of Beulah was sentenced to six months in the county jail for permitting gambling and for selling liquor without a license.

Bill Anderson of Westfall, on a plea of guilty as charged, was fined $50 for selling liquor to minors.
Herman Wise's new store is the finest one in the state, thinks J. H. Astoria Budget.
