

NEW STEAMER MAKES PLUNGE

Little Miss Ruth Teal Christens Craft as it Starts for the Water. NAMED IN HONOR OF ATTORNEY J. N. TEAL

Completion of Steamer Means Much to Country Contiguous to the Upper Columbia—Will Be Ready to Go into Commission in Few Days.

J. N. Teal, the new sternwheel steamer built by Joseph Ripple for the Open River Transportation company, is now practically ready to go into commission carrying passengers and freight between this city and Big Eddy, a point about three miles above The Dalles. She was launched yesterday afternoon from the ways at Ripple's yard, and is complete except for the furnishing of the cabin and a few minor details to the machinery.

The completion of the steamer will mark the beginning of a new era for the country contiguous to the upper Columbia, because it provides the least expensive method of transportation with the metropolis and the commercial center of the state.

The launching was a perfect success in every respect. It occurred at 2:30 o'clock, and little Miss Ruth Teal, daughter of J. N. Teal, father of the Open River movement, and in honor of whom the craft was named, released the bottle of champagne that sent the floating palace into her element.

Steam had been generated in the large boilers and for the first time in the history of the port did a new craft slide down the ways with her whistle heralding her debut to the world. Other whistles, from factories and steamboats, responded spontaneously, and the splash of the white and crimson hull as it struck the water was almost smothered in the wild din of the sirens. The crowds that lined every point of vantage surrounding the yard gave vent to a shout of delight when the hull broke from her position and after trembling a moment shot into the river nearly a hundred feet distant. It all happened in less time than it takes to tell it, and the photographers who had trained their cameras had no time to waste.

A customary with river craft, the Teal was sent broadside into the water. She rode like a swan, and shipping men who watched her were astonished to note that she drew but 18 inches of water, although practically fully equipped.

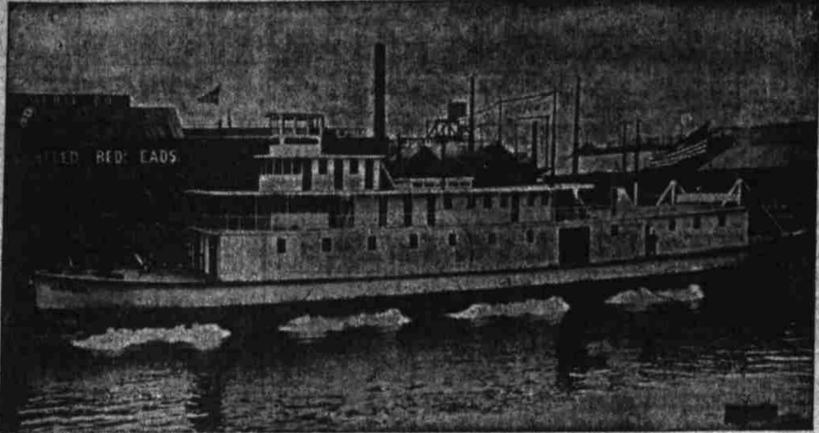

Very Light of Draft. At this rate it is figured she will draw but 20 inches when loaded with a couple of hundred tons of freight. J. W. Johnston, who designed the lines, intended to make her the lightest draft boat on the Upper Columbia river, and those who have seen her say he has met with success.

Other steamers plying between Portland and The Dalles draw from three to six feet and they find it impossible at times during the dry summer months to make the rapids below The Dalles. It is believed that a solution of this serious problem has been found in the J. N. Teal as it has been demonstrated that the light draft boats are also the best kind of rapid climbers.

Superintendent Frank Smith, who has had years of experience on these rivers, is fully convinced that the Teal will have no trouble whatever in covering her route on schedule at all times of the year, and what is more, she will go beyond The Dalles and form direct connection with the state portage road to Celilo and connecting there with the steamer Relief.

Great Freight Capacity. The new boat is not the largest to go on the run selected, but she will carry more freight in comparison to her dimensions than any of the boats now on the run because of the flat and broad bottom. Her dimensions are: Length, 140.10 feet; beam, 24 feet; and depth of hold, 5.6 feet. Her engines will develop 600 indicator horsepower and she is expected to make good speed. This, however, will be definitely determined on the trial trip which has been booked for some day this week.

Among those who witnessed the launching were a number of prominent steamboatmen and all expressed themselves exceptionally well pleased and predicted a bright future for the new addition to the fleet of the port. Only a few of them availed themselves of the opportunity to "shoot the chutes" as they preferred to watch the slide from shore.

The Steamer J. N. Teal as She Left the Ways.

Miss Ruth Teal, Who Christened the Steamer J. N. Teal.

The steamer will be in command of Captain A. J. Geer and Samuel Shaver will be chief engineer. She has capacity for nearly 400 tons of freight and accommodations for 200 passengers. The Oak street dock has been leased and she will receive and deliver freight and passengers there.

GERALD C. ASHOREZ

Gasoline Schooner in a Dangerous Position at Nectucca.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Astoria, Or., May 11.—The gasoline motor schooner Gerald C. is reported wrecked on the North Spit at the entrance to Nectucca harbor. All her deck load of lumber has been carried away, and it is said there is little chance of saving her. She left here last Wednesday morning in command of Captain Tabell. She is owned by S. Elmore & Co. and carried no insurance.

SAILORS, TOO, QUIT

Crew Consider Columbia Lightship No. Fifty Dangerous.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Astoria, Or., May 11.—The entire crew of lightship No. 50, from the captain down, tendered their resignations to Inspector Herlich and will not go out in her again. They are all men of experience, but claim that the vessel is not safe and consider they are exposing themselves to certain death eventually if they continue with the ship and for this reason quit in a body.

ALONG THE WATERFRONT

The steamer Alliance, Captain Olson, will be in the harbor at an early hour this morning. She left up last night. The gasoline schooner Berwick is Again in need of an engineer and Captain Jacobsen offers good inducements to a competent man. Gasoline engineers are said to be scarce.

Captain F. J. Werlich, lighthouse inspector, will leave for Alaska soon on the tender Armeria. The inspection tour will extend as far north as Nome.

Andrew Weir and Frank Waterhouse & Co. will establish a line of steamers between San Francisco and Australia. The first steamer to leave the Bay City August 10.

The steamer Bailey Gatzert of the D. P. & A. N. company's line will be launched from the ways at the Portland Shipbuilding company's yard in a few days.

The steamer P. A. Kilburn sailed for San Francisco and way ports last night, carrying freight and passengers.

The Norwegian steamer Norman is now taking coal at the bunkers in North Portland. She will sail tonight or tomorrow morning. The Norwegian steamer Titania will be here soon to load wheat for the orient. She is now at San Francisco.

There is some talk among steamboatmen of reaching an agreement as to a uniform rate of wages to be paid employees on river steamers in these waters. At present all kinds of wages are being paid.

MUTINY ON SELENGA

Russian Steamer Has Trouble Going Down River.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Astoria, Or., May 11.—The Russian steamer Selenga arrived down as far as Brookfield last evening and dropped anchor. When the crew were ordered out this morning they refused to go to work until they were given breakfast, and threatened to go ashore in a body. The captain could do nothing, so he ordered the men be given breakfast, after which they went to work perfectly satisfied.

TALENT HAS AN INNING AT OAKLAND RACETRACK

Four Favorites and Two Third Choices Win—Gullett Captures Handicap.

(Journal Special Service.) San Francisco, May 11.—After a long string of beaten favorites during the week, the talent hit an inning today at Oakland, four favorites and two third choices winning. The opening handicap at a mile and fifty yards was the feature. Bedford was the opening favorite, but the tip went abroad that Kercheval, carrying top weight, was ready and a steady play made the Conrad horse a post favorite. Princess Titania made the running for six furlongs, when Gullett forged to the front with Kercheval and won easily. J. C. Clem closed with a rush and took the place from Princess Titania. Results: First race, six and a half furlongs—Yarrowdale won, Talanum second, Metathia third; time, 1:21. Second race, six and a half furlongs—Pal won, Nothing second, Paddy Lynch (C. Williams) third; time, 1:20. Third race, one and a half miles—Bronzedale won, Talanum second, Benvollo (C. Williams) third; time, 2:35.
