

CONTRAST IN METHODS

Now it is being said, with some truth, that William Haywood himself is studying law. His daily conferences with counsel do not cover the mere details of the case arising from day to day, they concern the legal problems actually involved, the whole conduct of this issue of life and death.

Appearance of Blind Man. As he sits with his counsel in court every day, one arm swinging over the back of his chair as a kind of supporting pin for his heavy body, there is a droop to his head that gives him peculiarly the appearance of a blind man listening. His small daughter, whose hair is very red and whose face is very bright and smiling, sits on a chair behind him, sometimes running slim fingers through his hair and sometimes flirting with a messenger boy who sits at the press table.

Through the monotonous hours of the droning summer day the work of selecting the jury goes on patiently and interminably and an apparently endless search for 12 just men, free of bias, just of mind, better than men ever were since Adam. Last week they said we would get a jury by Thursday. Today it seems that we would never get a jury never while men are men.

STATE DEPENDS ON ADAMS

A social hero and was praised inordinately as one who had dared defy the terrible powers of the "inner circle" of Federation assassins. Adams occupied a cell with Harry Orchard for a considerable time, and that bloody personage shared in the popular adulation. Governor Gooding was a frequent visitor and is known to have had several long interviews with Adams.

The confession of Adams was made in February, 1906. In September of that year he was visited by an uncle, in disguise, who secured his liberty through habeas corpus proceedings. Once outside the grim walls of the Idaho prison, Adams at once denied the statements made in his confession. In an affidavit he declared that he had been coerced by Detective McParland, into signing a document, and that he had no knowledge of its contents. The affidavit was of a sensational nature and accused Governor Gooding of backing up McParland in his threats of death unless he adhered to the confession.

ACCUSED FEDERATIONISTS

Adams also asserted that while confined in a cell with Harry Orchard, the latter had admitted that he was to receive a "piece of coin" for implicating Moyer, Haywood and Pettibone in the murder of Steunenberg, and that he was to be allowed to escape and make "a get-a-way across the pond."

Reputed Confession. The reputation of his confession by Adams caused great consternation in the ranks of the prosecution. The document secured by McParland was the trump card of the attorneys for the state. With it the conviction of the labor leaders was almost a certainty. Without it, the threat attributed to the prosecutors, that Moyer, Haywood and Pettibone would never leave Idaho alive, was only so much wind. Adams was immediately rearrested, charged with the murder of Fred Tyler, a claim-jumper in Shoshone county. At the trial, which was held in Wallace early this year, the jury disagreed, seven voting for acquittal and five for conviction.

Clarence Darrow, leading attorney for the defense in the present case, defended Adams, declaring that the accused man was only a pawn in the prosecution of the labor leaders, and that his trial for the murder of Tyler was animated by revenge. Adams is still being held by the state authorities, but it is generally believed that the prosecution will be dropped when the Haywood case is ended. Whether the Adams confession was the truth, as claimed by the prosecution, or a mass of lies "cooked up" by the versatile McParland, as Adams now declares, is a question of great importance in the trial of the labor leaders. NO CRITICISM WAS INTENDED

Judge Frazer Says He Intended No Censure of Governor for Pardoning White.

Circuit Judge A. L. Frazer said this morning that he had not criticized the governor for pardoning James White, and that his words must have been wrongly reported to the governor. Judge Frazer said:

"I was very much surprised on reading in this morning's paper that the governor was astounded by my criticism of his pardon of James White inasmuch as I have never criticized his act in so doing.

"I did endeavor to correct some statements attributed to the governor in connection with the matter and which I believed placed the court in an unfair light before the public. He was reported to have said that James White was the least culpable of those accused of the crime; that the more guilty ones had been allowed to go with the payment of a fine, while White, the least guilty, had been sentenced to the penitentiary.

Was Not Eaten Gullily. "I thought the governor had probably intended to say only that James White was a man of better character and reputation than the others, which is probably true. It certainly is not true that James White was the least guilty of the crime with which he and his associates were charged.

"As a matter of fact James White was the only one of the three who took an active part in the beating and kidnapping of the sailor, Buren; the others were only charged as accessories before the fact or conspirators, and the evidence connected with them in this matter was weak and based entirely upon inferences to be drawn from certain acts of theirs. Under the circumstances it was thought they could not be convicted of kidnapping, and they were allowed to plead guilty to a lesser crime, punishable by fine.

Only Letter of Information. "My letter to the governor was written in response to a request of his for information concerning the case. In it I endeavored to set forth the facts in White's favor as well as those against him and avoid making any recommendation as to his pardon."

CHICAGO BROKERS

In the wheat market today the best values were made within a few minutes of the session's opening. May opened at 93 and went to 93 1/2. July started at 92 1/2 to 97 1/2, September opened with a range between 97 1/2 and 98 1/2, while December started at 99 1/2 and $1 a bushel. In every instance these were the high values for the day.

Green Bug Discounted. Despite the general feeling that the damage by the green bug had been fully discounted by the recent advances, there were plenty of small traders who wanted to peer into the market at the opening, this resulting in the advanced values.

Selling by the big operators began as soon as the sharp decline at Liverpool was announced. News from Manitoba said that spring had opened, and somewhat better prospects as they came from the southwest. The market closed with July at the same point as yesterday, September and December lost 1/2 to 3/4 a bushel, a showing which the bulls think is marvelous when the recent sharp advance is considered.

PERSONAL

W. S. Barstow, head of the contracting firm of W. S. Barstow & Co., of New York and Boston, is a Portland visitor. He will make an inspection of the construction work now rapidly progressing on the Portland-Salem electric railway line that is being built by his firm for the Oregon Electric Railway company, under direction of Chief Engineer Donald. Preparations have been made to rush the work at the Portland end of the line within the next two months. It is said the road will be in operation between the Portland terminal and Garden Home by the middle of August. Ralph Modjeski, consulting engineer of the Hill lines, has arrived from Chicago, to make an inspection of work under way on the Columbia river and Willamette river bridges for the Portland & Seattle railway. In company with the resident engineer and M. P. Stowell, of Chicago, he spent yesterday looking over the Willamette bridge. Friends of Miss Lillian Lawrence in this city have heard from her to the effect that she, Miss Terry and Mr. Sainpille will begin rehearsals today at the Park theatre, Boston. The regular engagement will begin at that theatre Saturday and will continue during the summer.

Deputy District Attorney Bert E. Haney is confined to his home on the east side by a severe attack of tonsillitis. Mr. Haney has been away from his office for several days and while not in a serious condition is reported to be a very sick man.

MAY POLE FESTIVITIES

Fancy Twostep Drill by Sixteen Couples, All in White. A very pretty spectacle in the way of a May pole raising and a fancy twostep drill will be held at the Oaks rink Wednesday night. These couples have been practicing for some time and will present some clever figures. There will be no advance in price, but a special hand program will be provided. Now is the time to learn if you wish to state this summer. Tonight the couples will practice after the session and during the evening a grand march will be given. Go to the Oaks tonight and be happy. If you haven't the Oaks habit, get it now. Let your forget—tonight—grand march—Wednesday night, May pole.

HAYWOOD'S WIFE

defendant and consider him guilty, and that poor farmers and wageworkers are generally a unit in his favor. Should this condition prevail, it may require weeks before a jury will be impealed.

Wife Taken Into Court. Mrs. Haywood, wife of the defendant, was taken into court, accompanied by her two daughters, Verna and Henrietta, and appeared to be in excellent spirits. Henrietta, the youngest daughter, sat in her father's lap during most of the afternoon, and was the target of many camera attacks. She is only 10 years old, but she is unusually intelligent and is taking quite an interest in the proceedings. Defendant Haywood entered the courtroom serene as a summer morning, and smilingly bowed to friends right and left as he made his way to his chair. His long confinement and his present suspense have left no doubt as to his mental condition, and he looked more like a great, overgrown boy than a criminal on trial for his life.

Concerning a story current that federation agents last summer tried to shoot Harry Orchard with a long-range rifle as he took his daily exercise in the penitentiary yard, attorneys for the defense today denounced it as ridiculous. "No agent of the defense or any member of the Western Federation of Miners would think of killing Orchard," said Attorney Darrow. "Our side is very anxious for this self-confessed murderer to live. We want him to tell his story on the witness-stand, where we can get at him and ply him with questions. I think by the time we get through with him his 'confession' will not hold water. No man with the defense wants Orchard harmed at this or any other time. What we desire more than anything else is a fair and impartial trial separate and apart from any killings or premature rioting."

Orchard Now Insane? Other stories are being circulated to the effect that Orchard has gone insane and is now confined in a padded cell. It is said that remorse of conscience over having implicated Moyer, Haywood and Pettibone in the Steunenberg murder has unbalanced his mind. Attorneys for the state laugh at these stories and assert that Harry Orchard will be forthcoming at the proper time, and that when he mounts the witness-stand in Judge Wood's court it will be to tell a story that will astonish America.

Newspaper men to whom an interview with Orchard has been denied declare that the famous prisoner is dead. They say that were he alive and that the state would not hesitate in letting him talk through their papers to the public. It is certain that if he is alive his whereabouts is mysteriously and securely hidden from prying eyes.

PINCHOT SAYS THOMAS HAS PAID FOR CRIME

Forester Believes California Supervisor Has Been Punished Sufficiently.

(Washington Bureau of The Journal.) Washington, May 14.—In recommending the pardon of Everett E. Thomas, convicted of misappropriating government funds as a forest supervisor, Forester Pinchot makes an important announcement indicating that strict compliance with the law will be expected hereafter from all employees of the forest service. "The forester makes it clearly understood that the recommendation should not be taken as a vindication, but says that he takes the action he does because he believes Mr. Thomas has been sufficiently punished and because his family needs his support. Much attention was attracted by the Thomas case when first brought to public notice. The offender, whose headquarters were at Los Angeles, California, stood well in the community and his friends were shocked when the charges of irregularity in his accounts were disclosed. In the early part of June, 1905, he was dismissed from the forest service for alleged misappropriation of funds and falsification of accounts, and was convicted and sentenced in the following March to seven years imprisonment and a fine of $7,000. Later, many of his friends made petitions for his pardon because of the circumstances of his family and because of his previous good standing in the community.

If it believed that his pardon would be a detriment to the public and to a persecuted man, or taken by any considerable number of people as a vindication of his conduct, I should be constrained to oppose it," says Mr. Pinchot in a letter to William G. Kerckhoff of Los Angeles, who represented the petitions for Supervisor Thomas' pardon. "But I do not so believe and I have transmitted the papers to the department of justice with the recommendation that the pardon be granted. I do this because I think that Mr. Thomas has been sufficiently punished to deter him or other public officers from committing like serious offenses, and because his family needs his support, and not because I think he was in any sense ill-treated or punished beyond his deserts."

A plan which contemplates supplanting negro plantation laborers of Louisiana with state imported white immigrants from Europe has been announced by Charles Schuler, state commissioner of immigration and agriculture.
