Attorneys in Haywood Case Will Bar Undesirables From the Jury.

Henry Gault in falsehood. A dramatic incident developed in the colloquy between the contending attorneys over the truthfulness of certain statements made by Juror D. W. Henry.

When Henry was reexamined today he was confronted with the statements of Lovelace.

ADMIRER THOUGHT KELLAHER WOULD GET 2,500,000 VOTES

Before the primaries a guessing contest for school children was inaugurated by Councilman Dan Kellaheer, who offered prizes for the three guessing the correct number of votes that he should receive for the nomination for mayor.

The first prize was won by Cleora Linscott, whose guess was 1,532. The official count was 1,532.

The third prize was even more difficult to win than the first.

Lovelace declared that during last October he and Henry, in a discussion over Socialism, talked about the Haywood case at considerable length and at that time Henry said that he was opposed to unionism and that if Moyer, Haywood and Pettibone were not implicated in the Steinberg murder they would not have been brought to Idaho.

Pressing the point, Attorney Darrow finally succeeded in getting Henry to admit that he believed that Socialism, anarchism and devilism meant one and the same thing.

"Then you are opposed to organized labor," asked Darrow.

"Not when it keeps it place," replied Henry.

"What do you mean by that?"

"I mean when it gets too radical."

"What do you mean by radical?"

"I mean when a man gets up and wants to kill off the town in less than a day."

Further examination developed that Henry had formed and expressed an opinion about the case, and for this reason he has excused.

When court adjourned at 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon it was ordered to reconvene this afternoon at 2 o'clock in order that the members of the bar might attend the funeral of Judge Edward Nugent this morning at 10 o'clock.

Although Mrs. Eames, who secured a divorce from Story a few weeks ago, is not in any sense a doublet of Miss Thompson, there is a startling similarity in the features of the two famous paintings.

Friends of Mr. Story declared that in each there was a blending of his ideal. And in that ideal, they say, the resemblance favored Miss Thompson.

Miss Thompson, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Lee Thompson, is very wealthy.

Mr. Story, it is said, will sail on June 1, and the marriage will take place quietly in an Italian villa.

Miss Anne soon developed as an ardent business and housewife. She became a member of the fashionable Sedgely club.

Also she had the distinction of being the only girl who had ever brought Richard Vaux, grandson of the man famous among other things because he out to award, as it was found that 15 pupils were tied, their guesses ranging within 25 votes of the actual number.

The highest vote received was the guess of an enthusiastic admirer, who prophesied 2,500,000, and the lowest was the guess of a pessimistic individual, who could with reluctance admit that he saw seven voters clamoring for the election of Mr. Kellaheer.

Miss Thompson, one of those sobriquets is "the girl who never laughs," simply made the explanation that the engagement had been dissolved by mutual consent.

It must be said, by the way, that Mrs. Eames did not even bring a suggestion of Miss Thompson's name into her case, and that no touch of scandal was ever brought against her in Philadelphia.

Not less sensational, it is claimed, are the details of the case, which Rufes respecting his dealings with the magnates of the Southern Pacific. It has been the announced determination of the graft prosecution to secure evidence of bribery against E. H. Harrison and William F. Herrin, chief of the great political bureau of the corporation.

In his confession Rufes has told how Schmitz shared the money he received from the corporation officials. He has revealed much concerning Schmitz's alleged grafting, of which the public as yet has no intimation.

The assertion is made that no definite promise of immunity has been given to Rufes in return for his confession. This is a phase of the situation which no one connected with the graft prosecution will discuss, further than to make the statement that no pledge has been given.

Just before, before whom Rufes' case was on trial, the presiding judge, declares that the law is his course. This would seem to mean that Rufes must go to prison but it is thought a way will be found to keep him here to assist in the graft cases.

San Francisco, Cal., May 15.—Stating that he is absolutely indifferent to the penalty which will be imposed upon him by the court, and that he has not the slightest idea what it will be, Abraham Rufes declared that he is glad he confessed and that a great weight has been lifted from his mind.

Rufes says that he is no physical coward and that he could face a mob of 10,000 men seeking his life without flinching, but that he could not stand to see his family suffer for him.

That he has not made a confession and that the prosecution did not know he was going to confess, is the assertion of the curley boss.

Rufes admits to be convicted in the grafting, but is firm in his denial that he secured any money from it himself.

When the grafting board of supervisors took office Rufes says he warned its members that he would not stand for anything crooked and that he would prosecute them himself if they went wrong.

Much of the graft in the bay city was secured, Rufes says. He declares that the corporation was then there was no necessity for them.

REED IN FULL CHARGE

who stated in positive terms that when he closed his office in the Mallory building he thereby ceased to be a factor in the Devlin campaign.

Mr. Reed, however, has continued in the employ of Mr. Devlin since the early part of the primaries, though once publicly repudiated by Mr. Devlin himself.

During the remainder of the campaign Secretary Reed will have charge of the Devlin advertising and will see to it that the land interests and voters stay in line.

Reed is well and unfavorably known in Portland political circles. He first came into prominence here as the manager of the anti-woman suffrage campaign a year ago, and since then has figured more or less prominently in various occurrences questionable in character.

The management of the city central committee made an effort to sever his connection with the campaign, but he seems to stand in the same relation to Mr. Devlin at present that the little dog Wag bears to the "kind old gentleman" in the comic supplement. He can't be lost.

The Jack-Snipe. From the Westminster Gazette. I wonder are you bird-or-butterfly, Wee foreign visitor to marsh and fen, As flushed from unseen corner snug and dry You leave so noiselessly your ready den. Scarce do you heed the stranger drawing nigh, Sleepy from midnight feast and loath to rise, You glide away in dignified surprise, Then 'light again, too lazy far to fly, Gunner, despite him not; that graceful wing, Dusky and orange barred, tossed by the breeze, Will make a teasing trial of your skill. Pleasant the memories of toll he'll bring When laid before you, as you sup at ease, Most dainty of all morsels—if you kill!

Light Reflector. Piano players frequently complain of the impossibility of procuring the proper light to read the notes of the music while performing. In most cases the piano is placed in a corner of the room far from the gaslight. Naturally there is no method of bringing the light close to the performer except by the use of a lamp.

Even when the latter is placed at the top of the piano the light naturally does not benefit the performer as it acts as a glare to the eyes and cannot reach the music. This difficulty is overcome by a Texas man by the use of a reflector as shown in the illustration.

The reflector of the ordinary type is pivoted to a very heavy base, on which the lamp is supported. By adjusting the reflector the light from the lamp can be directed to any place desirable. In this way the glare in the performer's eyes can be obviated and the light reflected directly on the notes of the music.

COUNCIL THREATENS LIVES OF ALBANY DOGS

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Albany, Ore., May 15.—A mandate has gone forth from the city fathers directing that every dog, puppy and canine, whether of royal blood or cur, be killed, unless the owner immediately complies with a city ordinance providing for the licensing of dogs.

The licensing of dogs. The city poundmaster has been given strict orders to carry out the provisions of the ordinance without partiality or favor to any one. Not even the small puppies are to be spared, according to the decree of the council.

It is worth considerable to any citizen of Portland to know how to be cured of painful, annoying and itching piles. Know then that Doan's Ointment is a positive remedy for all itching piles, hemorrhoids, etc.

Martin Sullivan, employed in the street department, and living at 623 Third street, Portland, Oregon, says: "Doan's Ointment is, without any exception, the best preparation on earth for the purpose for which its use is recommended."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-McMillan Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for U. S. and Canada.

Remember the name—DOAN'S—and take no other.

CONFIRMED AFTER THREE YEARS. On January 18, 1906, a member of Mr. Sullivan's family said: "Three years have passed since Mr. Sullivan made the above statement and I confirm every word of it. Not only that, but he has time and again advised others to use Doan's Ointment. He has great faith in it."

The Ould Apple Woman. From the Catholic Standard and Times. Wid her basket of apples comes Nora McHugh, she has time and again advised others to use Doan's Ointment. He has great faith in it."

Wid her candies an' cakes an' wan thing an' another, But the best thing she brings to commend her to you Is the smile in her eyes that no trouble can smother.

An' the wit she has at home in the tip of her tongue Has a freshness unknown to her candy and cake; Though her ware had been stale since old Nora was young, There is little complaint you'd be well I mind, on a day, I complained of a worm That I found in an apple, near bitten in two.

"But suppose ye had bit it, an' where'd be the harm? For, shure, the isn't Friday," said Nora McHugh.

O Nora McHugh, ye've the blarneyin' twist in you. Where is the anger could drame o' resistin' you? Fats, 'ere'll be spillin' you. Blind to the gruit in you, While there's a smile in you, Nora McHugh.

It was Mistress De Vere, that's so proud of her name, Fell to boastin' wan day of her kin in the peerage.

Though there's some o' thim same, years ago when they came To this glorious land, was content wid the steerage— An' she bragged of her ancestry, Nor an an' Dana, An' the like o' thim ancients that's thought to be swell.

"Now I hope," said old Nora, "ye'll not think me vain. Fur it's little I care fur ancestry mesel'; But wid all o' your pedigree, ma'an, I believe 'Tis mesel' can go back a bit further than you. Fur in me ye'll perceive a descendant of Eve, The first apple woman," said Nora McHugh.

O Nora McHugh, sich ewadacious frivolity! How can you dare to be jokin' the quality? Still, we'll be spillin' you, Blind to the guile in you, While there's a smile in you, Nora McHugh.

Turned the Tables. From the Kansas City Times. In a crowd waiting for a car at Eleventh street and Grand avenue yesterday was an old negro, who was inclined to be discursive. Two high-school boys believed they saw a chance to make fun of him and made several remarks at which they themselves laughed heartily. Finally one of them said: "You're a preacher, aren't you, uncle?" "Yes, sah," replied the negro, bringing forth a card. "Ah'm an undertaker, too. Ah don't wish you no bad luck, but Ah'd lak teh have yo' business."

French Law School in Egypt. From the London Globe. Egyptian jurisprudence appears to be almost a misnomer owing to the large part played in the law courts of the country by foreign lawyers and law firms.

Some years ago, in Africa or elsewhere did not jog trot a smoothly side by side as they do today, the French even founded a law school in Cairo, and this at present has 224 students.

Its progress has been so great that it is being paralyzed for want of space to grow in, and the French minister of public instruction has been sent to devise means for providing them. In this he has succeeded by an ingenious expedient. The French Archaeological institute, built on land bought for $4,000, but now worth $200,000, is to be sold for cheaper land of greater extent, and on this will arise a new law school.

J. Edward Addicks, who is reputed to have spent $1,000,000 in a futile effort to become United States senator from Delaware, has announced that he may become a candidate for the nomination for mayor of Wilmington.
