FIRST COLONY IN EITHER AMERICA

Its Melancholy Fate Related in the First American Traveler's Tale.

Story Told by Dr. Chance, Who Came With the Great Admiral on His Second Voyage—Fellow-Voyagers Who Later Made History.

(Journal Special Service.)

Washington, D. C., May 23.—The Smithsonian Institution at Washington has just published as a part of its miscellaneous collections a document until recently practically overlooked by students, which is remarkable for its historical value. Besides a memorandum or two by Columbus, it is the first original description of America by an actual observer. It is a letter by Dr. Diego Alvarez Chanca, physician to the fleet of Columbus on his second voyage of discovery to America, dated at Port of Isabella, Santo Domingo, at the end of January, 1494. The translation is by Dr. A. M. Ybarra, a member of the New York Academy of Sciences, who is thoroughly familiar with the history of Columbus and his times. Dr. Chanca, the author of the letter, had been especially appointed by the Spanish monarchs to accompany that expedition, not only on account of his great political and commercial importance, but also because among the 1,500 persons who came over from Europe to America in that fleet were several distinguished court personages and a large number of young gentlemen belonging to aristocratic families, restless and daring warriors who had done excellent military services in the war just successfully ended against the Moors of Spain.

A Cargo of History Makers. "Mingling with the men of distinction," says Dr. Ybarra, "who came over to America in that expedition, I may mention the following names, which are Leon, the future conqueror of Porto Rico and later on the discoverer of Florida; Alonso de Ojeda, the future discoverer and explorer of the north coast of South America; and the Italian Amerigo Vesputi, who made his first trip to the new world, named after him; Pietro Largarit, the subsequent discoverer of the archipelago to which he gave the name of Marguerite Isles; Juan de la Cosa, the expert cartographer, another of the first map of America in existence, drawn by him in the year 1493, and now in the Royal naval museum at Madrid, and many other men whose names are well known connected with the very early history of America."

Wanderings in West Indies. A pathetic incident in the trip was the search for the little band of adventurers Columbus had left the previous year on the island Santo Domingo. Dr. Chanca says: "The letter relates the experiences of that venturesome band in a search among the cannibal islands of the West Indies for the survivors of men Columbus had left the year before. The expedition set sail from Cadix September 23, 1492, and the voyage across consumed between five and six weeks. Dr. Chanca gives vivid account of their search for a harbor upon their first landing upon an uninhabited shore, the new fruits they found and pictures of the towering mountains and fresh streams. They immediately sailed on in search of the island of Ysabella, which was found in the form of a new island, where they found traces of cannibal feasts, of which Dr. Chanca says: "Among the Cannibal Caribs. "When we saw those bones we immediately suspected that we were among the Caribs who, without any doubt, eat human flesh, because the admiral, guided by the information he had received from the Indians he had discovered during his former voyage, had directed the ships of our fleet to a view to finding them. Thither we came in as straight a channel as if we had sailed by a well-known and much-frequented route."

Dr. Chanca explains the horrible customs of the cannibals. "Such of their male enemies," he says, "as they can take away alive they bring here to their homes to make a feast of them, and those who were killed in battle they eat in the same way. They claim that the flesh of man is so good to eat that nothing like it can be compared to it in the world; and this is pretty evident, for of the human bones we found in this harbor, such a quantity had already been gnawed, so that nothing else remained of them but what was too hard to be eaten. In one of the houses we found the neck of a man undergoing the process of cooking in a pot, preparatory for eating it."

Search for Extinct Man. "This harbor is 12 leagues from the place where the Christians had been left by the admiral on his return to Spain from the first voyage, and under the protection of Guacanama, a king of these Indians who I suppose is one of the principal sovereigns of the island. After we anchored at said spot, the admiral ordered two lombards to be fired in order to let the Indians know we were there. Our people then became very much chagrined, and began to realize what the circumstances naturally suggested."

"While all of us were in this depressed state of mind, the same canoe with several Indians on board which we had seen that afternoon, came up to where we were anchored, and the Indians with a loud voice inquired for the admiral. "Fate of First American Colony. "They were conducted to the admiral's vessel, and remained there on board for three hours talking with the admiral in the presence of us all. They said that some of the Christians left on the island had died of disease, others had been killed in quarrels amongst themselves, and that those who remained were all well. They also said that that province had been invaded by two kings named Canabeo and Mayrani, who burned all the houses. "Next morning some of our men landed by order of the admiral, and went to the spot where the Christians had been housed. They found the build-

Killingsworth Auto Ride

Was published during the Lewis and Clark Exposition, 1905, showing the doom of the "calamity-howlers," as the wheels of progress passed over their bodies, crushing them to NOTHINGNESS. A number of these SUPPOSED wise men prophesied a stoppage in the growth of Portland—that a BOOM was on, that values were bound to recede.

This class of men have always had my sympathy, from the fact of their impaired mental vision. This class does not only live in Portland. You will find them in New York, Chicago and all large commercial centers, and so it will ever be. They are a class of men to be greatly pitied; especially it is true in regard to those located in Portland, for they fail to grasp the FACT of Portland's matchless location, where fresh water, ocean and rail meet, where three states deposit all their wealth at her docks. Seemingly they were afraid to allow the thinking world to visit us and to enjoy for a short period our magnificent climate, our scenery, for grandeur and beauty unsurpassed on EARTH, little dreaming that this attractive city, with its roses, hidden as well as revealed treasures, would not induce them to build their homes here, as well as to populate the entire state of Oregon.

I never had a doubt but that the Lewis and Clark Fair would be the dawn of the beginning of development. For nowhere on earth do the stars shine brighter, or the sun shine lovelier, or the rainbow of promise with greater brilliancy than it does on Portland, Oregon, the coming New York of the Pacific.

And it affords me pleasure at this time, after more than 20 years a resident of Portland, that I can now offer the public the best investment that I have ever offered in my 20 years' experience.

GRAND LODGE OFFICERS ELECTED BY PYTHIANS

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Tacoma, Wash., May 23.—The Knights of Pythias of Washington, at the twenty-fourth annual convention elected the following grand lodge officers to serve the coming year: Grand chancellor, Orin Strong of Tacoma; vice-grand chancellor, H. T. Granger of Seattle; grand prelate, R. W. Thatcher of Pullman; grand keeper of records and seals, R. G. Parks of Walla Walla; grand master of exchequer, Ben Haverkamp of Tacoma; grand master at arms, Eugene Foster of Sedro-Woolley; grand finer guard, J. H. Ellwell of Vancouver; grand outer guard, R. M. Dye of Daveport. Walla Walla will probably be selected as the place of the next meeting of the grand lodge, the matter being left for a decision tomorrow.

Out of the 97 lodges of the order in the state 9 are represented at the gathering here. In the competitive drill by the unformed ranks at Wright park the Seattle company came out ahead, winning 22 points, as against 37 for Spokane and 44 for Snohomish. The reports from natives and from exploring parties of vast quantities of gold in the islands form the climax of his narrative. "Thus, surely," he concludes, "their highnesses the king and queen may henceforth regard themselves as the most prosperous and wealthy sovereigns on earth, because never yet since the creation of the world has such a thing been seen or read of. On the return of the ships on the next voyage they certainly will be able to carry back such a quantity of gold as will fill with amusement all who hear of it."
