

HE past week has given several offerings to the social calendar, and the lovely spring weather has connived with the hostesses to make delightful affairs. Mrs. Harry Allen, Mrs. C. J. Reed, Mrs. H. Tarpley and Mrs. William Warrens were among the bridge host-esses. Mrs. Warrens' supper evening was a delightful affair. A large wed-ding on Portland Heights, a dance at Lieutenants Otto F. Irvington and several small luncheons completed the week's calendar.

The next few weeks will be full of young people's dances at the commence-ments of the preparatory schools. The Cinderellas give theirs May 31, the Allen preparatory school June 1, the Hill Military academy June 7, the University of Oregon alumnae for young people June 8

The memory of "The Foresters," the charming outdoor play given last summer by the Oregon branch of the Assoclation of Collegiate alumnae, is the best advertisement this year's play can have. Everyone who remembers the charming stage setting at the Green place on the Heights, with the large, dark trees in the rear and lighter folinge toward the front, and the lovely stretch of green laid before the natural amphitheatre effect of the sloping foreground, can see in imagination even a larger crowd than last year's new institution drew out. This year "As You Like It" is the play chosen for production, and it will be given in the same place as before, June 21, if the weather permits. The rehearsals are well under way. Mrs. George Haskell Marsh and Mrs. A. A. Lindsay are the president and secre-tary of the society, but Mrs. Robert Lewis has been elected president for next year.

The proceeds go to swell the scholarship fund instituted last year by the branch to enable the members to send a girl student to the University of Ore-gon each year. The choice of this scholar is determined by competitive examination, and last year's representative made a splendid record in her work.
