HONEYMOON IS SIX YEARS LATE

Kansas City Car Conductor Saves Three Thousand for Trip Abroad.

(Journal Special Service.) New York, May 30.—Having saved $3,000 in six years out of his earnings as a street car conductor in Kansas City, Charles Kelly, a young Missourian, accompanied by his pretty wife, who was his chief inspiration in the accumulation of his savings, have departed on the steamship Moltke on a belated honeymoon trip through Europe. Kelly, who declared he would spend every cent he had saved in visiting every important country on the other side of the Atlantic, and that within three days after his return to this country, six months hence, he would begin "tramping up farms in Kansas City," and laying the foundation of a new saving fund, which would be used in the purchasing of a home for himself and wife. "When we were married in 1901," said Kelly, "we married on our minds to spend our honeymoon in Europe. We had not at that time enough to get out of Missouri. So we made up our minds to save up until we could make the trip in the way we wanted to, and here we are."

Ranchman's Daughter Rides Across Three States to Elope With Her Lover.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Lewiston, Mont., May 30.—Pretty Fannie Morris, the 18-year-old daughter of a prominent stockman of the Big Hole Basin, in Wyoming, is the bride of Robert McFarland, a ranch hand, and the chief figure in probably one of the most unique runaway matches in marital annals. Miss Morris' father strenuously objected to her proposed marriage with McFarland, and the young man was told to go west, and did so, landing at Lewistown. Three weeks ago Miss Morris started off on horseback, ostensibly for a visit with a relative. Instead she turned the nose of her horse for the mountains of Montana, and two days ago joined her lover and was speedily married. Miss Morris rode through portions of three states, Idaho, Montana and Wyoming, and so enjoyed the trip that at her suggestion proposed to return to Big Hole Basin on horseback. Mr. and Mrs. McFarland started from Lewistown yesterday morning, but they had not gone many miles when McFarland's horse shied and threw him, breaking his hip. He was brought back to Lewistown and placed in the hospital, with his wife as his nurse, this accident disclosing their romance.

Italian Loses Member and Six Hundred Dollars Hidden in His Shoe.

(Journal Special Service.) Trinidad, Colo., May 30.—John Velotti, an Italian workman who has been employed in the Raton tunnel, was picked up by the crew of the Santa Fe freight train about three miles west of Trinidad, with one foot cut off. He was brought to a hospital here. The man was unconscious at the time he was found, and as soon as he regained consciousness after reaching Trinidad, he asked for his foot. For the first time it was discovered that nobody had paid any attention to the foot, and it had been left on the ground near where Velotti was picked up. Velotti said he had $600 in bills in the shoe on the severed foot. A man was sent back after the member, along the track where the accident occurred, but could not find either shoe or foot, and it was evidently picked up by tramps.
