New Trace Discovered of the Route Taken by Man and Boy Lost in Woods.

LINDSAY IS GIVING FOOD TO COMPANION

Egg Shells Show That Lawrence Mack Is Only One Who Is Eating and But a Scant Supply Remains for Him.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Tacoma, May 30.—The hunt for Brent A. Lindsay, the schoolteacher of Fairfax, and Lawrence Mack, the 12-year-old son of Miss Foreman Mack, who were lost in the woods several miles west of that place Saturday, is being pressed with feverish vigor by hundreds of men in that vicinity, it being recalled that unless the wanderers are spotted they covered they will perish from hunger and exposure.

WORK OF THE FER-DON MEDICAL EXPERTS WINS FAVORABLE MENTION EVERYWHERE.

Demonstrations at Twentieth and Washington Streets Nightly Grow More Interesting—One Elderly Lady Made to Hear After Being Deaf From Childhood.

Honesty-of Purpose Proven

Deaf From Childhood and Compelled to Distinguish Words by the Movement of the Lips, Mrs. Annie Robinson, Who Lives at 273 Clay Street

Portland, called to see the Great Fer-Don last night at his free show grounds, corner of Twentieth and Washington streets. When she came up on the platform she was unable to hear and in talking read the lips of the person speaking to her. The wonderful preparation, which Fer-Don uses in these cases of deafness, was applied to her ears, and almost instantly the hearing was benefited and Mrs. Robinson distinctly heard a conversation addressed to her from a distance of 20 feet.

Thomas Askay, a tenniser who resides in Lents and who is employed in this city, was another who took advantage of Fer-Don's offer to relieve from deafness with one application of his Magic Relief. After the remedy was applied he addressed the people, stating how he had been troubled with partial deafness for some time, but said he: "I can now hear as well as ever, and I don't know how long it will last, but a medicine that will do me as much good on the first application as this has, certainly has the power to cure me. I intend to continue using it."

H. G. Winters, 60 1/2 Grand avenue, was another living illustration of the efficacy of this wonder working remedy. He, too, was made to hear.

The band concerts and entertainments at Twentieth and Washington streets are getting better nightly and are attracting much attention from our music-loving people who are coming out in large numbers nightly.

At 322 Washington street, where are the offices of the Fer-Don's medical experts, daily can be seen many of the sick and afflicted people of Portland and many surrounding cities. The wonderful Syarthisil treatment by which appendicitis is cured without the use of a knife, when the pus has not already begun to form and the bloodless surgery in the cases of tumors and cancers which is practiced are winning widespread commendation. These doctors can cure many diseases which by others are pronounced incurable.

TAFT IS TROUBLED WITH SORE THROAT

(Journal Special Service.) St. Louis, May 30.—Secretary Taft had throat trouble when he arose this morning. A throat specialist was called before the secretary was able to begin the day. He took an automobile ride to the country club for lunch at Okeana, and at 3 o'clock addressed the Millers' national convention. He was given a reception at Glen Rhee Country club at 4:30 o'clock, and at the University club at 5 o'clock. He will be a guest at the Millers' banquet Friday morning.

BLUE AND GRAY IN PERFECT HARMONY

(Journal Special Service.) Chicago, May 30.—It is partly cloudy weather here today, with cool winds, and no veterans fell this year from heat and exhaustion in the Memorial day parade. Four thousand soldiers' graves were decorated here. Ex-Confederates participated.

rough a country as can be found in the northwest. Those following the dogs, which steadily keep on the trail, find incredible hardships in getting over the ground, which the two lost persons have apparently negotiated at terrible expense of physical exertion and with hunger gnawing keenly.

Fresh Trail Found.

Yesterday morning a fresh trail of the two was found eight miles from where the dogs were working. This trail was in the forest three miles from what is known as Palace camp, a point on the Bailey-Willis trail, and where the trail crosses the Mowich river. Two boys who were searching for them found this trail and immediately came to Fairfax and word was working in the dogs. These were working in the Voligt creek bottoms and were brought back to Fairfax at dusk last evening and were put on the fresh trail about 8 o'clock this morning.

The searchers have strong hopes of finding the wanderers before they succumb from hunger and exposure. When they left Fairfax Saturday they had one dozen hard-boiled eggs and about half a dozen sandwiches. A camp has been found on Voligt creek where they ate half of these eggs and perhaps half the sandwiches. Thereafter, indications show they husbanded their food with the strictest economy.

The trail is plainly discernible through the tall ferns and over rotten logs, and in places in sand and loose earth. The searchers believe that Lindsay is giving all the food not eaten the first day out to the child. Occasionally, as the searchers scramble through the woods, they find part of the shell of an egg, and this is always directly on the tracks of the child.

Rough Country.

The place where the fresh trail was discovered yesterday is in a country so enormously rough that the two can make but little progress, though it is apparent that they are traveling almost from dawn to dusk. No place where they have spent a night has yet been discovered along their trail. The trail is straight directly toward Mount Rainier, and from this course the two are apparently not intending to deviate. The mountain is by no means visible in the forests, and it is improbable that they know they are going toward it. The searchers believe that Lindsay, in his bewildered condition, thinks he is going directly toward the Puget sound region.

Lindsay is a popular young man, a student of the University of Washington, who is well known and has hosts of friends both in Seattle and Tacoma. The child, Lawrence Mack, is a universal favorite at Fairfax, and goes there under the nickname of "Buna." He is a stocky, stout, sturdy little fellow, with a smiling face and a happy disposition.

AUDITOR FAILS

viewed the failure to publish the election notice a serious defect. Attorney Thomas G. Greene pronounced the carelessness on the part of the city auditor a matter which would without question invalidate the bond issues and necessitate a special election at the expense of the taxpayers. He said this morning:

"I have not examined the authorities in extenso, but am of the opinion that the failure of the auditor, Devlin, to publish notice of the election June 3 will result in serious loss to the city. "Section 26 of the Portland city charter requires the auditor, under direction of the council, to give 10 days' notice by publication in the city official paper of each general election, the officers to be elected at the same, and the place or places in each ward designated for holding the election therein.

People's Wishes Frustrated.

"Every man is presumed to know the date of a general election, the same having been fixed by law, and the courts have very generally held that failure to give notice thereof does not invalidate the title to office of public officials chosen thereat. "A different rule applies, however, where the voters, even at a general municipal election are called upon to vote for or against the issuance of bonds or other municipal securities, either for public purposes or as municipal aid. The law in these cases is notice to voters of those matters. As to them the election is in effect a special election, and failure to give statutory notice is, I believe, a fatal defect.

"If the voters on June 3 favor the Bull Run pipe line bond issue, the parks and boulevards, Madison street bridge and other bond issues, it is practically certain that no investor can be found who would buy the bonds at any price, and the desire of the people will have been defeated by the carelessness of Mr. Devlin and the present city council. "Of course, a special election could be called subsequently. It would cost the taxpayers several thousands of dollars."

VETERANS' GRAVES

Veterans of the G. A. R., the Oregon National Guard, Spanish War Veterans and the Ladies Relief Corps, starting at 2:30 this afternoon from the corner of Second and Morrison, marched in parade followed by a long line of carriages in which were those once strong but now feeble. At Fourth and Salmon the Spanish War Veterans and the National Guard, standing at present arms, allowed the bent blue-clad figures of the Grand Army to pass in review. Then the line of march was resumed to South Plaza blocks, where services were held.

ACROBATS IN MIDAIR ATTRACT ADMIRATION

Novel and Exciting Feats Performed by the Norris & Rowe Troupes.

There is no more attractive feature under the white tents of the circus arena than the graceful, clean-lined flying aerial performers. The most sensational daring of these exponents of the swinging trapeze is the Banvard troupe of male and female performers. At the very apex of the enormous tent these accomplished acrobats, have arranged a vast network of rigging, triple bars, pedestals, etc.

Silhouetted against the white canvas, the artists swing from the pedestals and pass and re-pass each other in the air, at the same time turning single, double and triple somersaults and executing

VETERANS TELL SCHOOL CHILDREN OF THE WAR

Battles of Civil War Are Described in Forty of Portland's Schools.

That their work may live after them, the G. A. R. each year on the last day of school before Memorial day sends old comrades in details and corporal's guards to the various schools to tell to the younger ones the story of the saving of the nation in 1861. This has become a national custom, and yesterday veterans told their stories in over 40 schools in Portland. With them were members of the Ladies' Relief Corps. Yesterday Comrade Homer Sutcliffe had command of the movement and made the principal address at the Ladd school.

The largest gathering and most elaborated program was in the assembly room of the West Side High school, in would put an end to the malady. Dr. W. H. The health officer states that the sewer is in a plumbing trap and the sewer is over to that office for investigation.

IRVINGTON RESIDENTS COMPLAIN OF SEWER

After a two-days' illness with spinal meningitis, Joseph Mottler of Minnesota, who has been visiting relatives in North Portland, succumbed to its ravages at St. Vincent's sanitarium at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Frank Scott, colored, an employee of the Portland hotel, died at the sanitarium last Tuesday afternoon. Scott was 16 years old.

No new cases have been reported for several days and Dr. Wheeler stated today that he thought the warm weather
