

WINS HER LAURELS DURING VACATION

GAINED NEW FRIENDS IN SUBSCRIPTION WORK

Cordially Received by Men and Women of Influence—Salaried Positions Offered—Similar Opportunity Is Offered to Others.

Mildred L. Clemens, one of the 27 young people who won scholarships in the educational contest conducted by The Journal last year, writes, setting forth some of the benefits she derived through participation in the contest.

The communication is interesting, because every sentence expresses ambition and enthusiasm, the qualities that cause young people to do things. Although not through with her course of studies at the Portland High school, Miss Clemens entered The Journal contest, so as to provide in advance for a college education after her high school course ends. She distinguished herself in the voting contest and in the end received a two-year scholarship at Dallas college, worth $100, and a cash prize of $100. Besides these awards, amounting in value to $200, the young lady earned goodly sums in commission money. Her actual work in the contest covered not more than two months. During this time she earned cash and values totaling about $300.

In what other enterprise could a 14-year-old girl earn $300 during a summer vacation?

Every young miss who desires to emulate Mildred Clemens can do so this summer. The Journal has arranged an educational contest of sufficiently large proportions to accommodate the boys and girls who care to enter. Scholarships in boarding schools, including board, laundry and tuition, will be offered. Scholarships in day schools, where the noon meal is furnished, will also be given. Likewise scholarships in vocal and instrumental music, as well as in all other branches of learning, can be secured through this contest by any young man or woman residing in Oregon or Washington. For further particulars, address contest manager, The Oregon Journal, Portland, Oregon.

In the following communication Miss Clemens tells of the benefits she derived from enrolling in The Journal's first educational contest:

University Park Station, Portland, April 23.—The Oregon Journal, Portland, Oregon.—Gentlemen: I take pleasure in writing to you concerning the benefits which I derived from my work in your "educational contest" of last summer. I was trying for a scholarship (which I received) in order to attend school and become an educated woman, but I wish to say that I feel that I not only received a means of obtaining further education, but I also received a good education in other ways by my work in "the educational contest."

I taught me self-reliance, a thing which I know is what one needs to succeed in life. Through the contest work I also learned perseverance. Many a time I was discouraged, but, through the kindly advice of many of my friends, I endeavored to withstand the drawbacks and to finish in a contest, which I feel has brought to my side many new and excellent friends. Through the contest work I obtained an insight into the rudiments of a business life; it taught me how to approach people in a ladylike and businesslike manner. In fact, I cannot say enough in praise of the contest, for, although I was oftentimes very tired and discouraged, now I would not give up the experience which came to me through the contest for anything. Scarcely a day goes by that I do not feel the benefits which I have derived therefrom.

The two-year scholarship which I received at Dallas college I have not used, owing to the fact that I was a student at Portland High school and I wish to complete the course there before using my prize scholarship. The Journal purse of $100 in money which I received, in addition to the two-year scholarship, I placed at good paying interest. By the time I have completed my high school course, I will have sufficient means to see me through my work at Dallas College.

I do not wish to convey the idea that it was through my own efforts alone that I received what I did from the contest. You may ask who it was? It was the public. It was those who gave us a year's subscription in order to see us receive an education; and, in some instances, deny themselves of something in order to do this much for us. This proved to me that, although some people say that the world is uncharitable, all mankind is united with a beautiful link of brotherly love. I should like to have every one who helped me in the contest know how much I appreciate their aid and kindly words.

I also received a great deal of pleasure through the contest. It brought me in contact with a set of young people, who, like myself, are trying for an education. I think I learned to be more patient when I see how others have to struggle for what they get. The canvassing enabled me to meet and visit with many of my old friends, whom I might not have seen if I had not been hunting for the votes in the contest.

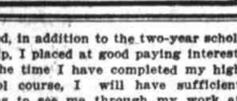

I find that people respect us for our work in the contest. Our perseverance impressed business people. Situations have been offered me as a result of my part in the contest, and I have heard other contestants say that tempting offers have been made to them. So through your highly commendable contest, we have obtained a means of further educating ourselves, and, at the same time, have helped to develop our characters, business faculties and social standings.

In closing, I should like to say that I shall always feel a perpetual gratitude to The Oregon Journal for his heartedness in opening such a contest as the one conducted last summer, and giving the young people of Oregon a chance to make, through a little effort on their own parts, an independent way in the world. I remain, sincerely your friend,

MILDRED L. CLEMENS.

VOTE FOR LANE URGED BROUGHER

Prominent Divine Electrified Hearers Who Crowded the White Temple.

SPEAKER SAID DEVLIN BELONGED TO RUM MEN

Election of Democratic Candidate Means "Square Deal" for Every Citizen, Holds This Advocate of Clean Government.

Rev. J. Whitcomb Brougher spoke on municipal politics last evening at the White Temple before a congregation that filled every seat in the auditorium. He discussed chiefly the principles of the two candidates for the mayor's office and after comparing the influences working for the election of each, he urged that every believer in good government and a clean municipality to vote for Dr. Lane.

"If Mr. Lane is elected," he said, "it will be because every upright citizen who believes in a 'square deal' gets in and votes for him. I believe that Dr. Lane will do more to carry out the wishes of the morally upright citizen than Mr. Devlin."

"The open-town crowd, including the Wholesale Liquor Dealers' association, and various other lawless elements, are all lined up behind Mr. Devlin. Mr. Devlin may be a good man, but he is in bad company. The liquor dealers never support a man from whom they do not expect something."

"If Mr. Devlin is elected the advice of the good people of this city will never be asked. The liquor interests selected Mr. Devlin out of four candidates of the Republican party and worked tooth and nail for his nomination. They are now working hard and hide for his election. If he is elected, of course they will have more influence with him than the decent people of the city. Why shouldn't they?"

DEDICATED CHURCH

Estacada Methodist Episcopalians Held Appropriate Exercises

Members of the Methodist Episcopal church at Estacada dedicated their beautiful new church yesterday with appropriate exercises. Rev. Clarence True Wilson preached the dedicatory sermon in the presence of a large congregation.

After the sermon, members enjoyed dinner in picnic fashion near the new church and then adjourned to the new structure at 3 o'clock to listen to addresses by John F. Carroll, W. J. Clemens, B. Lee Paget, F. S. Alkens and others.

In the evening an address was made to the young people at 7 o'clock by Rev. T. S. McDaniel. The closing sermon was preached an hour later by Rev. B. F. Rowland, presiding elder of the Portland district. Music formed a pleasing feature of the day and was under the direction of Mrs. C. T. McPherson. The church property is valued at $10,000, and represents the work accomplished by the congregation since Rev. C. T. McPherson took charge seven months ago.

ALL MEN ARE GOOD

Rev. Corby Finds Spirit of Religion Prevalent at Glad Tidings.

Rev. James B. Corby of the First Universalist Church of Glad Tidings recently made a canvass among all kinds of men in an attempt to discover what really is their religious belief. The results he gave yesterday in his sermon. Summed up Dr. Corby said:

"Man once went to church to escape a fiery hell. Today he does not believe in nor care about a fiery hell or a heaven of golden harps and paving bricks; but he does believe in the golden rule, the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man. Although he no longer believes in the old testament very much, still the teachings of Jesus as a moral standard the average man lives up to in actual life probably more than ever before.

Labor unionists who avoid churches as largely capitalistic frequently cheer the name of Jesus.

"Men today have less of the form and more of the real spirit of religion than ever before. A man without religion would be a brute. Many men have no particular religion that they can put into words yet live up to the generally accepted teachings of mankind concerning good and evil. Many men who have no use for the Bible and still less for the churches still will approve both and even praise the simple teachings of Jesus. Men today do not fear God, they do right for right's own sake."
