Drill Solves Problem of Existence on Deschutes Project.

WATER FOR DOMESTIC USE SEEMS ASSURED

Stands Thirty-Two Feet in Drill Hole, Which Taps the Stratum at Four Hundred and Fifty Feet-Three More to Be Drilled.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Madras, Or., June 5.—Water has been struck in the well drilled at Redmond by Moore brothers of this place at a depth of 450 feet, the water rising 32 feet in the drill hole. A rapid operatlen of the bucket used in connection with the drill outfit did not lower the water level, indicating that the supply is abundant. The water is said to be very cold and apparently of excellent

This is the first successful well ever sunk on the desert upon which the Deschutes Irrigation and Power company is perfecting its irrigation system, and in case the well proves to be as good as it promises, a long stride has been made toward solving the water problem for domestic purposes throughout a large portion of Crook county.

Water is the Only Problem.

Redmond is located in the heart of he desert, and there are no surface adjustions of water in a radius of many miles.

During the summer months the irrigation water is not good to drink. In the winter the water cannot be run through the ditches, on account of the freezing weather and consequent damage to the ditches by the piling up of ice and the everflowing of the banks.

With the purpose of securing cold, pure water for household use, the irrigation company recently made contracts for four wells. This well just completed is the first one drilled. The other wells will be sunk at different points south and east of Redmond.

The success of the Redmond well-drilling operations is considered a very fair demonstration of the approximate depth at which permanent water can be reached in a wide area where the water question is a serious drawback to settlement and development, and is looked upon by people here as an important point in the progress of this region. given his freedom.

Dora was acquitted on her second trial some 18 months ago. It was one of the most hotly contested cases ever tried in the Josephine county court. It was the belief of every one who was at all acquainted with the case that she would be found guilty. The fact that she and her smaller sister occupied the same room, and with their bed but two feet from the bed occupied by the father in the little room of the log cabin at Granife Hill mining camp in which he was murdered, seemed a certain indication that the girl must at least have been an accomplice in the crime. But she told one story and could not be shaken from it. She declared she heard no shot nor sound during the night till next morning, when she awoke and discovered her father dead in bed.

Calm During Trial.

During her trial Dora displayed remarksble calmness and self-possession. The cutting sarcasm and stinging invective of the prosecuting attorney brought only a pretty smile from her. She sat through the cross-examination unmoved, and the jury could do naught else than acquit her.

Though given her freedom, the girl was not at ease. She was not seen around Grants Pass for several months. When she returned she was no longer the plump, rosy-cheeked lass who had laughed and smiled through a murder trial only a little while before. She was a mere shadow of her former self. She was continually haunted by some unseen terror. What this was no one knew, and no one knows yet, for the girl would say no word about the crime. The prosecuting attorney said the girl would take the stand during the second trial of Jasper, who was jointly indicted with her and confess the crime. But as Jasper's second trial has not yet occurred Dora did not take the stand. Those who know her best declare she would not have done so, even had the trial occurred whap her health was still spared her.

Malady a Mystery.

Spared her.

Malady a Mystery.

The physicians who are attending her are nonplussed as to the nature of the malady that is slowly and surely sapping the life of the once robust young woman. They are baffled not only by their inability to define the nature of the disease, but by the girl's absolute refusal to take medicine. They have despaired of saving her life, and declare it is only a matter of a few days till death must claim her. Then will be closed forever the secret and the dark mystery of the murder of the old miner in the little cabin at Granite Hill.

at 410 East Tenth street, charged with roaming the streets after hours.

According to the story told by Captain Glover before the municipal court, Earl, the 9-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Timmons sought the protection of the police last night, telling the officer that he was alone in the house and afraid to remain alone during the hight.

Investigation showed that Mr. and Mrs. Timmons had left home early yesterday morning and had proceeded to spend $40 salary money paid to Timmons that day. The couple had gone to a saloon and after both had become engaged in a row over a fancied insult to Mrs. Timmons, had separated.

The small children, four in number and ranging from 9 years to 17 months in age, had been left alone in the house without anything to eat from early morning until after midnight last night, when the parents returned.

Timmons was surly during the trial and the case was continued until tomorrow for further testimony. He will perhaps be sent to the rockpile. Captain Slover intends to report the matter to the juvenile court in order to have the children given the protection of the law.

"I do not know that the city attorney's office will take any action on its own initiative," said Mr. McNary this morning. "The mayor has 30 days in which to prepare his proclamation, and after that the validity of the bond issue can be determined. In my opinion the best way to do this would be for some representative property owner whose standing in court is unquestioned to begin a suit enjoining the sale of the bonds on the ground that the election was not legally advertised.

"The case could be taken to the circuit court in a very short time and decided without delay. It would then be best to take the case from the circuit court to the supreme court in order to finally determine the question. In my opinion the supreme court would be willing to advance a case of so much general importance as this would be so that it would not take a great deal of time to reach a final decision. If the supreme court were to decide that the election was legal and that the law directing the publication of an election was provisionary with the city suditor and not mandatory it would remove the suspicion of illegality and consequent flaw to the title in the bonds. They could then be issued and sold without difficulty without the delay and extra expense of a special election."

The agreement regarding the bonds and other financial arrangements have not been given out, but will be agreed upon this afternoon. Assurance is given that plenty of funds are behind Mr. Lytle and that the completion of this system will bring about relief in the railroad situation in this state.

Roosevelt for Watered Securities and La Follette and Bryan Against.

COUNTRY TO WITNESS DEBATE ON VALUATION

Administration Would Protect Present Holders of Stocks and Opposition Will Argue Against Legitimizing Dishonest Capitalization.

(Washington Bureau of The Journal) Washington, June 6. - President Roosevelt has east the die, declaring for such a series of amendments to the rate regulation bill as will maintain at face value all existing stocks, bonds He is averse to and debentures. "squeezing the water" from outstanding securities according to the ideas promulgated by Senator La Follette and William J. Bryan.

This has been settled by the president's Indianapolis speech. And it opens up discussion as to what is to be the stand by the Wisconsin states-man and the man from Lincoln, Ne-

Senator La Follette has made his entrance into national politics largely on the platform favoring eliminating the water from alleged spurious issues of securities, and Mr. Bryan has iterated views exactly in consonance with Mr. views exactly in consonance with Mr. La Foliette's view, touching the question of capitalization, and ignoring federal ownership of control in this discus-

Senator La Foliette is so squarely on record in favor of a physical valuation as the basis of rates that it is not to be expected that he will recede. This inevitably will bring him into conflict with Mr. Roosevelt, and force him to common advocacy with Mr. Bryan, so common advocacy with Mr. Bryan, so far as concerns the question of capitali-rar as concerns the question of capitalization.

Politicians here regard this latest pronouncement of the president as drawing the line between the two schools of railroad reformers, for that there are two schools is conceded. The one will follow Mr. Roosevelt against interfering with existing issues of securities, and in favor of preventing further watering of securities.

The other school will adhere to the La Follette-Bryan idea that past wrongunderlie the doing.

Here is where the debates will arise, and that there will be sharp conflict seems to be assured. The Roosevelt school of statesmen will argue that present holders of securities should be protected on the theory of innocent purchasers, who are not responsible for the wrongdoing of the stock jugglers.

The others will contend that, if present stoc: and bond issues be made good at face value, it will be tantamount to legitimizing dishonest capitalization; they will call attention to the fact that if a man has paid $20 a share for a railroad stock he is not entitled to receive interest collected as railroad rates on $100.

Senator La Follette has been quoted over the country as the authority for the assertion that approximately 40 to the assertion that approximately 46 to 50 per cent of the existing securities are spurious. His standing before the people depenus largely on whether or not this shall be proven to be true; therefore, the president's declaration—that the total of stocks and bonds exceed their face value—forces La Follette to a position whence he must fight the president or admit that he has been wrong.

The country, therefore, will witness a debate as to whether or not physical valuation shall be the measure of a railroad property, and the method to be employed to prevent future stock watering will be determined by the same issue—whether or not railroads may issue stocks in excess of actual investment, or be permitted to create securities to represent the value of the free-given franchise and privileges granted under the right of eminent domain. has been wrong.
