WITNESSES CORROBORATE PALMER'S MILL ELECT DELEGATES NEW SCHEDULE TESTIMONY OF ORCHARD PROJECT HALTS TO CONVENTION

Ogden Detective Says He Saw Assassin Write Message to Haywood Asking for Money-State Introduces Evidence to Prove Truth of Fiend's Tale.

(Journal Special Service.) Boise, June 14 .- Determined to disose of as many as possible of comparatively unimportant witnesses today. the prosecution in the Haywood case devoted considerable time to examining persons who knew about Orchard's alleged operations in California. The first witness was L. P. Glubbing, a San Francisco grocer, who declared Orchard stayed about his place in the fall of 1964, the time the attempt was made to kill Bradley.

While he was testifying Governor Peabody walked over to the clerk's desk and examined carefully the big leaden comb which Orchard testified he took o Canyon City to kill the governor "It's a deadly looking thing," was his only comment.

Glubbing declared Orchard patronised his bar freely for about a month andrasked many questions about the Bradley servants, to whom he was introduced by Glubbing. The witness confirmed Orchard's story about the Tell of Famous Letter.

Frank Isaacs, registry clerk at the San Francisco postoffice, identified some records. Pearl Moore, clerk of the Den-ver postoffice, produced a record show-ing the maning of a letter there. The return receipt was sent to Pettibone's clarence hurrah, a miner employed in the Vindicator mine in October, 1904, told of having an encounter with a man in the mine, who shot at him when he discovered him. This was shortly be-fore McCormick and Beck were killed. Urchard swore he fired at a cageman when he discovered him while trying to explode a car of powder to wreck the mines.

Was On Righth Level.

Charles Johnson, the Independence mine cager in the Vindicator, was on the eighth level when the fatal explosion on the sixth level occurred. The north side of the shaft collapsed, and McCormick was lying beside the shaft with his legs shot to pieces; Beck lay dead near by. This was November 22, 1902. Johnson was a strike breaker, and there was no union men working in the mine then. Johnson had been a union man up to the time of the strike. He discussed the story with Floyd Thompson, secretary of the Mineowners' association and the superintendent of the Pinkerton agency before coming here.

J. H. McIntyre of Ogden, a railroad detective, told of arresting Steve Adams June 3. 1908, for beating his way over the railroad, having found him hidden in a car of fruit from California. Adams was with another man, and both were armed with two revolvers each. They gave the names of A. T. Williams and Steve Adams when turned over to the police. Here Steve was brought into the room to be identified by the witness.

Adams looked the judge and jury over curiously. He was in the room less than two minutes. (Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Eugene, Or., June 14 .- It is now announced that the big Storey-Bracher sawmill, which was to have been erected here by the Palmer millions, Honore Palmer being at the head of the company, will not be built this year, owing to the failure to make the necessary transportation arrangements with the Southern Pacific company. The work on the mill was to have been started next week. The grounds had been laid off and surveys made for spurs from the main line of the railroad to the mill site, but the sawmill people and the railroad company could not reach an agreement in regard to building a spur from the Wendling branch into the timber on the Mohawk and it was at once decided to abandon the project until next year.

Meanwhile the Storey-Bracher company men will try to interest capital in a project that is now on foot for building a railroad from Eugene to the mouth of the Siuslaw river, and when the mill is erected ship its logs here from the Siuslaw country and send its lumber to San Francisco by water. the company, will not be built this year,

This in Answer to Kicks on the Service.

Salem, Or., June 14.-The railway ommission has received a letter from Harriman system in Oregon, in which he says, relative to the north-bound train from Selem and other points:

"Referring to your letter of June 11 relative to train No. 12 continuing to run late, beg to advise that we are figuring on a new time card which will go into effect within a few days, and which we trust will remedy the trouble complained of."

which we trust will remedy the trouble complained of."

Among the complaints filed on the inadequacy of the train service on the Southern Pacific line were those of Attorney John Logan of Portland, C. D. Frazer of Portland and others.

The promised new schedule, if effective to remedy belated train service, will be halled with joy. The commission, too, is determined to bring about a more nearly adequate train service.

Arthur C. Spencer, of counsel for the O. R. & N., nas filed with the state railway commission a table of rates showing that through freight rates from Heppner branch points are now considerably lower than the branch line locals added to the main line rate. A complaint was filed with the commission some days ago by citizens of Wasco county holding that freight rates from points on the Heppner branch were discriminatory and the commission requested the railway company to investigate the matter.

Before the social was over, however, the laugh was on Dockstader, owing to the mysterious disappearance of his compelled to go to his hotel sans coat and sans hat, to the great amusement of his brother Eliks. The missing articles were subsequently found in one of the prominent member of the local lodge committed the larceny.

The proceedings were opened by George L. Hutchin, chairman pro tem, who appointed a squad of Elk police to bring all of the members before the presiding officer for punishment. A fine of 50 cents was imposed on all present, with the exception of visitors, and then Gus C. Moser, director-general of the

SAYS HE BOUGHT WORTHLESS STOCK

Charging that he was defrauded into buying 2,500 shares of worthless stock by J. C. Wentworth, A. B. Adams appeared in the circuit court this morning for the trial of his suit to recover $2,000 that he says he paid Wentworth for the stock. The case was assigned to Judge Sears, and the jury was drawn this morning.

stock. The case was assigned to Judge Sears, and the jury was drawn this morning.

The stock is that of the National Brokerage company, and Adams says it is worthless. He alleges that Ada Wentworth fraudulently told him the company had a surplus of $14,689 above its liabilities, and induced him to buy the stock at $1 peg share. Adams paid $2,000 in cash and gave his note for $500, he says, and he demanded that the money be returned to him when he found that the stock had no value and that the company had no surplus at all. A trial of the case was had in Marion county some time ago, and the jury returned a verdict in Adams' favor for $1,000. This verdict was set aside by the trial judge, and a new trial ordered. Adams then dismissed the suit in Marion county and brought another in this county. Additional testimony is being heard this afternoon.

Bishop Scadding, in his annual address before the nineteenth annual convention of the Episcopal diocese of Oregon yesterday, covered a wide field. Among the most important points touched on was to make the territory east of the Cascades in Oregon into a missionary jurisdiction, as the present diocese has only 21 clergymen for 65 places and not funds enough to maintain more ministers. The bishop asked for a fund of $100,000, instead of only $30,000 now available.

That matters had gone so well as they have, said the bishop, was due to the efforts and financial ability of J. N. Teal, R. L. Glisan and Charles Pfahler, who took charge of the money matters after the death of Bishop Morris.

A home for girls at Eugene, the cancelling of about $1,000 in assessment against certain church districts, increase of the endowment fund, the getting of more young men to enter the ministery, submitting the question of cutting off the territory east of the Cascades to the people of that section and action on it next year before the convention in Richmond, Va., and holding of the next diocese in May instead of June were among the changes recommended by the bishop.

Bishop and Mrs. Scadding will be "at home" from $ to 10 o'clock Saturday seening in their residence.

An exhibit of Sunday school supplies is displayed in the Parish house during the convention which all teachers are urged to examine. The convention is in session today in the Trinity church annex.

TRIO OF MYSTERIOUS INDICTMENTS FOUND

Moscow, Idaho, June 14 .- The grand ury returned six indictments and was discharged at noon today. Three are for offenses committed by Indians in introducing liquor on the Nez Perce reservation but the other three are so carefully guarded that no particulars of them can be obtained. They are not thought to be for land frauds, for no witnesses have been before the jury whose presence indicates land investigations. Petit Juror Robertson, whose filness delayed the Kester-Kellenbach case yesterday, is slightly improved today, but his physician requests that he be allowed to rest today and the court not to deliver his instructions before tomorrow morning.

deliver his instructions before tomorrow morning. The district attorney called up the Robnett and Dwyer cases for sentence but their counsel interposed a motion in arrest of judgment and for a new trial, opposing the pronouncing of sentence at this time especially upon the ground that they would be needed as witnesses in the trial of other cases against them and others. The court took the motion under advisement.

Judge Webster in the county court this morning decided that Mrs. Mamie McNuity is entitled to $1,000 from the set at a few for the state of Mrs. Christy Schuydecker. Mrs. McNuity had presented the claim to the administrator for $3,400, alleging that she had earned that amount by giving personal services to the deceased, covering a period of more than il years. The administrator denied the claim, which was then presented to the county court. Here the administrator contested it, claiming that a large part of it had been barred by the statute of limitations. Judge Webster awarded Mrs. McNuity $1,000. The estate has property valued at about $10,000.

Presented With Gold Watch. Floater Identified.

Aberdeen, Wash., June 14.—A floater taken out of the river at Floquiam Tuesday has been identified as the body of John W. Jacobson, a sailor, who fell overboard from the schooner J. M. Weatherwax in February. A brother lives at Hoquiam.

Floater Identified.

Principal Hadley of the Holinday school was surprised this morning by teachers of a gold watch. He expressed his appreciation in a brief address. Mr. Hadley has been appointed chief probation officer, so his connection with the schools as principal ceases with this term.
