hood. There were 2,000 of them, but so long was the procession and so profuse the garlands of roses they carried that it seemed many times the number. Each child was literally crowned with roses, carrying garlands and festoons. Twenty-three schools were represented in the procession. Each school had enthusiastic admirers among the crowds upon the sidewalks who raised mighty cheers as their favorites passed. Passing through the principal streets the children marched bravely and apparently untriflingly to the court house, the reviewing stand. There the procession halted and many exhibition drills were executed.

Judges Have Hard Task.
As the long procession wended its sinuous way through the streets judges passed and re-passed in carriages and automobiles, trying to decide upon whom should be bestowed the cups as prizes for the best-trained and best-appearing group.

The decision of the judges will be announced tonight and the awards made tomorrow. Eight children from each school, composing what is termed the color guard of the ten winning schools, will participate in the big parade on Friday. According to them there will be 80 school children in the Friday parade. Each of the ten groups will carry the colors of its school and also the cup that was awarded to it.

Great Flag Is Raised.
The initial feature of the fiesta was the opening of the Forestry building to the public at 10 o'clock this morning. It is there that the Rose society has its exhibit—the most gorgeous display of roses perhaps that has ever been seen on this coast. Accompanying the opening a great flag was raised above the building. The flag is said to be the largest that has ever been raised in this state. It is 40 feet wide and 60 feet long and floats 140 feet about the ground.

The flag has been stored for many years in the armory and has never been raised because a flag-staff of sufficient strength to support it has not been erected.

Crowds of Visitors.
The city is crowded with visitors during this carnival season. Hundreds have come to enjoy the carnival and hundreds have come to visit the other events that are in progress this week. So great was the number of visitors that hotel accommodations were impossible to secure at a late hour last night.

The carnival will continue until Saturday and those in charge are extremely anxious that the public should know that the great rose exhibit at the Forestry building is free. There are no charges of any kind for anything pertaining to the fiesta except the special events that are to be given for raising funds for charitable purposes. Among these are the game of alleged baseball Saturday evening between the railroad men of this city and Spokane will be a conspicuous feature. No vaudeville show is presented in this city can compare with the program that has been arranged for this electric light event. The game, or rather the event, will take place at Multnomah field.

EXPOSE FREIGHT CAR GRAFT

Scandal of Serious Magnitude Unearthed in Transportation Department of Southern Pacific Railroad—Outsider Able to Rush Delivery of Blockaded Cars.

(Journal Special Service.)
San Francisco, Cal., June 29.—Scandal of serious magnitude has been unearthed in the transportation department of the Southern Pacific, which has occupied the attention of the highest officials of the system since the discovery of the plot two weeks ago. For the past year, merchants receiving freight in carload lots in San Francisco have suffered from the congestion of freight traffic on the Harriman lines. One of the greatest difficulties was in the holding of cars in the extensive freight yards in Sparks, Nevada. Frequently the officials of the road found themselves unable to expedite the movement of cars detained at Sparks, and shippers suffered without relief. Shipping clerks in the large wholesale grocery houses told their firms that while repeated complaints made to railroad officials had been without result, they had learned that something could be done by seeing Roy Mauvais, of the Mauvais Auto Car company, who had acquired the reputation of being able to get a car out of the yards in Sparks and into San Francisco, when the traffic department of the Southern Pacific company could do nothing. In their desperation, one after another of the larger shippers in the city looked up Mauvais, to test his reputed ability in the matter of the movement of expedited freight. To their application, he answered with business-like terseness, noting down the number of the car which had been held up, and assuring them that "it would be delivered in the city in 24 hours." The transaction with Mauvais was complete with the payment of a fee of $50 per car. To their surprise the merchants found that Mauvais' prediction came true. The car arrived, following the payment of $50. The matter reached the ears of the Southern Pacific officers, and detectives were put to work on the matter, with the result that it was discovered that a ring had been formed as a result of the congestion, and large sums had been exacted from shippers as the price of expediting cars. Railroad men, of course, are involved in the conspiracy. Yard officials and subordinates along the line secured big profits from the system of graft, which grew out of the freight blockade last fall. Railroad men are puzzled by the case by which Mauvais and his allies hunted out and put ahead cars which the company's agents tried in vain to expedite. At the same time they see no way to punish unofficial freight agents who are not connected with the company.

ABRUPT ENDING OF ONE MEASURE

Attempt to Railroad an Ordinance Through Council by Baker Fails.

IT WOULD BAR MEN FROM SOUTH PLAZA

O. R. & N. Co. Granted Permission to Run Tunnel Under Peninsula at University Park With Slight Changes in Original Franchise.

An attempt to "railroad" through an ordinance forbidding men the enjoyment of the south plaza block on Fourth street and making it a misdemeanor punishable by a $10 fine came to an abrupt end when the measure was referred to the judiciary committee on motion of Councilman Boothe. Councilman Baker is the man who tried to get the matter put through without referring it to a committee. It was explained that the north block was reserved entirely for men, but Boothe could not see why a man should not be permitted to accompany his family to the south plaza block, and counseled earnest consideration of the matter. The council granted the franchise recommended by the ways and means committee to permit the O. R. & N. company to run a tunnel under the Peninsula at University Park, with some slight changes. The ordinance drawn up prescribed that the railroad company should build a bridge across Newark street when the street was permanently improved. City Engineer Taylor thought that in the future the railroad company might construct permanent to mean hard-surface pavement and refuse to build the bridge until hard-surface was laid on the street. The word "permanent," as a precaution, was stricken out. The other amendment provided for the construction of bridges the full width of Newark street, and the words "and maintain" were inserted after contract, in order that the cost of keeping up the structure should fall on the railroad company. The city's cash will be counted after the end of every fiscal year, the request of City Treasurer Welein having been granted in an ordinance providing for the appointment of a committee of the city to audit the accounts of the company. The painting of Colonel L. L. Hawkins, father of the Portland museum, was ordered by the council for the sum of $500. It was done by R. Leharre Goodwin. The employment of an additional attorney in the city attorney's office was also granted by the council. An ordinance was passed granting Thompson Bros. $300 for damages sustained to their greenhouse in the opening of Belmont street. At a previous meeting the council granted them $200, which makes the amount $500.

Among other things, he burned her hair and broke up a fountain pen. Also he ordered Mrs. Legg's friends out of the house when they called on her to arrange for her new clothes. April 16, it is charged, Legg forced an entrance to his wife's rooms, and struck her on the head so violently that a large bump was left on her forehead. For two years, says Mrs. Legg, her husband has had a habit of kicking her on the shins with a lead pencil. The plaintiffs were married in this city in May, 1889, and have two children, Bessie, aged 15 years, and Gladys, aged 12 years. The family lives at 187 East Main street. They own their home, and
