FORTY YEARS A PROFESSOR

Professor Marsh of Pacific University Fills Out a Notable Career.

Professor Joseph Walker Marsh.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Pacific University, Forest Grove, Or., June 20.—A remarkable career has been that of Professor Joseph Walker Marsh, who was lionized Tuesday night by the associated alumni of the university in an enthusiastic meeting in his honor. Such a demonstration had never been known in the institution's history. The occasion was the professor's retirement. His resignation was accepted with much regret by the board of trustees.
Professor Marsh came to Oregon over 40 years ago and has been professor of Greek, Latin and moral philosophy, together with other branches, for the entire period of his career. He has been a member of a single class and the many students who have come in contact with his keen intellect and lovable character have always gone from the college walls with great appreciation of the man whose labors have been performed through sacrifice and toil. In their talks at the meeting in his honor the students brought out forcibly their appreciation of these facts and with great applause from the audience.
Professor Marsh was the center of all attention and thought, as he sat in the auditorium, his hair silvered and his shoulders bent with the burdens of a generation. When he was presented with the Bishop's Bible, which is several centuries old and the gift of the alumni, the audience cheered to the echo.
Milton W. Smith, John A. Lee, J. E. Kirkwood and H. W. Scott were the speakers. All are graduates of Pacific University. Without exception they referred to Professor Marsh as a man of keenest intellect and most lovable character.
The musical part of the program was enthusiastically received. Millard O.

OPERATORS WIN
President Clowry submitted the concessions in a letter to Neill.
Clowry's letter said:
"As to statements made by persons in no way connected with the company that the 10 per cent increase granted by the company March 1 was not applied to all salaried telegraphers, I desire to say that the company announced the increase in good faith, and is carrying it out in good faith and that if any case was found in which the increase is not granted it will be corrected at once."
The statement was also made that the company is endeavoring to neutralize the 10 per cent advance by application of the so-called sliding scale without foundation. No such practice is in effect nor is there any intention of putting it into effect by the company.
This company has not discriminated against nor will it discriminate against an employe because of affiliation or non-affiliation with any organization, and if it can be shown me that any subordinate has been dismissed or discriminated against a telegrapher because of his affiliation with an organization, such telegrapher will be restored to his position without prejudice.

"As evidence of absolute good faith of the company in its relation with its employes I beg to say that if any telegrapher feels he has any grievance under any of the foregoing conditions, if he cannot secure satisfactory adjustment of his complaint with the officers of the company we will submit the matter for arbitration to three parties, one to be selected by the telegraphers, one by the company and the third selected by the two so chosen or by the chairman of the interstate commerce commission and the commissioner of labor acting jointly."

BABE DESERTED
quickly disappeared in one of the numerous lodging houses in the vicinity.
At the Baby Home, it is stated that the father of the child is a well-known resident of Woodburn and the mother an unmarried woman of Arleta. Information was furnished to the attendant at the home by the woman in black that the little one was born at Arleta at 6:40 o'clock last night. The tiny mite of humanity was nude and evidently there had been great haste to dispose of the unfortunate child. The unnatural parents' names are known to the authorities and arrests are likely to follow.

AOKI OFFENDED
personal representative of the sovereign.
Socially Aoki has not been a success in Washington. Difficulties began when his marriage to a German woman took place. Emperor William was angry, and he divested the Viscountess Aoki, who was a member of the German nobility, of all privileges and barred her from the court. At her marriage she became a subject of the German States. For this reason, Baroness Speck von Sternburg, wife of the German ambassador to the United States, has never called on Viscountess Aoki, and there has been no social intercourse whatever between the two women.
Other members of the diplomatic corps have taken up the fight against Aoki, and as social popularity is one of the chief assets of a diplomat, the usefulness of Viscount Aoki was seriously impaired.

DYING MAN

the shooting of Prof. Herbert, relative to the tragedy. In her statement she had met Herbert once before he came to Portland. She had sent some verses to Portland which had been commended and had them sent them to Herbert for his opinion.
Herbert had replied suggesting that she come to the home by the water over. At the request of Reynolds she had written to Herbert, telling him she was married, and Herbert had answered that she would come to Portland in a short time and would call.
Husband Was Jealous.
Mrs. Reynolds said her husband was very jealous, that he had threatened her life on several occasions and that she did not tell him of Herbert's presence in town. She had been with Herbert on the night before and had walked to the Portland hotel to listen to the music. He had been in the house about 10 minutes when Reynolds appeared and shot him.
Reynolds had plenty of time to escape had he so desired before officers arrived on the scene but apparently he did not care to do so. In fact he started in preference to escape and to Patrol Captain Moore and Sergeant Batey he said:
"My happiness is gone now and I don't care what comes of me."
The shooting occurred about 2:30 o'clock and Reynolds, who came home hurriedly from a bath house establishment which he conducts in a basement at the corner of Second and Washington streets, came well prepared to inflict severe punishment on some one. He had been informed by his 18-year-old son that Mrs. Reynolds—his stepmother—had entertained a male companion at the house on Tuesday evening during the absence of Reynolds and yesterday afternoon when his wife telephoned him that she would not call at the bath house to relieve him at 4 o'clock as was her usual custom, the husband became suspicious and determined to investigate the matter on his own hook.
According to Reynolds his wife telephoned him about 2 o'clock that she was not feeling well. She intimated that an afternoon of rest and quiet would do her good and Reynolds told her to remain indoors, so he says.
Hanging up the telephone receiver at the bath house the suspicious husband informed his son that he was going out for an hour or so and leaving the youth in charge of the place Reynolds started post haste for his home.

WIFE TRIED TO SAVE HIM

Reynolds always went armed and his son cautioned him to be careful. The father made no reply other than telling the young man to remain at the establishment until he returned.
According to Reynolds, just as he arrived at the house he found Mrs. Reynolds and a male companion ready to leave. Taken unawares, Mrs. Reynolds made an effort to explain who her caller was, but before she could do so the latter attempted to leave.
"That play on the part of the fellow settled it with me," said Reynolds at police headquarters last night. "It's all over now and the excitement is wearing off. But I winged my man just as I would expect any decent man to wing me if I attempted to break up his home."
As Reynolds tells the story, the moment Herbert started to run from the parlor for the front door, the jealous husband whipped out his revolver and started to shoot.
Woman Tried to Save Him.
"I tried hard to kill my man," continued Reynolds, "but Mrs. Reynolds jumped in between my gun and the other who caused all the trouble. She attempted to disarm me, knowing very well that it would not harm a single hair of her head. She nearly pulled the coat off my back, but I managed to pump three shots into the fellow anyway."
That is exactly what Reynolds did. Trained old scout that he is, he watched carefully the direction his bullets took and after emptying five barrels of his weapon he attempted to follow his victim but was prevented in a hand to hand contest with his wife.
In the meantime Herbert, mortally wounded as he was, fled from the house and ran with all the speed he could summon under intense excitement. He ran down Fourteenth street to Morrison and down Morrison to the drug store at the corner of Tenth and that thoroughfare.
"I'm shot! Call a doctor!" exclaimed Herbert, falling to the floor and fainting.
Dr. A. Titzer was hastily summoned and had the man removed to Good Samaritan hospital. The police were notified and Herbert was placed under arrest.
Herbert was shot in the right hip, the right shoulder and through the intestines. The bullet going the damage was the latter. It caused 13 perforations. An operation was performed, but the patient did not rally.
Mrs. Reynolds refuses to talk. First she denied being the wife of Reynolds, but afterwards admitted that she married the old scout at Pueblo, Colorado, five years ago. She is said to be the daughter of J. L. Wilson, a prominent resident of Santa Clara, California. Reynolds first met her in Denver, where she was cashier in one of the hotels of that city. After a short courtship the pair were married and came to Oregon to reside. Reynolds since leaving the government service had been engaged in trading and stock merchandising until he purchased a bath house here ten months ago.

BUSTER BROWN AND TIGER

There is still some mystery surrounding the shooting which the police have not solved. Reynolds admits that his second marriage venture was not a happy one, but he says he worships the ground his wife treads. He is 44 and she is 31. By a former marriage Reynolds has two children, a boy 18 and a daughter 19.
Reynolds rode with Custer and piloted General Howard safely across the Rockies to meet General Miles at Snake creek in 1877 during the famous Nez Perces uprising. He bears a fine record as a scout. At one time he ran the lodging house over the Mascot saloon, and at that time had the reputation of being a very excitable person.

MORE FURNITURE MEN PLEAD AND ARE FINED
Three more furniture dealers pleaded guilty to forming a combination to restrain trade before Judge Charles E. Wolverton in the United States district court this morning, making the total number who have pleaded guilty 24. Of these 31 have been fined, sentence to be arranged, most of whom will probably appear in court Monday morning.
The dealers fined today were Al. Street of Stayton, Frank J. Chapman of Dallas and J. G. Chambers of Eugene. Each was assessed the usual $25.
There still remain about 100 dealers to be arraigned, most of whom will probably appear in court Monday morning.
