

the strongest familiarity and friendship has been proved in the most absolute way to have existed between Moyer and Pettibone and Haywood and Harry Orchard. But Haywood is standing his trial alone in this case and not in company with the other two men, and only one substantial piece of evidence has been produced to bring Haywood into this case as a conspirator, with who made a business of contriving or conniving at the secret assassination of other men.

Orchard's Story. Against him of course there is the remarkable evidence of that interesting and unusual personage, Harry Orchard. And again I want to say here, as I said before, that if the leading counsel for the defense had half the courage to dismiss Orchard without cross-examination the evidence of Orchard would have been only a feature story for the daily paper. But Richardson chose to enter the lists with Orchard, and Orchard on all counts proved himself the better man. He thought three times while Richardson was thinking once. He hit Richardson three times while Richardson made feeble gestures—and missed him by a mile. And when Richardson had finished with him—or, to be more accurate, when Orchard had finished Richardson—Orchard's testimony had become a very solid and substantial and convincing thing.

State's Case Is Weak. But even at that it was only Orchard's testimony, and Orchard, according to his own story, was only a liar and an arsonist and a bigamist and an assassin, who had grown penitent in later life and confessed to a broad-church vicar and a very astute Pinkerton detective, and nobody would hang a dog on the word of a man like that. So the defense is probably going to put in affidavits men and denial and a mass of rebutting testimony that will not affect Orchard's testimony at all—and that will only lead still more weight to that testimony. Still, as the state has rested today the substantial evidence against William D. Haywood is one untruthful letter and the evidence of Orchard-Hogan-Green-Horsley who, like Mr. Bryson's "Cornair," will leave to memory "the crimes of one virtue and a thousand crimes." And many of them were blundering and awkward and unsuccessful crimes at that. Orchard succeeded much better as a witness than he did as an assassin. And the conviction of Haywood should not be one of his successes. What further blunders the defense may make and what further evidence the prosecution may have in rebuttal are another story.

FILIPINOS AROUSED AGAINST AMERICANS (Journal Special Service.) Manila, June 21.—The existence of a scheme to create pro-Japanese sentiment among the natives, especially in the northern section, has become evident and the government is watching the actions of certain Japanese who married Filipino women and are living there. Arrests are possible if the developments expected take place. Throughout the island provinces there prevails a belief that if Japan seizes the Philippines she will make them independent under her protectorate. This tends to make Japan popular among the natives.

AUTO RUNS TWO DOWN

Careless Driver Strikes a Woman and Runs Over a Child at Gilsan and Twenty-Fourth Streets—Little One Removed to Hospital.

While crossing Gilsan street at Twenty-fourth shortly after noon today, Mrs. Denison and her 8-year-old daughter, Sylvia, were run down by an automobile. Mrs. Denison was struck and knocked aside, but the little girl was run over by the big car, and seriously injured.

The accident occurred at the head of Gilsan street where the car that runs from Twenty-first and Gilsan streets up to St. Vincent's hospital stops. Mrs. Denison and the little girl started to pass behind the street car and cross the street. According to bystanders, the auto was being driven very rapidly and was not seen until it was upon Mrs. Denison and the child. The driver of the car stopped, picked up the child and took her to the hospital where her wounds were dressed. Two women were in the car. They left the hospital before their names could be learned.

LID DECISION

Judge Cleland's decision hinges the prosecution of five saloonkeepers in Portland who kept their saloons open last Sunday. All five were indicted by the district attorney, and the question was raised before the court by a demurrer, through which it was contended that the state law as to the closing of saloons on Sunday is inoperative in this city.

Another decision of importance to be announced by Judge Cleland tomorrow is the suit of Elizabeth Farrell against the Port of Columbia, by which she sought to have the Port of Columbia act, passed by the last legislature, declared unconstitutional. Farrell seeks an injunction restraining the Port of Columbia commission from issuing bonds to install a line of tugboats from Portland harbor to the ocean. Decisions will be rendered by Judge Cleland in the following cases also:

Charles R. McCormick & Co. vs. Gorman & Brewster; demurrer to the complaint.
F. A. Marquam vs. United States Mortgage & Trust company; motion to dismiss.
Clement Leckett vs. William S. Townsend et al.; demurrer to complaint.
W. E. Tripp vs. Ashley & Rumelin; motion to complain.
H. Georopoulos vs. O. W. P. & Ry. Co.; motion to complain.
George W. Allen vs. A. H. Willett et al.; demurrer to complaint.
Anna M. Smith vs. North Pacific Brewing company; motion to quash service of summons.
Judge Gantenbein will decide: Mary M. Gillett vs. E. S. Merrill; on its merits.

EXECUTIVE BOARD MEETS ON MONDAY

Owing to the rose fiesta there will be no meeting of the executive board this afternoon. Instead the board will meet Monday afternoon for the transaction of business. At this session it is probable that the Burnside street bridge improvement will be brought up and some movement made toward bettering the present condition of the structure.

LIKE OPIUM EATERS

Coffee Drinkers Become Slaves.

"The experience, suffering and slavery of some coffee drinkers would be almost as interesting as the famous 'Confessions of an Opium Eater,' says a Boston man. 'I used coffee at the breakfast table and incidentally, through the day. I craved it as a whiskey drinker long for his morning breacer. I know perfectly well that it was slowly killing me, but I could not relinquish it. The effect on the nervous system was finally alarming and my general health greatly impaired. I had dyspepsia, serious heart difficulty, and insomnia. When I would lie down, I would almost suffocate. My doctor assured me it was due to the action of caffeine (which is the active principle of coffee) on the heart. 'I persisted in its use, however, and suffered along just as drunkards do. One day when I was feeling unusually depressed, a friend whom I met, looked me over and said: 'Now, look here, old man, I believe I know exactly what the matter with you. You are a coffee fiend and it's killing you. I want to tell you my experience. I drank coffee and it ruined my nerves, affected my heart, and made me a sorrow, bilious old man, but through a friend who had been similarly afflicted, I found a blessed relief and went to tell you about it. Try Postum Food Coffee, a grateful, delicious beverage, full of nourishment, that will satisfy your taste for coffee and feed your nervous system back to health rather than tear it down as coffee has been doing. 'I took my friend's advice, and within a week from that time my digestion seemed perfect. I slept a sweet, refreshing sleep all night, and my heart felt its suffering and jumping. I have been steadily gaining in health and vitality right along. There's a reason."

of the city to the other could not possibly be augmented or made more attractive parade of yesterday. The day roses appeared to wave their fragrance to the passing throng.

THOUSANDS WATCH PAGANT.

Surpassing in many features the attractive parade of yesterday, the pagant this afternoon, stretching for two miles along the thoroughfares, marked the scene of floral excellence. It is believed that fully 50,000 people thronged the streets to watch the long column pass in review. Certain it is that along practically every street where the imposing banks of roses passed the largest crowds ever seen in Portland jostled in an effort to gain a better view and went to untold applause. All morning at the Armory scores of men were busy decorating with thousands of roses the automobiles which formed the first division in this afternoon's parade. So heavily banked were these machines with blooms of deepest red to the rarest tints that no part of the cars save the wheels could be seen. Even the spokes in the latter were interwoven with beauties.

Autos Lead the Parade.

The automobile section led the procession, headed by Marshal of the Day McDonnell. In the front line in an exquisitely decorated touring car were seated W. W. Rowe, George Hutchins, W. Wynn Johnson, E. P. Cannon, Chester Whitmore, C. N. Black, J. S. McCord, Professor Krohn and E. B. McFarland, chairmen of the various committees which planned and carried into execution the most beautiful floral pagant yet seen in Portland.

People Cheer Pagant.

The main parade formed near Multnomah field and came down Morrison street to Third and after circling about the parade will be photographed and the Forestry building. Cheer after cheer swept along the line of the parade, and people as the long parade wound past.

Horses Win Cheers.

The third division with its many spirited horses and rose-decked equipage also brought forth prolonged cheers. Out at the Forestry building this afternoon the floral and other features of the parade will be photographed and the awards will be made for the best representations under the many different classes. Tomorrow will be the last day that the rose will hold official sway over the town. The exercises will begin with the parade at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. At 3 o'clock the lawyers, bankers and the doctors will have their baseball game at the Multnomah field. At 4 o'clock the electric lights will be turned off along Yamhill street and the fire department will make a spectacular run to Multnomah lighted by red fire torches along the way. A 2:30 the railroad men from Spokane and those from Portland will meet in a double baseball game. The awards made yesterday evening for the best decorated building, the best decorated store front and best decorated

LITTLE EVIDENCE

give a point blank denial to all the knowledge imputed to him by Harry Orchard; he would submit to all the cross-examination the state could subject him to; and he would probably be acquitted because there is lacking any "moral presumption" of at least a guilty knowledge of Orchard's man-killing past times; but because the prosecution has failed so far and the "so far" must be emphasized—to connect Haywood with the killings by Orchard except in the vaguest and most inferential way.

Letter Is Exception.

The one exception is, of course, that ugly letter written to the second Mrs. Orchard telling her that her husband was in Alaska when she was in California at that specific time he was in Caldwell with Jack Simpkins plotting, as he said, the assassination of Frank Steuener. But even that letter to the second Mrs. Orchard does not of itself imply a guilty knowledge, and it is the one substantial piece of evidence presented for the state connecting Haywood with the murder of Steuener.

Now if George Pettibone was at present on trial the evidence would be altogether different. Pettibone has not been for years a member of the Western Federation. He seems to have occupied his working days in the selling of washstubs and wringers and his leisure hours in hatching plots for other men to murder and making bombs for other men to throw.

Evidence Against Pettibone.

The weight of the piled-up evidence against Pettibone in this trial of Haywood has become ponderous. But Pettibone is not alone in this. Haywood is and the man to pile up the evidence against is clearly Haywood. And against him the evidence has not been piled up. It has been Pettibone and again Pettibone and always Pettibone. But as for Haywood there has been substantial evidence only that one solitary and lamentable letter.

Of course the reply is obvious and sound that this is a conspiracy case and that Haywood is only being tried alone and not in company with Moyer and Pettibone as one of the incidents of American law. It can be said that

PRIZE OF $100 CASH

Will be awarded Monday, July 1st, to the man, woman or youth producing the best business phrase suitable to a prominent Portland merchandising house.

Read the conditions!

Perhaps it never occurred to you that the most remarkable business successes in the world have arisen from the adoption and incorporation into the house's policy of a terse, striking, catchy, or homely phrase.

"DON'T WORRY" made a California house the center of trade. People grew to think of the place as the "DON'T WORRY" firm—the firm that made good all errors—that banished annoyances. The idea was attractive and it took.

"EVERY ORDER FILLED" was the house motto of Herbert Whiteley, an eccentric London merchant, who began a beggar and ended a millionaire. Many people tried to trip him up; one order went in for a second-hand coffin, another for a quart of fleas, another for a string of white elephants; he filled them all, to the amusement of the public, and became wealthy and famous.

Firm phrases well known in Portland are: "—sells it for less," "—that's all," "The house that saves you money," "The House of Quality," "Fighting the Beef Trust," "From Maker to Player," "Home of Government Inspected Meats," "House of Tone," "It's in the water," "Portland dirt makes money," etc., etc.

We want a phrase—terse, unusual, homely, catchy, anything you will, so that it attracts attention and suggests a policy you would appreciate in a house with which you deal.

We don't care in the least whether it's old-fashioned like "FOR LAND'S SAKE"; or an invention, like "PIANORELIABILITY," or a quotation such as "I am for men," which was borrowed from Henry George's famous speech. We don't care where you get it, or how you get it, but just get it.

Address Plainly:—
Room 614 BUCHANAN BLDG. PORTLAND, OR.

Conditions of the Contest

It is part of the game for you to find out who is making you this offer. We assure you we are a well known Portland firm now doing a tremendous business. You see our advertisements in the papers almost daily. At night we are very prominent.

But here is the direct key to the situation: Today we print below TWO LETTERS THAT APPEAR IN OUR FIRM NAME; tomorrow we will print OTHER LETTERS; and so on until Saturday, June 29th, when the remaining ones will appear.

To contest for this prize you must CLIP THESE LETTERS EACH DAY, and when you have them all, paste them on a slip of paper in CORRECT ORDER TO SPELL OUR NAME. Mail the paper to us, together with a business phrase, also your own name and address, so as to reach us not later than MONDAY, JULY 1st.

150 Additional Prizes!

If you give ANY of your time to us, your suggestion is almost bound to be of SOME value—perhaps of GREAT value. Confidently believing this to be true, we are glad to compensate you; so we shall award 150 additional prizes to those who make out our name correctly and submit a business phrase that has merit.

Two letters in our name are:
I-N-

VANDALS ATTEMPT TO WRECK ESPEE TRAINS

(Journal Special Service.)
Fresno, Cal., June 21.—Two attempts were made to wreck Southern Pacific trains in the yards near the depot last night. Detectives and track walkers are guarding the track.

A bent coupling pin fastened to a rail was discovered a few minutes before the Los Angeles express was due. Five minutes before the Owl was due a track walker discovered an obstruction at the other end of the yard.

SAVES PIANO BUYERS THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS

ELLERS PIANO HOUSE SELLS AT RETAIL TO THE INDIVIDUAL BUYER AT A PRICE AS LOW AS THE AVERAGE DEALER PAYS AT WHOLESALE.

Popular Methods and Popular Prices Have Built for the House of Eilers the Greatest Piano Business in the United States—Special Rose Carnival Sale Today and Saturday, With Many Bargains in New Pianos, Used Instruments, Organs, Exchanged Pianos, Etc.

Piano selling has been reduced to a science by the House of Eilers. Starting with popular principles, with a single store, seven years ago, this aggressive piano-selling organization has established a chain of more than thirty stores, reaching every part of the Great Pacific Northwest, and now the buying of a piano has been made a matter of the easiest convenience for every music lover. Buying in larger numbers, saving in cost, shipping by the "harness" system in special cars and thereby reducing the freight tariff in a decided manner, economizing in the handling and distributing, the House of Eilers actually saves the individual buyer an amount equal and, in many cases, greater than the entire profit of the average dealer.
