Suit That Sued. One of the rare features in life today was an old pioneer with a suit of clothes which he bought at the selling of years ago. The owner of this exceptionally durable suit is Ole Larsen, who resides on the Molalla in Clackamas county. He claims to have worn it for best most of the time, and it is still in a good state of preservation. Since Mr. Larsen has had his braid-bound suit he has visited the old country and ridden in a procession in his native city of Christiania.
