

PLAUBITS DESERVED

Wallace and Oldfield Broke More Records Before the Grandstand Packed to Suffocation—Ideal Day for the Events.

Yesterday's Auto Record.
 Pope-Hartford, driven by William Wallace, completed 10 miles in 10 minutes 56.2-5 seconds. This is the world's record for fully equipped touring cars, the previous record having been made on the Empire track, New York City by Vaughn in 11 minutes 11.4 seconds.

Wallace and Oldfield again received the plaudits of the vast crowd which assembled at Irvington track yesterday to witness the second day's racing in the automobile meet. Wallace drew to himself and Portland new honors by clipping 18.4 seconds off the previous world's record held by a touring car for 10 miles, and the owner of the Green Dragon, the wizard of space annihilators, gave to Portland the fastest five-mile record ever made on the Pacific coast.

A grandstand packed to suffocation, the fences and infield packed with additional crowds and scores of automobiles, an ideal day and enthusiastic interest at tension point, furnished the basis of a second day's successful meet.

Wallace's Record Drive.
 Wallace's record-breaking drive with the same Pope-Hartford, in which he won every race in which he was entered during the two days drew forth tremendous applause from the throngs of onlookers. His skill in handling the touring car was apparent from the start. His coolness and aloofness, as a class a margin as characterizes Oldfield's work when he is throwing space behind him at the rate of 75 miles an hour, and his steady, unwavering pace won him not only the admiration of the audience, but the place he deserved in the list of world's record drivers.

Each mile in the first five was covered in practically the same time, only one-fifth of a second marking the variation. Wallace carried out his passenger with him and his time by miles was as follows:

1	1:05 2-5
2	1:06 3-5
3	1:05 3-5
4	1:05 3-5
5	1:05 3-5
6	1:05 3-5
7	1:05 3-5
8	1:05 3-5
9	1:05 3-5
10	1:05 3-5

A quiver of excitement followed the announcement that Oldfield and his Green Dragon would go after a new record for five miles. He spun once around the track to heat the engines and as he bounded around the last curve onto the home stretch and raised his hand as a signal to the starter that all was ready, a roar of applause greeted him. The pistol cracked, there was a sharp hum of wheels revolving at terrific speed and a green streak disappeared in a tumbling funnel of dust.

Pacific Northwest Record.
 The first mile was covered in 57 seconds, as were the remaining four. Time for the five miles, 5:44.5, giving the Portland track the Pacific northwest record.

A three-mile motor cycle race opened the afternoon's program and was won by Greishelmer in 5:14 4-5.

A Tourist won the three-mile run-about race in 4:37 1-5, and the three-mile event, open to all touring cars, regardless of weight, cost or horsepower, was captured by Wallace in the Pope-Hartford in 4:03 2-5. He finished about a quarter of a mile in the lead, the Stevens taking second place.

Bruno Seibel was scheduled for a three-mile exhibition, but while warming up his cylinders the machine's gear slipped and he was forced to retire for the afternoon. In his place Oldfield drove his Green Dragon against time for five miles, completing the course in 4:47 2-5.

BETTER SERVICE BY AGITATION

Pendleton District Attorney Here to Meet With State Railroad Commission.

G. W. Phelps, district attorney at Pendleton, is in Portland to attend a meeting of the state railroad commission this afternoon. Mr. Phelps represents the citizens of Umatilla county in the efforts of eastern Oregon residents to secure better local railway train service.

"A peculiar thing about this investigation which was started against the railroad several weeks ago at Pendleton is that instead of trains averaging four hours late we have been getting nearly perfect schedule since the agitation was started," said Mr. Phelps. "A few more investigations of this kind and we will have better service throughout the state."

"No effort was made before the investigation to keep cars clean or to get them into the stations on time. A decided improvement is noticeable in both instances, but we need a local train that will give the service the country demands."

BOY ON TRIAL FOR MURDERING SHERIFF

(Journal Special Service.)
 Albion, Ill., June 24.—The case of David Kellems and his 17-year-old son, Albert, charged with the killing of Sheriff Alexander Compton near Keosauqua, December 20 last, was called for trial today before the Edwards county circuit court. The case was brought here on change of venue from Wabash county. The killing of Sheriff Compton resulted from domestic troubles in the Kellems family. On the day before the killing Kellems' wife left her home, taking with her their baby. Kellems followed to the home of her brother, Charles Black, and regained possession of the child. Mrs. Kellems appealed to the officers to aid her in obtaining custody of the child. The state's attorney gave a letter to Sheriff Compton to deliver to Kellems, which stated that if the child was not returned he would be arrested on an old charge. While he was returning with Kellems in custody the sheriff was fired upon from ambush and killed. Albert Kellems was arrested and his father held as an accessory.

We Will Give $100

For the Best Business Phrase Sent us not later than July 1

It isn't necessary to be a business man or woman to win this prize. A mere school boy suggested "Sunny Jim" to the great cereal house that afterward made him famous—and the whole requirement is alertness.

Read the Details Then Go In to Win

We want you to tell us who we are; you can find out by collecting the letters of our firm name as they appear in this series of eight advertisements, the first one having appeared June 21, the second June 23 and the last to appear being Saturday, June 29. Watch the papers each day, and get back numbers at the newspaper office, if you have missed them. You must send in our firm name, made up of these letters, together with your suggestion for a good business phrase, such as "You press the button," "See that hump," "House of satisfaction," etc.—something suitable to a large merchandising establishment selling a commodity that goes into every home. We are well known to you through our advertisements in this paper.

We will give 150 additional prizes to those sending meritorious phrases and our firm name; we know your effort will be worth the prize. If you submit and observe you are bound to win.

Notes—In answer to many readers who have written to know why we had no advertisement in Saturday's paper, we wish to explain that we shipped Saturday's issue going in Sunday's paper instead. The contest was announced June 21, giving two letters in our firm name; Sunday we gave two more letters; today we give three letters. Additional letters will appear in this paper each day up to and including June 24. Watch for them.
