Defense Charges State With Attempt to Intimidate Its Witnesses—Latter Are to Be Held in Town for the Prosecution.

By John Nevins. (Journal Special Service.) Boise, Ida., June 26.—Direct charges of attempted intimidation of their witnesses are being made by the defense in the Haywood murder trial against the state's detective agencies. It is alleged that representatives of the mines owned by Colorado have been given access to the courtroom so they can hear the testimony of certain witnesses and contradict them in rebuttal.

Major Naylor, when told of the charges against him, laughed. "I'm here as a witness. I have the same right to sit in the courtroom during the proceedings as the defense witnesses. It's true I've got these fellows' records, but that has been known for a long time."

Edward Boyce, first president of the Western Federation of Miners, was the star witness for the defense today. He testified that the circumstances connected with its inception and organization, he said it was born as the result of the first Cour d'Alone trouble.

(Journal Special Service.) Boston, Mass., June 26.—Earnings of the Great Northern road for May and June will break all records. The June receipts promise to show an increase of over $1,000,000, and will run something like 25 per cent ahead of June last year. This will bring the total earnings of the year up to about $55,000,000, and probably more, not including the earnings of certain proprietary lines, with the earnings of Spokane Falls & Northern, the Minneapolis and minor lines.

O'Neill States State Secured Admissions From Witnesses in Cross-Examination—Orchard Visited by Haywood.

Defamation of Character Already Infamous Seems to Be Faring Badly—Editor Admits Authorship of Article Defaming Governor.

By Hugh O'Neill. (Special Commissioner for the Denver Post and Oregon Journal.) Boise, Ida., June 26.—The defense opened its case for William D. Haywood again this morning with a woman. She was Mrs. Lottie Day, who one time roomed at the Belmont rooming house in Denver. After Mrs. Day affirmed that Orchard, sitting on a sofa with her in the Belmont, had threatened to kill Steuenberg and told her story at some length, she was taken for cross-examination by Hawley. It was a short affair, but it proved that the prosecution knew something the defense either did not know or had forgotten. Mrs. Day had been brought to Boise originally by the prosecution. The prosecution had obtained certain information from her and then she had been captured by the defense.

Previously it has been shown that Orchard had sometimes visited Haywood. Now, by the statement of a witness, the prosecution has succeeded in getting into evidence the fact that Haywood had been a visitor of Orchard's.

Little 4-year-old Tom Malone, who lives with his parents at 391 Chapman street, miraculously escaped death beneath the iron hoofs of a runaway horse at Fourth and Yamhill streets this morning. The wheels of the wagon to which the horse was attached cut in two the little cart in which he was riding, and the child himself was hurled beneath the flying team, but he escaped unhurt.

He proposes to have brought into town 10,000 jackrabbits. REID TELLS TRUE STORY OF RAILROAD

Secretary of Wrecked Tillamook Railroad Gives Inside Facts Regarding the Smashing of the Line by Harriman.

Misrepresentations in Pittock's Newspaper Corrected—Affidavits and Minutes of the Directors and Stockholders Furnished.

No man in Oregon is better acquainted with the history of the defunct Portland, Nehalem & Tillamook railroad than William Reid, who was secretary of the ill-fated corporation. The story of the wrecking of the road as set forth in the sensational suit for $500,000 damages, brought by H. M. Walker against E. H. Harriman, H. L. Pittock, John McCracken and others, published yesterday in The Journal, is fully confirmed in all details by Mr. Reid.

This morning's Oregonian contains an article in regard to the suit of H. M. Walker versus E. H. Harriman, John McCracken, H. L. Pittock, George T. Myers, John Stewart and others, including myself (made a defendant for what cause I cannot understand, as I never was a director of the Portland, Nehalem & Tillamook railway—merely its secretary). I refused in March last to give Mr. Walker any information, and have also for 18 months past refused both the Oregonian and Journal newspaper reporters the facts of any information whatever. But the Oregonian and Colonel McCracken having in this morning's Oregonian endeavored to distort the facts, I think it is no more than necessary in self defense to produce as I now do the identical contracts made by Pittock, McCracken and the directors, both with H. M. Walker, for the London Share & Debenture company, with the Atlas Contract & Supply company, and Edward Records, and which contracts bear their signatures; also a resolution.

Miss Collins was married in May, but she was not sure until June that the ceremony which had been performed was legally binding. By executive order, issued on the last day of May, all marriages celebrated under conditions similar to that of Miss Collins were validated and a new marriage system was provided for the zone.
