COULDN'T FIND THIS MUSICIAN

Critical Buyer Passed Up Liberal (?) Offer of Certain Local Firm, Who Failed to Make Sale Despite Big Allowance.

Eilers Demonstrate a Few Striking Facts in Connection With Values, Qualities and General Business Principles.

"Straws show which way the wind blows." An incident which occurred in a local piano store a few days ago shows in a striking manner the comparative value of certain player pianos...

A certain local music lover, who desired to purchase the best player piano to be found, made the rounds of the stores, thoroughly investigating the merits of each instrument put forward as a leader in one store the party made known the fact that they desired to trade a second-hand piano, and a piano player, as part payment on the new player piano which should be selected.

Now here is where a few significant facts come out. This second-hand piano had originally been purchased from Eilers Piano House, for $155, and the piano also from Eilers, for $240, making a total of $395 for both instruments. After having used them a considerable time it would naturally be supposed that the second-hand piano would be sold at a small percentage, but not so in the eyes of the salesman in the store in question. Instead of decreasing in value, the salesman considered the two instruments worth $500 toward a certain player piano which the firm offers for the piano-buyer's consideration. Here, then, was an increase in value of almost $100—which, to begin with, emphasizes the fact that Eilers Piano House is a house of genuine values—that when one buys an instrument of Eilers, that they can depend upon obtaining value for such an extent that other dealers will turn about and offer more money than was paid in the first place in order to effect a sale of their instruments.

But here is another significant incident in connection with this case in question. The party, although he had almost $100 more than was paid for the used instruments, decided, after a critical comparison of not only the player piano submitted by the firm who made this generous offer, but also of all other makes represented in Portland, that there were none which could be considered for a moment in the same class with the genuine Pianola Piano. Acting upon this conclusion, and notwithstanding the fact that a less advance than the amount originally paid was offered by Eilers, in exchange, this music-lover selected a Pianola Piano, one of the beautiful marbled wood Webers, costing $1,000.

Now, several things are apparent to the ordinary observer, namely, that Eilers is the House of Highest Values—second, that Eilers is the House of Highest Quality; third, that other dealers have a large margin of fictitious value and unreasonable profit with which to juggle allowances and prices. Another fact is that the genuine Pianola has a standard value, the same everywhere—strictly one-price the world over. Their value is such that all players is recognized universally. Certain other players are offered upon a single talking point. But the Pianola is incomparable, from many points of excellence has placed it far and beyond all others, which are at best but imitations. The fact that many instances of this kind which come to the notice of Eilers Piano House with frequent regularity. Names of parties referred to can be furnished anyone interested.

There is but one genuine Pianola and but one line of genuine pianos, all controlled and represented exclusively throughout the Pacific Northwest by Eilers Piano House. Pianolas may be purchased at $250 and $500 and Pianola Pianos at $500 and up. Convenient terms may also be arranged. Eilers Piano House, 113 Washington street, corner of Park.

DISTINGUISHED EDITOR COMING

Nolan Rice Best Desires Knowledge of Portland's Conditions.

Nolan Rice Best, editor-in-chief of the Interior, will arrive in Portland Saturday on his first visit to the coast and will spend a week here becoming acquainted with the conditions of Portland, commercial, religious and industrial.

The Interior is the principal religious paper of the Presbyterian church, and it is hoped by those who have been instrumental in bringing Mr. Best to this coast that it will mean much to have the editor personally cognizant of local conditions.

The program arranged for his visit includes a trip to Mount Hood during the first three days of his stay. A general investigation of the 30 Presbyterian churches of the city, a rally of all the churches, and a banquet for the men of this denomination.

At the rally meeting to be held at the first Presbyterian church, Von Oeden Vogt, secretary of the National Brotherhood, from New York; Mr. Best, from Chicago, and Rev. W. S. Holt, D. D., will speak, the program of the evening view of the east, the middle west and the far west.

The managers of the Commercial club have tendered their hall for the banquet and a toast program has been arranged.
