TELLS OWNERS OF ADVANTAGES

Norwegian Vice-Consul Has Written Firms Concerning Port of Portland.

SHOWS THAT CHANNEL IS BEING IMPROVED

New Port of Columbia Will Have a Beneficial Effect Upon Conditions So That Portland May Become the Cheapest Port in the World.

In view of the recent decision in the circuit court establishing the legality of the Port of Columbia commission, Endre M. Cederberg, Norwegian vice-consul at this port, today addressed a number of letters to prominent shipowners in Norway informing them of the advantages offered here by reason of the new commission.

The vice-consul sets forth in his letter the fact that great improvements are continually being done to the channel from Portland to the sea; that larger appropriations will be made for this purpose annually in accordance with the steady increase in shipping and that the bar towage will henceforth be in charge of the Port of Columbia Commission instead of the O. R. & N. company, as heretofore.

"When everything is in running order," he writes, "we may be able to claim Portland the cheapest port in the world. No pilotage, no dockage, no water to pay for land, and no other charges if not free, a mere nominal charge to be made."

The Norwegian steamship owners in particular are turning their attention to this part of the world and it is by reason of this that the vice-consul here has been so active in the matter of touching upon maritime affairs of the port. In addition to the letter, he has forwarded to the steamship owners several newspaper clippings and other literature concerning the port.

As an illustration of the increase of the Norwegian merchant marine in these waters is shown that during the six months now about to close Norwegian steamers aggregating a total net register of 34,275 tons, visited the port, whereas during the whole year of 1906 the total net registered tonnage was only 15,435. Consul Cederberg expects at least 60,000 tons to visit this port during the year, as there are a number of large Norwegian tramp steamers now on the way to the Pacific coast, several of them heading direct for Portland, while others will come by way of Seattle.

The next Norwegian steamer due to arrive here is the Mathilda, owned by the Christianstad of Bergen, who is also owner of the Finn, which arrived here Wednesday evening from San Diego. The Mathilda comes from San Francisco under charter to the Pacific Export Lumber company to load lumber for the Orient. She took her first cargo from this port about three months ago and is now returning by way of the Bay city.

Captain Heinrich Wilms Returns to Sea With Family.

That it is difficult for a true-blue sailor to leave the sea for shore-life was illustrated this morning when a letter was received from Captain Heinrich Wilms, formerly master of the German ship Emile. Captain Wilms reached Europe a few months ago from this port with a cargo of lumber and accepted a lucrative position as inspector in Hamburg with the intention of spending the remainder of his life ashore with his family. But the call of the sea became too alluring and again the skipper is riding the bounding billows.

In the letter received here this morning Captain Wilms says he has taken command of the German ship Louise, which at that time was preparing to sail from Genesimunda for San Francisco, and that he is bringing his whole family with him and that in all probability they will come up to Portland for a visit.

LOTS IN ROSS WERE ARE MOVING

More rapidly now than heretofore, owing to the fact that more people are seeing this beautiful addition since the East Ankeny car line has been extended out the Sandy Road Boulevard through it, and they are showing their appreciation of the location by putting their coin in some of the lots for homes.

KINDLY REMEMBER

We GRADE ALL STREETS, put in CEMENT WALKS, and lay WATER MAINS in STREETS FREE to BUYERS, and are selling these beautiful home lots at $400 and up. Terms, 10 per cent cash and 3 per cent per month on selling price. Call on us and let us show you this property.

Captain Heinrich Wilms Returns to Sea With Family.

That it is difficult for a true-blue sailor to leave the sea for shore-life was illustrated this morning when a letter was received from Captain Heinrich Wilms, formerly master of the German ship Emile. Captain Wilms reached Europe a few months ago from this port with a cargo of lumber and accepted a lucrative position as inspector in Hamburg with the intention of spending the remainder of his life ashore with his family. But the call of the sea became too alluring and again the skipper is riding the bounding billows.

In the letter received here this morning Captain Wilms says he has taken command of the German ship Louise, which at that time was preparing to sail from Genesimunda for San Francisco, and that he is bringing his whole family with him and that in all probability they will come up to Portland for a visit.

LOTS IN ROSS WERE ARE MOVING

More rapidly now than heretofore, owing to the fact that more people are seeing this beautiful addition since the East Ankeny car line has been extended out the Sandy Road Boulevard through it, and they are showing their appreciation of the location by putting their coin in some of the lots for homes.
