

STATE SCORES POINT ON CROSS-EXAMINATION

State Brings Out Fact That Adams Could Refute Orchard's Story if Defense So Desired—Davis Confused on Stand—Engineer Rush a Good Witness.

Steve Adams Walking in the Prison Yard.

(By Hugh O'Neill, Special Commissioner of the Denver Post and Oregon Journal.) Boise, Idaho, June 27.—Again this morning the impression became almost imperative that William D. Haywood has either a lamentably bad case or else it is being lamentably handled. Yesterday was a day of failures for the witnesses called by the defense and today threatens to be a repetition of yesterday. Yesterday morning Mrs. Lottie Day was called to defend the already infamous Orchard, and she ended by admitting that Haywood had visited him at the Belmont rooming-house in Denver. John E. Elliott followed Mrs. Day and John Elliott turned out to be an ancient imbecile. Then came John M. O'Neill, editor of the "official organ" of the Western Federation of Miners. And O'Neill admitted the authorship of scurrilous and foolish editorials dealing with the murder of Stuenberg.

(Continued from Page One.) states traversed. Attorney Stephens for Spokane petitioners required the railroads to supply him with an official statement showing the assessments from Wisconsin from the railroad. Comparison of this with the railroads' statement filed at Chicago in the same case shows that the roads are paying taxes on their rates on an average of about 20 per cent of the valuation as claimed by them. In Spokane the Northern Pacific alone has a valuation of $1,450,000, but the company pays taxes on $100,000. The same company claims its valuation at Chicago is $1,450,000, yet it pays taxes on $17,500,000. Seattle, $80,000,000; Tacoma, $13,000,000, being a total of $49,500,000. Yet the total amount of all property in Washington and Oregon is less than $30,000,000.

ROADS ARGUMENTS

Capitalization and Valuation. An important phase of the case is the controversy over the capitalization and valuation of the roads.

TOUGHS ATTEMPT TO UNDECK TRAIN

Nuts Removed From Bolts in Bridge Over Deep Gulch in South Portland.

Serious and perhaps disastrous consequences on the Southern Pacific railroad bridge that crosses the deep gulch in South Portland were averted today by Ralph Ameter, a Journal paper carrier, when he discovered the removal of several nuts from bolts which support portions of the bridge.

Ameter was crossing the bridge this morning when he accidentally discovered that several bolts had been tampered with. Upon investigation he saw that the number of nuts had been removed from the bolts which secure the ties upon the bridge.

TRIED TO CONVERT

According to the judge, who went last night in person accompanied by Officer S. D. White, to investigate affairs.

Presently a woman who had prostrated herself in the straw on the ground began a series of hysterical contortions which the judge said interested him very much.

Turning to the child who sat near by on a bench, the judge asked: "No. She hasn't received her Pentecost yet, but she is going to soon."
