TODAY'S MARKETS

Harry L. Hart Gives the Hop Growers Some Encouragement When He Says That Prices Will Not Be Quite So Low.

CROP LIKELY 130,000 BALES

Prospects Still for a Smaller Hop Production in Oregon This Year.

Today's market features:
Hops look like 130,000 bales.
Hop sale at 7c a pound.
Shad men continue fishing.
Central Canners' association prices.
Car Brawley cantaloupes arrives.
Berry market holding steady.
Cochella tomatoes in fine shape.
Oregon new spuds come faster.
Higher prices rule on onions.
Dressed veal market firmer.
Eggs are dull; liable to drop.
Creamery butter is just holding.
Florida pineapples in good [illegible]

Hops Look Like 130,000 Bales.

Conservative hops men; those who have the growers' interests at heart as well as their own, are not making predictions of record-breaking hop productions in any section this season. Harry L. Hart of this city, who is in a position to estimate the hop crop as well as anyone, says that the crop the coming season will range around 130,000 bales. It may go a fraction more than that, but it is more likely to fall under that figure.

"Hops look fine along the line of the railroad between this city and Salem," said Mr. Hart this morning. "The view from the cars is quite good. On the west side the yards are beginning to show better growth. I don't expect over 130,000 bales in Oregon this season—perhaps less. The yards have not been cultivated like they were a year ago, and this alone will cut down the production. There is no question in my mind that the crop will be smaller than a year ago. I believe that growers will get a little better than the cost of production if they sell at the right time."

Mr. Hart, Tom Livesley and a party expect to make an automobile trip through the hop yards during the next few days.

Seven Cent Sale at Salem.

That all is not so bad in the hop market as some would lead the growers to believe is shown by the several sales lately at 7c. Yesterday the Provost lot of about 130 bales of choice goods was sold to Shucking at a price said to be 7c a pound. There has been a number of other sales at this figure for the best quality.

The Eastern markets are thus reviewed by the New York Producers' Price Current:

"Business in the local market is almost at a standstill. There has been very little inquiry, and we only hear of sales of occasional very small lots. With excellent growing weather the past week in New York state the vine has made rapid progress, and in those yards in which the vine was in good condition the showing is excellent. The more backward yards have also shown a decided improvement, and prospects for a fair crop are now much better. It is still claimed, however, that it will be impossible to raise as many hops as last year on account of the large percentage of missing hills in the old yards. The Coast crops are reported to be in very good shape, the showers of late having brightened up the yards. From England mail and newspaper advices are to the effect that the crop has made a very good start, although a slight attack of fly is reported. This is nothing unusual, however, and is made light of. The continental crops are all reported as looking very well."

Central Canners Name Prices.

Local jobbers are in receipt of the opening prices on canned goods made by the Central Canners' Association of California. While the exact figures have not as yet been made public, it is stated that they make the figures of a year ago look dirt cheap in comparison. No opening prices have as yet been named by the California Fruit Canners' association. As was told some time ago in this report, the canners have much to contend with this season. First there is the great uncertainty regarding the size and quality of the crop; next there is the scarcity and high price of cans and boxes, and lastly, there is the enormous shortage in labor and the high prices ruling in the south.

Shad Men Continue Fishing.

Intent again on getting a decision regarding the master fish warden's stand on the close of shad fishing in the Willamette slough, the fishers are continuing their work, and some small arrivals have been lately received in this city. The closing of shad fishing at this time would cause the loss of about $400 each to every man engaged in the work at St. Helens. If the ruling of the Astoria official is held in the courts the men say that it will drive all the shad business to that city. The men contend that some time ago when the government had appropriated a large sum for the dredging of the Willamette river, a delegation from St. Helens tried to get some of this sum expended on the Willamette slough; claiming that it was a tributary of the river. According to the officials the slough was not a tributary, so they did not work there. The fishermen base their views on this alleged decision of the government, and say they are willing to test it in the courts against the ruling of the Astoria official.

Brief Notes of the Trade.

Egg market duller with some talk of lowering prices. Eastern eggs have begun to arrive in a small way, and as they are much cheaper it checks the sale of local stock.

Chicken market in steady position.

Dressed veal was very scarce during the past 24 hours, and some sales were made a fraction higher.

Another car of Brawley cantaloupes arrived in this morning. Price lower at $3.50 and $3.75.

Cheese market easier but unchanged.

Cochella tomatoes are shown in fine shape on the street. Crates sell at $2.25.

Oregon new potatoes are coming in faster. Selling a fraction lower.

California red onions have advanced 25c in the local market on account of a similar move in the south.

Florida pineapples are arriving in fine shape.

A straight car of peaches is expected tomorrow from California. Will sell around $1.50.

Today's Front street selling prices:

Grain, Flour and Feed.

GRAIN BAGS — Calcutta, 9c, large lots;; small lots, 10c.

WHEAT—Club, 84@85c; red Russian, 82c; bluestem, 87@88c; valley, 84@85c.

CORN—Whole, $28.00; cracked, $29.00 per ton.

EARLY POTATOES HAVE GOOD QUALITY

"It looks at present as if the early crop of potatoes in Oregon will be quite fair this season. Thus far quality has been good but it is hard to tell how the stock will turn out later. Everyone is rushing their early stock to market with the least possible delay and some are therefore shipping unmatured potatoes. The price on Oregons rules today at $2.50@3.00. They are better than Californias for home consumption but are not matured enough as yet to ship distance."—Mark Levy, of Mark Levy & Co.

EASTERN EGGS ARE IN LOCAL MARKET

"Eggs are coming in fairly well, and while prices are considerably advanced, there is no surplus. There are some fresh eastern in the city, and they are selling at considerably less than the local.

"Butter is unchanged, and quite firm for all grades.

"Poultry has to a certain extent recovered, and while hens are not any too firm, there is a brisk demand for large springs (very small ones are not sought after) and at very fair prices. Ducks are being marketed too freely and there is a poor demand for them at present. Old turkeys are also dull, and the same is true as to all geese. The only feature of the poultry market is an increased demand for large springs.

"The demand for fancy fat veal is very good, and the trade is not getting nearly what it needs. I hope that receipts of fancy will soon pick up. Small and medium fancy hogs are good sellers, but large and rough are not wanted badly."—Tom Farrell of Everding & Farrell.

BETTER RUN THAN EXPECTED

Livestock Market Holding Steady Despite Fairly Good Supplies.

Portland Union Stockyards, June 28.—Livestock receipts:

	Hogs.	Cattle.	Sheep.
Today	100	446	708
Week ago	...	825	197
Year ago	188	37	...
Previous year	18	87	199

While receipts were larger than expected today, but little weakness was displayed in the quotations. The run of sheep for the 24 hours was 708 head, against 127 head a week ago, none this date a year ago, and 199 head for this Friday in 1906. However, despite the increased arrivals in this line, the tone of the sheep market held quite steady all day and no concession in the price was made. With the big run of sheep over for the season, and with killers' requirements as heavy, if not heavier, than arrivals, there seems nothing at this time that could possibly affect the price and cause it to take the downward slide. In fact, the evidence all leans toward an advance. Lambs look down to the bottom.

A year ago today the sheep market was quoted firm.

Better Run Than Expected.

Today's cattle market, while showing a better run than expected on account of the recent cut in values, was but little better than half of what it was a week ago. Receipts were 446 head, as against 825 head a week ago, 37 head a year ago, and 87 head for this day in 1905. Cattle are already down to such a level that the trade still believes the bottom has been reached.

A year ago today, despite the nominal run, cattle were quoted slow.

Watching Eastern Hogs.

Although the weather in the east is getting so warm that it will soon be dangerous to ship hogs to the far west, Pacific coast packers are still watching the values there. While eastern quotations were unchanged today, the tone was weaker. Today 100 head were received in the yards. This compares with none a week ago, 188 head a year ago, and but 15 head in 1905. Today's market was steady, but dull.

Today 25 horses came in.

Official livestock prices:

Hogs—Best eastern Oregon, $6.50; stockers and feeders, $6.25; China fats, $6.00.

Cattle—Best eastern Oregon steers, $4.00; best cows and heifers, $3.25; bulls, $2.00.

Sheep—Wethers $4.25@4.50; lambs, $5.50.

HOGS WEAK IN EAST

Chicago Receipts Better Than Year Ago—Others Are Steady.

Chicago, June 28.—Livestock receipts:

Chicago	19,000	2,000	5,000
Kansas City	9,000	1,500	1,000
Omaha	9,500	500	1,000

Hogs are weak at yesterday's close, with 5,400 left over. Receipts a year ago were 17,000. Mixed, $5.80@6.07½; heavy $5.95@6.05; rough, $5.70@5.90; light, $5.85@6.10.

Cattle steady.

CROP REPORTS ARE WATCHED

Jones Gives Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas as Seventy-Three Million.

Watching Wheat Crop.

Chicago, June 28.—The Record-Herald says:

Yesterday's remarkable advance in wheat was most extraordinary, overturning of precedent and showed to what extent the northwestern spring wheat crop prospects figure in the year's wheat situation. New wheat will undoubtedly be arriving in Kansas City by July 10, and at Chicago five days later. In fact a year ago Kansas City was receiving plenty of wheat by this time.

Chicago Wheat Values.

	June 28.	June 27.	Loss.	1906.
July	$0.95¼	$0.96⅝	$0.00½	$0.82¾
Sept.	.98⅝	.99	.00⅜	.83
Dec.	1.01⅝ A	1.01⅝	.00¼	.84

Chicago wheat held very well considering the sharp advance quoted in all options yesterday. The closing showed but a small loss despite the great pressure on the market by the bears. The market opened ¼ to 1c lower, the smallest loss being in deferred months. Liverpool came with a very sharp advance both at the start and the finish and this was very encouraging to the bull side. The tone ruled very steady all day, the high point being made just previous to the closing. Options subsequently sold off on selling pressure. The report of Jones making the crop of Kansas 38,000,000 bushels was one of the factors which caused the market to recover its early loss. He gives the crop of Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas as 73,000,000 bushels, against 156,000,000 bushels a year ago.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET

Sharp Decline From High Prices—Selling in Reading.

New York stocks opened strong, but later sold off several points. The severe weakness in Reading had its effect on the rest of the list and this carried all values down. London was strong for Americans. The report that the Chesapeake & Ohio had decided to shut down all improvement work July 1 in consequence of the scarcity of labor and the high price of loans had a depressing effect too on price-making. Money started at 7 per cent and went to 12 per cent.

IMMENSE YIELD IN WHEAT BELT

Washington's Output to Exceed Thirty Million Bushels.

FARMERS SIGNING NO SALE CONTRACTS

High Quality Forecasted by State Grain Inspector, With Good Prices—Oregon and Idaho Share in the Excellent Conditions.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Tacoma, Wash., June 28.—State Grain Inspector John W. Arrasmith, who has just returned from a trip through the cereal districts of eastern Washington, estimates that this season's wheat crop will be from 30,000,000 to 33,000,000 bushels. He says that reports he has received from eastern Oregon and from Idaho wheat fields indicate that good crops are also being grown in those states.

"While we will not have an exceptional yield in this state," said he, "nevertheless, taking the state over, present conditions easily warrant the predictions of an average crop. With the dry weather pinching us last year we had 26,000,000 bushels. Our crop this summer will easily be from 2,000,000 to 5,000,000 bushers more.

"Washington has between 1,500,000 and 1,800,000 acres in wheat this season. Of this 30 per cent is fall sown grain, the rest being spring wheat. If the present cloudy weather conditions prevail up to harvest, giving wheat longer to ripen, the yield of grain will be higher than the figures I have given. In the Palouse country spring wheat was sown later than usual, the weather turned dry and cold there and it did not come up; so the spring wheat stand there is not uniform. There was more spring-sown grain this season than usual and it is rather backward. This will make harvest later than usual. Cutting will begin, nevertheless, by the middle of July and harvesting by the first of August. New wheat will be moving by August 15 or 20.

None to Be Shipped East.

"All the wheat of the inland empire will either find a market on the coast this season or go to the interior flouring mills. None of it will be shipped east. I expect farmers to have a good market, with wheat starting off at 70 cents in the interior. Farmers are now being offered 65 cents for future delivery and are refusing, and none of the farmers that I heard of are contracting at any price. From the present outlook there will be little or no shriveled or faulty grain in the market. There are no indications of a drouth to shrivel wheat and heavy snows in the mountains the past winter render remote the danger of hot winds, which in the past have made havoc of our wheat."

Rapid Increase in Acreage.

Mr. Arrasmith says it is gratifying to observe the rapid increase of the wheat acreage in eastern Washington. In 1904, he says, Franklin county had 70,000 acres of land sown to wheat. This season it reports 200,000 acres of wheat fields. Douglas county had 220,000 acres in wheat in 1904 and this season it reports 275,000 acres of wheat. Much of the present wheat fields of Franklin county, and also a large amount of the wheat area in the southern part of Douglas, were thought a few years ago fit for nothing but grazing purposes. There has also been a large increase in wheat acreage along the line of the Great Northern railroad.

New Wheat Districts.

A brand new wheat district that will be known as the Rattlesnake country has been opened by pioneering cereal growers in the western part of Benton county. The district is traversed by Cold creek and lies in the angle between the Yakima and the Columbia rivers, and Mr. Arrasmith thinks it will soon rival the other cereal districts of the state. The wheat-producing area of the Horse Heaven district, which is only a little older in cereal culture than the Rattlesnake country, lying just north of it, is being increased a year by year. Mr. Arrasmith says. The new north bank railroad runs along the southern boundaries of this district, while the Northern Pacific main line cuts along the Yakima river on the north, giving the farmers there excellent marketing facilities.
