STEAM ROLLER DAILY NEEDED

Contractors Complain City Fails to Crush the Rock After It Is Placed.

Contractors who ask for extensions of time in which to complete their work complain that the city does not furnish enough steam rollers to roll the crushed rock after they have it laid on the street and consequently they are delayed in their work. This was brought out at a meeting of the executive board street committee yesterday by several contractors who are in need of extensions and Mayor Lane said that the city should be secured if necessary. City Engineer Taylor informed the mayor that no appropriation had been made for steam rollers but that another one would come in very handy. It is very likely another roller will be procured if it is still possible. The contractors also say they are kept back by the inability of millmen to furnish lumber for curbing. This matter will be investigated by the city engineer. Extensions of time for street improvement contracts are not favored by the committee and it was decided yesterday to grant a longer limit for the completion of work.

WED LOVER

(Continued from Page One.) delphia. In course of time his wounds, both of body and heart, recovered and he was married to a young woman who nursed him on his return from the battlefield. Many years later he moved to Texas, where he became prominent in a growing community. She also became a widow. But neither he nor the girl he loved in childhood ever heard of each other, and they have only told themselves that their hearts were broken during all those years.

In 1881 Mr. and Mrs. Pierce moved from Philadelphia to Portland. Here he died and in the course of time the widow became Mrs. Stevens. He also died seven years ago, but was not buried in Portland until recently since her arrival. She has devoted her time largely to church work and is prominently identified with the growth and work of the church of her choice on the east side. She has also been prominently identified with the prohibition movement, having frequently been chosen as delegate to the state and city conventions. She was for several years secretary of the east side W. C. T. U. and was the first vice-president of the first Woman's Exchange in this city.

Old Love Is Bewaved. It was by the merest accident, and strangely enough, by the reading of a funeral announcement, that this half-century love affair was revived. Mrs. Stevens, a frequent intervals friend in Aurora, Illinois, have sent Mrs. Stevens copies of the local papers, in which she was, of course, deeply interested. Last January she read in the paper of the death of one of Mr. Hopper's sisters. He had twin sisters, and it was one of these who had died. Mrs. Stevens promptly wrote to the surviving sister a letter of sympathy and condolence in her bereavement. The friends in Aurora did not know the name, and a letter soon reached Portland inquiring who Mrs. Stevens was. Then she replied, giving her former name of Pierce and telling of her younger days in Aurora. To this the sister did not reply, but forwarded the letter to her brother in Texas.

Soon the postman brought to Mrs. Stevens a letter, postmarked "Gilmer, Texas." She knew no one there, but curiously opened it. In that way began the correspondence which resulted in the revival of the romance.

As the result of the correspondence Mrs. Stevens is to become Mrs. Hopper and is preparing to leave within a few days. Her venerable lover will meet her at some point on route, probably in California, and escort her to his home, where they will be married.
