Statistics for Cereal Year Now Ending Illustrate Portland's Exports.

CALIFORNIA COMES IN FOR SMALL QUANTITY

Shipments of Season Almost Equal to Those of the Preceding Season When More Wheat But Less Flour Was Set Afloat.

Portland's wheat and flour exports for the cereal year 1906-7 were about the same as those of the preceding season, a trifle larger to foreign ports, but smaller to California. During the cereal year of 1906-7 Portland shipped 4,364,988 bushels of wheat and 1,323,355 barrels of flour by water, while during the preceding cereal year the shipments were 3,952,656 bushels of wheat and 1,308,855 barrels of flour. Thus it will be seen that while the wheat shipments were slightly smaller during the year now ending the flour shipments were a little larger than those of the preceding year.

Great quantities of wheat and flour have been forwarded to the orient during the past few months, but only small quantities of breadstuffs have been sent to Europe this spring or during the latter half of the year. Europe drew no wheat at all during the month of June, although the orient took 182,810 bushels and California 75,651 bushels. June of this year, however, was a much busier month than the corresponding month of last year, when no wheat was shipped to either Europe nor the orient, and with only 51,903 bushels going to California.

The following tables show the shipments during the seasons of 1906-7 and 1905-6.

Destination	1906-7	1905-6
Wheat	Bushels	Bushels
Europe	4,364,988	4,352,774
California	75,651	51,903
Orient	182,810	1,504,345
Africa	100,000	194,521
South America	101,220
Total	5,024,669	6,003,543
Flour	Barrels	Barrels
Orient	1,323,355	1,308,855
California	125,150	203,069
Africa	11,000	1,143
Europe	10,000	55,000
Total	1,470,505	1,567,077

The flour shipments for the month of June to the orient were very heavy, aggregating 125,150 barrels. The wheat shipments for the season were placed on board the Portland-Astoria liner Arabis, which cleared yesterday afternoon for Hongkong and way ports with 56,200 barrels, although she will not be ready to sail until tomorrow afternoon. The Arabis was the first steamer to clear at this port at the beginning of the season and for that reason special effort was made to get her cleared before the close of the year.

BURIED MAN IN STORM.

Ship Dalgona Arrives From Hamburg With Cement.

When off Cape Horn, with a terrific gale blowing, the crew of the British ship Dalgona was called upon to consign the remains of Steward Neal to the deep. The old man had expired from some malady unknown to his shipmates, but the crew was determined for several weeks before he was finally compelled to take to his bunk for good. The best of attention under the circumstances was given him, but there seemed no help and he passed away in agony after about a week's confinement.

The Dalgona arrived in the harbor yesterday afternoon and berthed at Columbia dock No. 1, where she will discharge 15,000 barrels of cement and about 1,500 tons of other cargo from Hamburg. The vessel comes consigned to Meyer, Williams & Co. and is said to be under charter for outward business, although the name of her charter is not given out.

SCHOONER TO BE USED IN HALIBUT FISHING.

This Craft May Make Owner Very Wealthy.

John Rudder of Astoria is rigging a two-masted schooner, the Joseph Supple, boat yard on the east side to be used for halibut fishing off the mouth of the Columbia river. She will be a fine sea boat. Mr. Rudder says any quantity of halibut can be caught on the banks along the coast and he expects to make a fortune. The fish can be sent to Portland in fine condition, fresh from the sea. This will be a feature much appreciated by halibut fiends.

HOME OF THE MAY WINE

Old-Fashioned Barroom Where German Drink Is at Its Best.

May is over, but the season for May wine will continue for at least four weeks longer. Its official duration in this city is always determined by the action of the little "wein" room near Union square, to which all connoisseurs in this German springtime beverage resort. For 25 years the "Malwein" bowl has stood on the eastern end of the bar and thither thirsty pilgrims who wander go to the place at any other season when they want. The bowl is not the customary china punch bowl of the average barroom filled with a watery yellow liquid adorned with a few strawberries and spears of mint. This receptacle is covered with a dark copper frame, like a short fat barrel. One side of the bowl is like a lid, and inside this fortress rests the punch bowl. About it is ice enough to keep the mixture always cool, but never icy, says the New York Sun.

The black walnut bar fixtures that are now dustier than ever from the clouds of smoke that arise during most of the day and until late in the night were put into place long before the May wine days of the establishment. It had been in a barroom for some years before and they are old-fashioned enough to bespeak a long-term of service. The low ceiling, paneled with long boards also painted the color of the mahogany, has its share in adding to the dimness.

Back of the bar stretches a large, low room and here can always be had simple German dishes. At midday there is a lunch at a fixed price served to the patrons of the quiet old bar. Even then there is no more light than at any other time and nothing in the nature of a rush disturbs the reigning repose of the place.

When the May wine season begins toward the end of April, the other patrons begin to come back. Its effects in the cool, quiet room with the breeze blowing from Union square and the drowsy conversation of the other guests is not always calculated with as much accuracy as it should be. Four glasses of the seemingly simple liquid are likely to have potent effects. Broadway in the middle of the sun looks different in a way, and one's eyes are drawn to the comfortable gloom of the basement. Union square's tall buildings exhibit a perspective that does not seem just the same it was a little earlier in the afternoon. Strange impressions of this kind are likely to make themselves felt after too many glasses of the sweet but stimulating mixture.

Any German will tell you that the essence of May wine is a "waldmeister," a herb that comes in the early spring. If you look in a lexicon you will find a more heroic race of drinkers. Strangely enough, there is no Rhine wine in the cup. Mosel, champagne and woodruff, however, are combined in this mixture.

On the ice in the great refrigerator standing in the corner is a bag of the herb collected by the Statesmen for the men and women who make a specialty of carrying it about at this season of the year to the wine shops where the Germans rather than the English are in the ascendant. The pungent odor is scarcely noticeable, as the ice has made it too cold for that. On some of the branches is a tiny light colored flower.

The old-fashioned Rhine wine bottles gathered on the bar back of the counter speak a more heroic race of drinkers than those sipping at the round tables now. There are magnanimous and double magnanimous painted and glazed wine paper labels used to be. There was once upon a time, the tradition goes, a night on which all these bottles were emptied which sounds as if the drinkers must have been a race of giants. It is certain that few customers of the present generation would be equal to such deeds of prowess. Most of the men who sit about in the gloom are past middle age and few young men are seen there.

Was Ruskin's Friend.

From the London Chronicle. An interesting link with the past will shortly be severed by the coming resignation of the Rev. J. P. Fauntleroy, who has been principal since 1874 of Whitelands college, in the King's road, Chelsea. Whitelands will be familiar to students of the voluminous correspondence of John Ruskin, who took keen interest in the annual election and installation of the May Queen. The retiring principal was a close friend of Ruskin, and is well president of the London Ruskin society.

Monday, Wednesday, Friday

at 10 a. m. each day, at Salesroom, 208 First street.

Now is the time to secure great bargains at our sales. There is really no inducement in ordinary merchandising to tempt buyers over these July hot days. BUT we offer tempting inducements by selling the best grade housefurnishings, carpets, floor coverings and every home necessity at PUBLIC AUCTION SALE. There is no better line of furnishings on the market than the immense stock we have on sale as per advertisement. Buyers will find the highest-grade furniture; also the plainer, less expensive goods that have been but little, if any, used (good as new), and the price they bring at this season of the year is within the reach of everybody. PARLOR, LIBRARY, DINING-ROOM, BED-ROOM AND KITCHEN FURNISHINGS.

N. B.—Any one who wants cash for their belongings will find it to their advantage to call up Main 1525 or A-1425. Our price for goods is right.

Figure It Out Yourself

A piece of Nob Hill property, 60x100 feet, must be sold by July 15 for $2,900 cash, $2,300 on five years' time at 6 per cent interest; all told $5,200. Now that lot, or rather TWO lots, is really worth $6,500 of any man's money. Located on Kearney st., between 23d and 24th, it is surrounded by fine residences on every hand. Ground that size—60x100 feet—will carry four large flats, and flats rent readily in that part of the city. Four modern flats will bring in $150 per month, or $1,800 per annum on a $12,000 investment in land and buildings—nearly 15 PER CENT. This property is selling at least $1,000 too low, yet the owner is hard pressed and must have the money. If you have a little less change here is an opportunity to put it to work. See Foster, the Ad Man, about it, at Gevurtz & Sons, 173 First st.

BUILD A HOME

Just imagine a nice little home tucked away among the trees at Irvington Park. Young fir, cedar, dogwood, wild currants and other shrubs grow profusely over the whole tract—there's a delightfully suggestive odor of cleanliness, coolness and health—the shade as well as sunning. Think of the ever-present invigorating air—the quiet—the sunning. Think of the chance the children have to thrive there—the rest for you when evening comes. It's only 20 minutes from town, a pleasant, restful ride. You're on a table land 16 feet higher than any other in Portland; perfect, natural drainage; inspiring view of the mountains and surrounding country; abundance of Bull Run water; electricity in your house; butchers and grocers ready to serve you.

INVEST

The growth, the present activity, the future of Portland is astonishing. And the growth on the east side is three times that on the other. Cross any of the bridges—see what they're doing on Grand avenue (the outlet for the whole east side)—new buildings going up—big stores coming in—hotels—theatre—homes—and the greater proportion of this growth is going toward Irvington Park. Property there is simply bound to jump away up in value because things are going that direction, and the lots with their trees and their location are more desirable than any other in like state of improvement. Six months from now you will not be able to touch any of these lots for twice the money they are going for now. And after you've seen the property and passed through the streets leading there you will not wonder. An investment in Irvington Park real estate will yield you a bigger return in less time than any other safe investment.

IRVINGTON PARK

THE TRACT WITH CHARACTER

PRICES

Right now lots 50x100 are selling for $200 to $300 at the rate of 10 per cent down and $10 per month. That is less by from $100 to $200 than you have to pay in other parts of town far less desirable or conveniently located. But these prices simply cannot last long—the demand will be too great. Sixty-foot streets and 100-foot boulevards being cut, with parking on each side and cement sidewalks, alleys through each block; carline being built right into heart of the tract (extension of Alberta street line); eight-roomed house being constructed. There is a building restriction of $1,500—it's a part of the contract and is absolutely binding—shanties or unsightly houses are impossible at Irvington Park. Let us show you the property—there'll be no more we can say then—it speaks for itself.
