Private Business Causes Mc-Pherson and Wilson to Withdraw.

Two members of Mayor Lane's executive board will resign in a very short time on account of press of private business, while one other has asked to be relieved as soon as it is possible for the mayor to make arrangements for the appointment of a successor. The two men who have found it impossible to longer occupy seats on the board are W. G. McPherson and Richard Wilson. The man who has asked to be relieved as soon as possible is C. A. Cogswell. All members of the board are busy men and during the past administration found it very inconvenient at times to men and during the past administration found it very inconvenient at times to pass over private affairs and attend to public duties devolving upon them as members of the board. The prospective resignation of the three men will be an action taken by the members after long consideration and with reluctance. It is also a matter of regret to the mayor that those who have been associated that those who have been associated the forced to confine their energies to the conduct of their private business.

GRASS WIDOWER

Greatest secrecy surrounded the mar-riage of Hanna and Mrs. Stuart. The ceremony was performed by a justice of the peace, because of the objection of the Discopal rector to uniting divorced people.

Hanna arrived in Cleveland from Ravanna, his country home, and went directly to the Royal Apartment house, where his bride-elect was waiting for him.

Frank, V. Bennett, manager of the Hotel Gotham, New York, procured the license. Hanna's name was given as Daniel R. Hanna, aged 40 and residence Ravanna, while the bride was registered as Mary E. Stuart, aged 26, residence Claveland.

Cleveland.

Bennett took Justice of the Peace William Brown by automobile to the Royal apartments, where in the presence of Bennett and the Stuart family the ceremony was performed. The couple then took an automobile for the Pennsylvania station, where they got aboard a train just as it was pulling out. They went direct to Hanna's summer home at Cottage Hill farm, near Rayanna.

mer home at Cottage Hill farm, near Ravanna.

Hanna was married in the same clothes he works in, and Mrs. Stuart looked charming in a blue suit, apparently made of linen, and a plain sailor hat. When asked where he and his wife were going, Hanna yelled:

"We're going to Ravanna. Now, for God's sake, let it go at that."

When he was only 20 years old Hanna eloped with and married May Hafrington, who was granted a divorce from him in June, 1898. Three children born to them were awarded to the wife, who subsequently married E. K. Stalla of Cincinnati. On February 19, 1900, Hanna married Elizabeth Gordon, divorced from Walter Des Maud, an Englishman. She sued March 5 and was given a decree this month. Their daughter, 5 years old, was awarded to her mother. In each case cruelty and neglect were charged. The alimony was agreed upon and Hanna did not contest either suit.

WHOLESALE ARRESTS

ORDERED BY CABRERA

(Journal Special Service.)

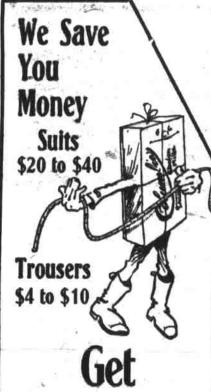

Mexico City, July 2.—Charging complicity in a plot to assassinate him, President Cabrera of Guatemala has thrown 160 of the most prominent citizens of his country into jail and has already sentenced a number of them to death, according to dispatches received here last pight. It is claimed that the charges are the result of political enmity.

Sound trade to the orient in wheat the Sound trade to the orient in wheat and flour goes in regular vessels, is sure and steady. That from Portland must hunt for ships. In fact, over half of the Portland wheat and flour shipments goes in tramp steamers, which the shipper has to rustle to find.

"The cure of this condition, so vital to Portland, I will not attempt to suggest. But one thing is sure: The North Bank road is going to pour grain down the Columbia cheaper than it can be hauled across the Cascades into the Sound cities, If Portland is alive and gets the proper shipping conditions on the water she will capture her full share of it; but if things are not done soon to improve the shipping conditions to the orient in regards to ships, harbor, channel, etc., then Portland may awake too late to find that the trade that might be hers has rolled past her doors and docks to Puget sound.

VILLAGES DESTROYED BY CHINESE TROOPS

(Journal Special Service.)

Hongkong, July 2.—The unrest in this part of China continues. There was severe fighting in the Pakhoi district on June 18 and 19 and the imperial troops burned five villages occupied by the rebels.

The situation in Lienchow is grave. On June 21 rioters burned several colleges and made an attack on the city, but were repulsed. There are many refugees in Pakhoi.

blame for the shortage in slabwood on the steam plant of the Portland General power plant, the breweries and other large consumers, all of which have taken to burning slabwood on account of the scarcity of coal. This, it is said, is particularly true of the North Pacific and the Eastern and Western plants, which provide the big plant of the Portland General with fuel material. The people of the east side have become aroused over the situation confronting them, and at a meeting of the Northwestern Improvement club held recently it was decided to petition the city council for an ordinance prohibiting the further increase in the price of slabwood, and also regulating the consumption of fuel material provided by the mills to the power plants and other large manufacturing plants.
