

SECURE BOOKS WHEN DESIRED

Contestants Need Not Worry When They Run Short of Subscription Blanks.

MORE ENTHUSIASTS ENTERED IN RACE

Country Worker Bids Fair to Be First to Win Honor of Having Picture Printed—Others Working Hard for Votes.

Young people competing for scholarships in schools and colleges by securing subscribers for the Journal should notify the circulation manager of the Journal several days in advance when they will need new receipt books. The books will be mailed out from the office of the Journal just as fast as requests for books are received. Portland city contestants may call at the Journal office for their books.

Every day boys think how they will do things when they arrive at manhood's estate. Every hour girls imitate grown women. It is as natural for youth to look hopefully into maturity as it is for the child to grow.

In almost all activities the boy plays the man, creating or carrying on something, so does the girl imagine she is the woman, a real housekeeper, a real mother, a real stenographer or a real store clerk.

This energy in boys and girls is put to real account in the Journal's educational contest which has just begun. Young folks who compete for scholarships meet their elders and learn to talk to them about their ambitions and their present necessities. They go from office to office, from home to home, from shop to shop, enlisting aid in their cause. In interviewing newspaper readers they talk with intelligent people. They learn to discriminate between good and bad people, between people who have hearts and minds, and those who are lacking in one or the other or in both of those endowments. They learn the time and place to interrupt people, which is more than some grown folks have ever learned.

Every meeting between student and patron of the paper is a lesson in tact to the student and often a pleasure to the patron. For the man who hath no liking for the young is fit for straggles and bad endings. Work of soliciting for contest votes enables the student at an early and pleasurable age to overcome that diffidence, which has been the cause of failure to many people otherwise qualified to attain success.

Patrons and the public generally follow contests very closely. Teachers in public and private schools participate by nominating, advising and canvassing for their favorites. In consequence the subject of scholastic education and the various schools and their courses of study are discussed. The spirit of learning is diffused. Business enterprises become a campaign for the schools. Families whose daily pursuits drive them into forgetfulness of a higher life and culture are reminded that a proper economy of time and means enables everyone to self-improve.

The Journal educational contest this year is bringing forth some young people of exceptional merit. The story of their ambitions will run a serial in these columns during the two months duration of the contest.

Worse-Swedish Candidates.
Miss Sophie Olson of 288 Ivy street is one of the eager young people entered in the Journal contest to receive the means of pursuing studies. Miss Olson was born at St. Paul, Minnesota, where she attended the grammar grades until she was 16 years old. Owing to poor health, she was forced to abandon school and she has never been able to resume her studies. Nothing daunted by this interruption in her general education she took up the study of music. The girl thought she might continue her music even while remaining at home, and this she did.

Consequently by devoting her attention solely to music she has been recognized as a very good performer on the piano. So proficient did she become in her music that Miss Olson teaches, and thus the heartiest toward learning other things which experience has taught her she needs to know.

Praises Oregon Climate.
As her name indicates, Miss Olson is of Scandinavian descent, her father being Norwegian born and her mother of Swedish extraction. The complexion and light hair peculiar to people of northern Europe are distinguished marks of beauty to Miss Olson. Mr. and Mrs. Olson set much store by their daughter Sophie, as she is the only one now living of four girls. They left Minnesota and came to Oregon on account of their daughter's health. The mother was benefited as well as the daughter by the change of climate, and now the family sings the praises of the Beaver state. Other Swedish and Norwegian families will follow the one Norwegian and Swedes are thrifty and desirable immigrants.

The scholarships in instrumental music announced by the Journal are attractive to Sophie Olson, and she will endeavor to win one of them. She expects subscriptions from friends in the Taylor Street Methodist Episcopal church, of which she is a member. Her father, Olof Olson, belongs to the order of Red Men, and Sophie will go among the "village smithies" of Oregon may claim Sophie Olson as their candidate.

As Mr. Olson is one of them. He is to be found at 257 Taylor street at the blacksmith shop of A. C. Lohmire.

The phone number of the Olsons is Woodman 405, and Sophie will be ready and pleased at any time to answer questions regarding her work in the contest.

"Tom Thumb" McKay.
Bright and intelligent is diminutive Douglas McKay, 347 Taylor street, who has entered the list of Journal contestants. Coincident with his decision to compete for a scholarship he celebrated his fourteenth birthday. Douglas has a very good record at the Ladd school, where his standing was so high he was allowed credits without examination. His only sister attends the same school and she has a good record also, always standing at the head of her classes.

This boy is fond of drawing and playing baseball. The little man is an excellent talker and he can tell a story in an interesting manner. This will be to his advantage in telling the story of his ambitions when he goes out for business.

Douglas has not seen his father for several years so he feels no responsibility for his mother and little sister. The boy and his sister have been supported by their courageous mother, who is a forerunner at the establishment of Fleischer & Mayer. Mrs. McKay expects to help her son in his contest work by canvassing among the employees of that establishment.

Although young and small for his age, Douglas has proven himself to be "mother's helper." While keeping up his work at school, Douglas has added necessary dimes to the family income by selling candy at the Lyric theatre. He was formerly an active member of the Y. M. C. A., but economy of time and money became necessary and he let his membership lapse. He, however, intends to take advantage of the privileges of that excellent institution as soon as he can afford it.

Believes in Himself.
Edith Harris, one of last year's successful contestants, has encouraged Douglas to enter the Journal contest. She inspires him to believe in himself. William Musgrove, whose telephone is Woodman 398, nominated him and will do what he can to help him. Douglas has heard that messenger boys learn to become telegraph operators from listening to the click of the instruments. He has loitered around the telegraph offices and felt the charm of the mysterious click-click of the receivers and transmitters. It has occurred to him that with his common school education he could become an expert operator and soon earn a salary that it would not be necessary for the mother to work in a factory. The fact that Douglas is somewhat under size, a "Tom Thumb," as it were, will not count against him before the tinker.

Boy vs. Girl for Dallas.
Earl Heckart of Corvallis has sent his photograph to the Journal, as requested of all contestants. He forwards with the picture a large bunch of votes which shows that very soon he will register the 1,000 votes necessary for a contestant to be honored and helped by having his picture printed in the paper. Earl's picture reveals a very determined face and a bright and intelligent expression. The little man writes that he will strive for the scholarship in Dallas college. Jennie Bowersox is competing with him for that scholarship and she promises a lively race as Miss Bowersox is an earnest candidate and has many friends and admirers. It makes things lively when a boy and a girl strive against one another for the same scholarship.

The demand for instruction in the denominational college is illustrated in the Journal which has a lively race for the scholarship in the Dallas college, when, at his very home, is the free state institution, the Oregon Agricultural college.

Score Next Saturday.
The total number of votes cast in favor of contestants up to 6 o'clock tomorrow evening will be published in the Journal Saturday. Only the names of contestants who receive 1,000 votes or more by that time will appear in print. Names of all nominees are carefully counted and the contest is open but a contestant is not entitled to publicity until at least 1,000 votes are registered.

Sends Out Checks.
How would you like to write out checks from 50 cents to $5 all day and mail these little donations to deserving children? That is the job Mr. J. Blaauw had yesterday. He is here to demonstrate and introduce the new cereal health coffee known as Golden Grain Granules. As he loves children more than money, he offered through the columns of the Journal to send small amounts to all children who used health coffee. Children wrote letters to him from all parts of the northwest, telling him how they liked the coffee.

The boy is fond of drawing and playing baseball. The little man is an excellent talker and he can tell a story in an interesting manner. This will be to his advantage in telling the story of his ambitions when he goes out for business.

PORTLAND KNIGHTS SPEEDING EASTWARD

A delegation to the grand convocation of the Knights Templar, which will be held at Saratoga, New York, next week left Portland this morning for the east via the Union Pacific. While in the east the Portland delegates will distribute about 1,000 souvenir booklets advertising the resources of Oregon. These booklets are prettily bound, and contain two dozen half-tone cuts displaying the resources of the Beaver state. The Oregon delegates will be away from home about six weeks, during which they will visit the Jamestown exposition, Boston, New York, and other points of interest in the east.

COMMITTEE REJECTS BIDS FOR BOND ISSUE

Three bids for the $188,677.95 bond issue of the city of Portland were rejected yesterday by the ways and means committee as not being satisfactory. Tyler Woodward wanted to take $7,000 worth of the bonds, Morris Brothers bid for the entire amount and the Security Savings & Trust company wished to take over $100,000 worth of bonds. New bids will be advertised for to be opened two weeks hence.

Preferred Stock Canned Goods.

You are invited to call and see the exhibit of Buster Brown and his dog. It pays a left-handed compliment to the Beef Trust market and a right-handed compliment to Smith's. The exhibit is on the outside; the bargains are inside. Don't think our bargains are all from the window; they are from one end of the house to the other—they run the full length of a 60-foot counter.

Keep out of the Beef Trust markets—paid out to keep the Smith's and with the object of fooling the Beef Trust markets are ashamed to put their names above the door—no wonder.

The Summer Drink

Pabst Blue Ribbon Beer is the ideal summer drink. Cooling, satisfying and refreshing, it adds to the enjoyment of the outdoor luncheon for it is a food as well as a drink.

Pabst brews for food qualities as well as for purity and flavor. Pabst found the only way to get all of the food-values out of the barley-grain was to follow Nature in making the malt, by growing it slowly and scientifically, and he therefore perfected the Pabst Eight-Day Malting Process. Pabst Malt is richer in nutriment than other malts.

Pabst Blue Ribbon

The Beer of Quality

is a more healthful, wholesome food than other beers. The Pabst Perfect Brewing Process blends the rich food values of Pabst Malt with the tonic properties of the choicest hops under conditions that insure positive purity, while reducing the percentage of alcohol to the minimum—less than 3 1/2%.

Pabst Blue Ribbon is the ideal family beer, because of its food values, its purity and its remarkably small amount of alcohol, making it a truly temperance drink.

When ordering beer, ask for Pabst Blue Ribbon.
