EILERS WINDOWS SCORE AGAIN

ANOTHER CLEVER DISPLAY FOR THE FOURTH OF JULY.

Unique Idea of Revolving Globe, Gaily Decorated With Countless Miniature American Flags, Surrounded by a Screen of the National Colors—Prizes for the Nearest Guesses of Number of Flags in the Display.

There is one thing that is characteristic of Eilers—they are always ready. If there is a lull in the pulse of trade or if there is an opportunity to show their progressiveness and public spirit, they are never slow to grasp the chance to demonstrate the truth of the saying "always something doing."
If the Fourth of July committee had offered prizes for the best decorated and most appropriate windows, Eilers would have undoubtedly carried off first honors again as they did in the Rose Show displays. Not only does their present window carry out the spirit of the day, but it gives the public an opportunity to enter into the day's fun by a popular guessing contest, as to the number of flags used on the large revolving globe, which constitutes the center-piece of the display.
All sorts of guesses have already been received—some from the 10-year-olds, who think 700 or 800 sounds like a good many, to the grown-ups who juggle with guesses away up in the thousands. The guessing contest is open free to everyone, and there was a throng about the window all day yesterday, diligently endeavoring to estimate in all sorts of manners.
Elsewhere in today's paper may be found a guessing coupon, which Eilers Piano House have included in their advertisement, which can be cut out and mailed or brought to their store. The contest will close Saturday, of this week, precisely at noon, by the drop of the time ball. The counting will be done in the window, publicly, Saturday evening, beginning at 7:30 p. m. A number of prizes will be awarded to those who guess nearest.
Everybody has a guess coming, and to be patriotic to the fullest extent of the day, you'll hit to guess yours in sure. Make a point of taking it in the display in the corner window—Eilers Piano House, Washington and Park streets.

A great many people come to this store from a curious sense of knowing why this is the most talked of store in Portland. They leave the store with the firm conviction that there is a reason and cause for reason why.

PORTLAND'S NEW DEPARTMENT STORE

ROCKEFELLER FOUND BY PROCESS SERVER

(Journal Special Service.)
New York, July 4.—John D. Rockefeller was served late yesterday afternoon. A subpoena was read to Rockefeller at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Prentice, at Pittsfield, Massachusetts, and he will be in the Chicago court Friday.

FAIRBANKS IS ORATOR AT FERGUS FALLS

(Journal Special Service.)
Fergus Falls, Minn., July 4.—Vice-President Fairbanks is orator of the day at this county celebration today. He said:
"We have lately been engaged in the solution of problems different from those which confronted our fathers in the simpler days of industrial life. In the rapid growth of trade and commerce practices have gained a foothold which are restrictive of fair competition. Without claiming infallibility as to enactment or enforcement of the law we propose to see that every citizen, regardless of station, has fair play."

AT THE THEATRES

A Bone Fourth at the Oaks.

To those who dread the uproarious tumult of tonight's celebration of the Fourth the Oaks offers an ideal refuge. There will be fireworks and proper celebration of Independence day at the big park of course, but there will be none of the wild observations of the event that will be seen upon the streets tonight. The fireworks display will be the most brilliant and novel that has ever been seen in Portland. There will also be a special musical program by Schlotzky's band which will include the famous descriptive war piece. Many private picnicking parties are at the park today, but there is room and an indefinite variety of entertainment for all.

Ethel Barrymore Tomorrow.

The management of the Heilig theatre will present the charming actress Ethel Barrymore, supported by an excellent company of players tomorrow night and Saturday afternoon, in Clyde Fitch's fantastic comedy "Captain Jinks." Saturday night, the delightful comedy "Countess Kate" will be the bill. Seats are now selling.

"A Fair Rebel" Tonight.

At the Lyric tonight the Allen Stock company will present "A Fair Rebel." It is a play that furnishes a real lesson in patriotism. The story woven is pretty and throughout love and patriotism are strong features.

"A High-Toned Burglar."

"A High-Toned Burglar" is a comedy act at the Grand this week. It is one of the many big acts which grace the program and make it one of the best bills the theatre has given. Five headlines are on the bill.

The Fourth at the Star.

At the Star tonight "The Life That Killa," the melodrama which created a sensation in New York, will be presented. There are four thrilling acts and each one is a novelty in itself.

"Oliver Twist" at the Baker.

"Oliver Twist" at the Baker is proving a most popular attraction and each performance sees largely increasing audiences. Miss Georgie Woodthorpe as Nancy Sikes and William Harris as Bill Sikes are giving most realistic portrayals.

American Specialty Co. at Marquam.

PRETTY OAKS ROMANCE ENDED IN MARRIAGE

A pretty romance of brief duration resulted Monday in the marriage of Lloyd M. Hunter, a former newspaper man of Oakland, California, and Miss Alice Hught, 309 Jefferson street, this city.

Mrs. Lloyd M. Hunter.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. J. Montgomery of the Third Presbyterian church, and immediately after the marriage the bride and groom with a party of friends made a river trip to the Rock Island club.

The romance began at the Oaks, city.

where a sister of the bride is cashier in the office of a concessionaire. She visited her sister at the park and there she met the young man from the south. It is said to have been a case of love at first sight.

They met again and then again, and walking beneath the big oak trees and through the broad gravel walks at the park Hunter had many chances to tell his bride the story that resulted in their engagement. The engagement followed quickly after their introduction and the wedding was immediate.

At the Rock Island club on Monday there was a banquet by his friends at the Oaks in honor of the bride and groom. They will reside in this city.

ANOTHER ORPHAN ENTERS CONTEST

Determined Youngster Who Has Traveled Much to Try for Scholarship.

THREE WORKERS FROM PENINSULA DISTRICT

One Contestant Desires to Win Cash Prize So as to Pay His Way Through the Oregon Agricultural College.

John Kanno of University Park, Portland, has entered the educational contest to compete for the scholarship offered by The Journal at Columbia university.

John is an orphan boy. His mother died when he was 4 years old. The father was forced to give the child to another family. The boy had been with the foster parents about six years when his own father died.

The few years that John lived with his foster parents constitute the only period of his life that he very earnestly all the comforts of home. While at it and does not mind the fact that he is 23 years old, while others with whom he meets recite the young man's history.

Three contestants for The Journal scholarships already have come forward from the Peninsula district. But there must be room for all three, as last year Mildred L. Clemens and Lillian McVicker of that district both finished high among the cash and scholarship winners.

In addition to striving for an education himself, he does all he can to help others. During The Journal scholarship contest last summer John rendered valuable aid to Mildred Clemens. Miss Clemens says that John Kanno aided her very greatly in making a canvass of the University Park district.

Resolute "Jessie James." Cecil A. James is one of the bright and intelligent young people who are taking advantage of the opportunity for education offered by The Journal contest.

This contestant thinks that his life career of 17 years marks an important period in the growth of Portland. He was born in a modest cottage that stood exactly where the great structure of the Meier & Frank store was erected and now forms one of the busiest commercial marts of Portland.

It gives the boy some sense of importance to think the locality of his origin has become so well known. This young seeker after contest fortune, by his playmates, is dubbed "Jessie James." The name must be given him on account of his resolute manner, his habit of doing things without saying much, and not on account of any daring acts of youthful outlawry.

Now is his life in any way related to the bandit of the Missouri border. There were no watermelon patches to make raids upon and nothing more savage to shoot than marbles in the precincts of Portland where this boy has grown up to the verge of manhood. Cecil James enters the contest in order that he may receive a cash purse with which finally to pay his way at the Oregon Agricultural college. In addition to earning the means to go to college, in the future the boy hopes to earn enough money with which to help his family and to assume some responsibility for his mother and little sister.

Father in Alaska. The father of Cecil James recently started for a very remote portion of Alaska and his family does not expect to hear from him very often for some time. Cecil becomes the head of the family and bears some responsibility for his mother and little sister.

Cecil was nominated to compete for The Journal scholarship by E. C. Herlow of 222 Chamber of Commerce building, phone Main 1622. Mr. Herlow knows the boy very well and takes an interest in him. Mr. Herlow is also actively connected with the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A. Cecil always has lived in Portland. When he was 2 or 3 years old his parents moved out to Portsmouth, on the St. Johns carline, where he completed, in February, 1906, his grammar grade studies. It is said of him that he used to cry, when a little lad, to go to school. Cecil expects to receive support from members of the Woodmen of the World, as his father is a Woodman. Cecil himself is a member of the Baptist church, also of the Y. M. C. A. He is president of the Bible club of the Y. M. C. A. at University park. In addition to all these duties, Cecil has found time to entertain his friends and the public with declamations and readings. This contestant has shown a good business head by going to work at once.
